The War Premeditated by Germany.

From the 'Journal de Geneve' (29th of September): "Europe had already learned through M. Giolitti, that in July, 1913, then again, in October, 1913, several months before the Serebovoje crime, the Vienna cabinet was on the eye of making war on Serbia and had solicited the help of the Italian Government in the prevision that a European conflagration would be the result.

"M. Salandra afterwards gave greater precision to these facts in his speech at the Capitol.

"Finally, last Sunday, at Naples, M. Barzilai, furnished an indication of inestimable price for convincing those who still doubted in spite of so many accumulated proofs, and who might not clearly see that Germany has prepared, wanted and unchained the enormous butchery.

"The Italian ambassador at Constantinople, M. the senator Garoni, on the 15th of July, 1914, received from the German ambassador at Constantinople, Baron Wangenheim, the following declaration:

"The German ambassador told him, eight days before the note (of Austria-Hungary) to Serbia was communicated to him, that this declaration would be of such a nature as to make war inevitable.

"Now we know that Germany has not ceased to declare to all the diplomats of neutral States, that she was ignorant of the contents of the Austrian note to Serbia; we know that she has pretended (without, be it noted, ever having furnished the least beginning of written proof) that she had applied herself to moderating Austria!

"And, (in this declaration of the German diplomatist to the Italian diplomatist) of what war was it a question?"

"Of a war by Austria against Serbia only? Who would believe it?"

"M. Barzilai opportunely recalls this sentence from the German White Book, distributed in the Reichstag in the famous sitting of the 4th of August:

"We were well aware that an eventual military action by Austria-Hungary against Serbia would concern

Russia and might implicate us in a war by reason of our obligations as allies."

What can we ask for more conclusive? "These two very short texts illumine each other."

Which did not prevent Emperor William, hardly ten days ago, to speak of "the war which has been forced on Germany!" (Letter to M. Helfferich).

In commenting upon this fresh proof of criminal premeditation, the Giornale d'Italia for the 27th of September observes that, on that occasion, "the governments of Vienna and of Berlin did not breathe a word of their conspiracy to their ally of Rome." And it adds: "The method was not bad, the third ally was thus kept in a state of perpetual vassalage."

What Are You Doing for that Eczema?

"Nothing; I've about given up trying to cure it."
"That is not wise. Do as I did and you will probably be cured in a short time. I used Zylex and Zylex Soap with it and my Eczema began to improve at once. A couple of boxes cured. You can get Zylex at your druggists."

British Capture German Officer.

London, Nov. 18.—Lieut. Henri Koch, one of the officers of the interned German auxiliary cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich, who violated his parole and left Norfolk in the middle of October, has been taken off a British steamer in the North Sea by the British naval authorities. Lieut. Koch, who was sailing as a seaman, joined the steamer at Baltimore, giving his nationality as Dutch.

Bishop Gore's Disappointment.

The Bishop of Oxford, speaking at Reading, said he had been bitterly disappointed at the way in which people had followed the lead given by the King in the matter of total abstinence during the war. It had been a failure of public spirit and a failure of loyalty which was profoundly distressing and hard to explain in the eyes of the world. It was a real dishonour, and they could not recover their self-respect until, with widespread unanimity, the King's challenge had been accepted.

Heroism Shown All on Board Hospital Ship

New York, Nov. 18.—A New York Times cable to-day says:

"The Daily Mail's Dover correspondent sends the following:
"Vivid narratives are told by the crew of the coiler Lusitania, which, in rendering aid to the Anglia, was herself sunk.

"After the explosion the bows of the hospital ship seemed to melt away until the sea lapped her rails and splashed up on the decks. Mortally wounded as she was, the Anglia surged forward in a vain attempt to reach shore before she sank. Her siren roused every vessel near, and from every quarter came boats to the rescue.

"Those watching from the wreck of the Lusitania saw soldiers coming up from below and assembling on the deck, calmly waiting the order to pass into the boats.

"Every moment their footing became more precarious as gradually the Anglia settled by the bows.

"But by now the rescuers were near. A vessel braving all danger from the Anglia's sudden foundering ran right under the stern and in a moment the crew were working like Trojans to transfer the wounded to safety.

"The difficulties were terrible, every moment the stern of the Anglia rose higher and higher, and as it rose the vessel veered sideways as if about to turn turtle.

"Nothing daunted, the men of the Anglia, their officers, and the men of other ships kept at the work of rescue and rapidly, though even then all too slowly, the wounded were transferred to boats. Some of the wounded, unable to retain their precarious footing, slipped into the sea, from which they were snatched in the nick of time by sailors, many of whom plunged overboard, the better to help in the rescue.

"Others on the Anglia jumped overboard, but all the while the nurses worked with splendid devotion with the crew to transfer their patients to the boats.

"Soon the Anglia had settled so far by the head that one of her propellers was clear of the water. The other, still revolving, gave a circular motion to the doomed vessel, adding ten-fold to the difficulties of the rescuers. But nothing discouraged them and the sailors kept on, their hopes running high that all would be saved.

"The end came with dramatic suddenness. With wounded, nurses, doctors and sailors still clinging to the stern, the Anglia seemed for one brief second to stand on her bows, and then she disappeared.

"But even now the Red Cross on her mainmast flaunts six feet clear above the troubled waters of the Channel, marking the spot where many brave men and women, too, it is feared, sleep in their last sleep."

Discussing the loss of the Anglia the Daily Mail says:

"The mine may have been laid by one of the German submarines or by some suborned neutral vessel.

"It was no doubt to prepare the world for such an episode that last Friday the German wireless published a report that British hospital ships were being used for the conveyance of troops and munitions of war.

"The tale was entirely false, but the circulation of such a falsehood usually indicates a German intention to attempt a new variety of foul play. It would not be the first time that such an outrage had been committed. So far back as February a German submarine deliberately fired a torpedo at the British hospital ship Asturias."

TARVIA UNSATISFACTORY.—At a special meeting of the Civic Commission held recently the Engineer reported that the Tarvia pavement which had been laid on Duckworth Street was "ravelling," and that some fourteen holes had been located in the section of the street covered with this new mixture. The Board thereupon decided that a message be sent to the Tarvia Co's headquarters stating that the work was unsatisfactory and that an immediate explanation was necessary.

MOLASSES SCARCE.—It is said that molasses was never as scarce in the city as at present.
