Canadian Press Despatch.
Winnipeg, Oct. 19.—Dullness featured today's wheat market here, with offerings light and only limited trading beness and improved weather conditions over the Canadian West, prices, after several early fluctuations, closed 1½c to 20 below Saturday's final figures. October closed at $1.26% and November at $1.25%.
Cables were very disappointing to the trade this morning, and seaboard advices stated that foreign markets were showing absolutely no interest. The Canadian visible supply showed an increase of about $50,000 bushels from last week.

Price changes were only fractional in coarse grains, and the market lacked interest. There was a meagre demand for flax, quotations decilining more than 3c.

There was a fairly good foreign demand for cash wheat, and contract grade spreads advanced about ½c. Canadian and United States millers were filling old orders. Cash oats, rye and flax were dull, but there was a better demand for barley at fractionally higher premiums.
