Impressive and Solemn Scenes Around the Bier of General Booth.

Call to the "Mercy Seat" Responded to by Hundreds-Eloquent Tribute to Leader.

London, Aug. 28.—Funeral services over the founder of the Salvation Army, Gen. William Booth, were held at the Olympia tonight, in accordance with the traditions of that organization, without pomp or symbols of mourning, but with a most moving fervor and impressiveness.

Thirty-four thousand people participated in the service. Nearly half of them wore blue coats and red jerseys, or bonnets with red ribbon, so familiar on the streets of cities in several nations.

The body of the late general, in a plain pine coffin, rested high upon a white catafalque in front of the big platform across the end of the hall, where all the chief officers of the organization were seated, and where forty bands were massed. The crimflag of the army, "Of Fire and od," which the general unfurled on Mount Calvary, was placed above the coffin. A bank of flowers, composed of the tributes sent by members of royalty and many societies was behind it. Flags of various nations, in which the commander-inchief had waged campaigns, and the standards of the older divisions of the army, were arrayed in front of the platform.

These and more Salvation Army flags in the galleries, each tipped with white ribbons, and twenty portraits of the evangelist, surmounted with green laurel wreaths, with a broad orange ribbon connecting them, were the only decorative effects.

King's Equerry There. While the front rows of chairs before the coffin were filled with representatives of various bodies, with the equerry appearing for the King, several mayors in their robes and chains of office, a delegation from the stock exchange, ministers and clergymen of all the Protestant churches, and Jewish rabbis, and while many notable personages were seated throughout the house, the rank and file of the great gathering was composed of the plain people, for whom regarding his eyesight, which has been composed.

The service itself was not only a memorial, but was a mammoth meet-ing of praise and prayer. No other congregation comparable with it ever occurred in London, if in the world, save the funeral of the general's wife, which was held in the same hall twenty-two years ago this coming

A Solemn Moment most solemn moment of the long meeting was when the coffin was borne to the centre of the hall to the sonorous music of the "Dead March in A *small procession representing many branches of the army's activity, including men and women, and a detachment of officers from the foreign branches, carrying the flags of their respective countries, preceded it. Immediately before the body a brigadier bore aloft the crimson flag Mrs. William Stokes Fell Down Steps which the general raised at Jerusalem and under which he died at Hadley Wood. Following it marched the officers from Canada, Sweden, Germany, America, Switzerland, France, Denmark, Norway, India and Australasia. Then came the new general, Bramwell Booth, with his wife, each wearing the uniform of a commissioner: down a flight of steps. No bones were Mrs. Booth-Hellberg and grandchilbroken, but she was badly shaken up, dren of the late Salvationist, Adjutant Catherine Booth, Capt. Mary

Commissioner Lawley, the late general's right-hand man, who accompanied him on all his travels for 22 years, made a brief extemporaneous prayer, and this was followed by the hymn, "Pass Me Not, O Loving Savior," which was sung with deep feeling. Commissioner Adelaide Cox offered prayer, and with a great murmur of voices everyone repeated the Lord's Prayer. A brigade of Salvation choristers sang "When the Roll Is Called in Heaven and the Hosts Shall Muster There," after which Commissioner Higgins led in a responsive reading from Revelations, chapters 7 to 3, which was followed by the singing of another hymn. Toronto Telegram: Johnny Pillans, of Carluke, Scotland, was one of the finalists in the Welsh tournament and had hard lines in losing to John Pollack, another Scotchman. Pillans is quite a character, and many bowlers in Ontario must have met him last year when he visited Canada with the British team. It was thought that Johnny would have stay-ed here, as he thought a lot of the country and people, but the love for Scotland took him back and he has since done great things in single handed, playing various parts of England, Scotland and Wales.

His record shows his liking for Wales, for he has won the open charpionship in that country at llinas Powes twice, in 1910 and 1911, Pillans has some very peculiar mannerisms on the green, and is quite an entertainment in the method of play.

After the delivery of his bowl he frequently gets to the jack before it, and gesticulates in a most extraordinary way until the bowl stops running.
