Fun and Kitchen Stoves.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"I'm having such fun with my kitchen stove," a little friend said to me the other day. One does not instinctively associate fun with a kitchen stove, so I naturally asked for further details.

"Why, I'm trying to see just how little coal I can use and still get results," she exclaimed. "When we first went to housekeeping I used two hods or more a day, but I've cut it down to a hod, or less. I've studied the drafts, you know, and just the right moment to put coal on. My next door neighbour and I are having a race to see who can use the least. You can't imagine what fun it is."

As Much Fun as a New Gown.

I couldn't doubt that it was fun. If she had been telling me about a pleasure trip or a new gown her eyes could not have shone more brightly.

She is a girl who, before her marriage, lived in comfort and some degree of luxury. She never did any housework and I doubt if she knew whether a kitchen range consumed one hod of coal a day or ten. To-day she is running her little home on a limited income and doing every bit of the work except the washing. People have said that when the novelty and the first shimmer of her love wears off she will be heartily sick of it. "I don't believe it. No girl with that spirit could be."

Making a Game of Life.

No one who has this spirit of making a game of life, a sort of contest with oneself, is ever heartily sick of things. It's the people who would ridicule the idea of getting fun out of a kitchen range who get sick of things.

Nothing will take the dullness out of routine work like some contest of this sort. I know a woman who cordially detested housework, until she came into contact with the science of household efficiency which is the study of cutting down the time necessary for routine tasks by saving steps and motion. She was deeply interested in it and at once began to put the theories into practice by putting her implements in more convenient places, standardizing her method of doing dishes and dusting, and by various other schemes. Not only did all this shorten the hours which she had to devote to housework, but it sweetened them too. "It's positively fascinating," she told me the other day, "to see how much I can cut down the time for my various tasks. I've cut my dishwashing ten minutes a meal, not by hurrying but by doing things more efficiently. Just think of it, that's thirty minutes a day."

Again a certain typist when she has some particularly uninteresting copying to do finds new zest in it by trying to see how few mistakes she can make, and how exceptionally well she can make her copy book.

One of the greatest happinesses in life is to be always interested; one of the greatest misfortunes is to be eternally bored. No one who has learned to make a game out of life will ever be bored.

SIR GEORGE ROOK died 1710, aged 59. One of the most notable seamen of his time, and for his spirited attack on the French fleet off Cape La Hogue in 1692 was knighted.

GENERAL GORDON born 1833. The well-known soldier, administrator, and earnest Christian, who had a most adventurous, useful and self-sacrificing career. He saw active service in the Crimea, China and India, the Sudan, and finally was killed while holding Khartoum against the insurgent forces.

SIR HENRY STANLEY born 1841. Born of humble parentage and placed in the work-house, under the name of John Rowland, he went while young as cabin boy on a sailing vessel to New Orleans, where he was adopted and educated by Henry Morton Stanley, whose name he afterwards took. After his benefactor's death, he had to sell newspapers on the streets and eventually turning his attention to writing, established a connection with the New York Herald. He was sent as special correspondent on many quests, notably to find Livingstone in Africa, which he succeeded in doing in 1871.

COLONIAL BUILDING, St. John's, first opened in 1850.
SIR FRANCIS DRAKE died 1596. The typical "sea-dog" of Elizabethan days, born within sight of the sea, lived on the sea most of his life, died on the sea, and was buried at sea, near Porto Belo, West Indies.

The waves became his winding sheet; the waters were his tomb; But for his fame the ocean sea was not sufficient room.

TWO MUCH.

Phyllis, your method of raising recruits Smacks of the press-gang a trifle. Here am I wearing impossible boots And marching about with a rifle Because you have said We can never wed Until I am carried home wounded or dead.

Now I've a number instead of a name, The cut of my clothes is atrocious. Daily I'm drilled until aching and lame, By officers young and precocious, Who force me to lie On my tummy to try And shoot an imaginary bull in the eye.

Please do not think I'm unwilling to go—I've no intention of quitting; But Phyllis, there's one thing I really must know: For whom is that muffler you're knitting? I don't care a lot If by Germans I'm shot; But if that is for me, I'll desert on the spot. —London Opinion.

AMERICAN RAILWAYS—The CHICAGO AND NORTHWESTERN.

The Chicago and Northwestern was formed from the ruins of half a dozen western railroads built in the fifties by enthusiastic men who made the fatal mistake of trying to fill a long-felt want before it existed.

One of these lines ran west from Chicago towards the Mississippi river. Others ran through Wisconsin in an enthusiastic but aimless manner. When the system was finally tied up and buckled together, it provided lines from Chicago to Milwaukee, St. Paul, Lake Superior, Omaha, South Dakota and Wyoming, and helped the great Middle West to become greater.

The Northwestern system has almost 11,000 miles of road and has paid eight per cent dividends with a regularity that has entirely overlooked hard times and legislation. It has double track lines to Omaha, St. Paul and Milwaukee and is about the only railroad in the country which still affords to run yellow passenger cars. It also runs its trains left-handed on double-track, has built a modern, thirty-acre station in Chicago and in other ways has demonstrated its entire indifference to local customs.

The Northwestern has never been monkeyed with by financiers but has depended upon the support of the plain people at the customary rates. Because of this fact its bonded indebtedness is so low as to cause tears of despair among those eminent captains of transportation whose idea of railroading is to trade gold bonds for steel rails, equal weight. The capital stock of the Northwestern is about $150,000,000 all told, and it owes $185,000,000 in bonds on 9,000 miles of track. When we consider that the New Haven system has managed to balance $350,000,000 in debt on 2,000 miles of system we cannot but feel that the Northwestern has neglected its opportunities.

The Northwestern hauls the millions of Chicago to their retreats on the north shore and fights with the other granger lines for the privilege of hauling the crops of the west. It earns about $85,000 a year and its only luxury outside of its Chicago station consists of four Vanderbilts on the board of directors.

The Northwestern is one of the few American roads managed by a president with mutton-chop whiskers. This may be unimportant and then again it may pay the other roads to investigate carefully the effect of mutton-chop whiskers and English superintendents on indebtedness.

Have You an Itchy Spot?
Somewhere on your body? If so, attend to it at once. In Bozema—and itchy spots, whether dry and scurfy, or moist and inclined to "weep," are generally eczematous—delays are foolish, allowing the disease to spread and affect more of the good skin. Your best chance for a cure is to use Zylex, which will give almost instant relief, and it used in the earlier stages of the trouble will almost certainly bring a cure, and in any event will greatly ameliorate the trouble. Ask your druggist about it. Price 50c. a box. Zylex Soap, 25c. a cake.

New blouses have the deep V-shaped shoulder yokes or broderie Anglaise over rose chiffon, the rest of the blouse being plain white voile.

Fads and Fashions.

Silver Venetian lace and white chiffon make a lovely combination for a bridal gown.

The new blues for spring are powder blue, aero blue, artillery blue and blue-gray.

Apparently the spring fashions are to have inspirations from all the warring countries.

Young girls are wearing the modified Cossack costumes with shorter waist lines.

Narrow scarfs of velvet embroidered with beads are among the new hat trimmings.

High buttoned military boots are promised for the near future for both women and children.

The all-black velvet gown is always a valuable asset to the woman who goes about much.

Evening sleeves may be of the most meager sort or may fit all the way close to the wrist.

A rest gown of dull blue with a post impressionist flower pattern has a loose coat of transparent blue.

Ultra-smart mourning millinery uses dull jet for its bonnets, and strings of black pearls are effective.

Suits of white gabardine and serge are among the novelties. White braid and buttons are used for trimmings.

Black, blue and gold embroidery is one of the best possible ornamentations for gowns of dark blue cloth.

Long trains of white broche metal tissue are used in a detached way on robes of soft white chiffon or charmeuse.

Half-and-half stockings are new and striking. The upper part of these new stockings are in decided contrast to the lower part.

In the coming season there will be a great deal of black military braid used, also neutral shades and shades matching the dress goods.

The return of taffeta is very welcome in millinery—it makes such smart bows. It is especially good for the present draped styles.

Waists are just a shade smaller than they have been—and it is even whispered that the really small waist is to be fashionable once more. However, nobody knows.

Frock aprons are new; the slip off and on just as the kitchen aprons does but the fastening which attaches the apron to the gown is invisible. These aprons are worn on afternoon or evening gowns in back or front and are made of the garment material or a matching shade of chiffon edged with fur.

Doctors and Gas Fires

In an article which recently appeared in the London "Evening News," Mr. W. G. Faulkner stated: "In making my inquiries I discovered one significant fact. This was that one company—the Gas Light and Coke Company—had among their consumers 2,500 doctors who had gas fires installed in their houses, some as many as ten or a dozen; that 1,500 of these doctors had become users of gas during the past three years; and that not one had ever given them up."

Professor C. V. Boys F.R.S., says, in the "Standard": "Sentiment and inertia are the only obstacles against the general adoption of gas fires and cooking appliances. Wonderful strides have been made, in spite of deep-rooted prejudice. A gas fire, burning with a blue, is an admirable agent for heating a room; and, as a scientist, I fail to understand how such a gas fire dries the air in a room more than any other fire."—nov17,1f
