CALL FOR INSPECTOR WHEN THEY NEED VET.

Citizens Have Wrong Idea as to His Duties.

Humane Inspector G. A. Tustin declares that he is not a veterinary surgeon, regardless of what people the city think.

The reason for this denial on the part of Mr. Tustin is found in the act that not a day passes but that receives a minimum of 12 calls om citizens who wish him to come and treat a sick dog, cat or horse. "I am not a vet," declared the inspector, "and it is not my business in so far as the humane society is concerned. People whose pets beproper surgeon, who knows what to to help, but I am not an animal do tor and I wish the people of London would realize this."
