The Arion Club Give a More Than Usually

A large and fashionable audience gathered in the Institute hall last evening to hear the first concert of the Arion club in the season of 1897-98, which is the sixth during which they have adde to the pleasure of music-loving Victorans by their delightful entertainments. The work of the club was up to the high andard that has marked all their previous entertainments, giving evidence of careful and painstaking practice and careful and painstaking practice and skilful leadership. The accompaniments to the club's singing were well played by Mrs. Young. The programme opened with Yon Weber's stirring song, "To the Sword of Liberty," which was followed by "The Yoyage," by Mendelssohn, and "A Toast," by Zollner. To these classical and spirited choruses followed G. L. Osgood's choruses followed G. L. Osg "Proposal" which was very gracefully sung. Mrs. J. D. Helmcken, accom-

First 4 struck and the engines and reels Bay; next 14 sounded, and a move was The Humbert Yukon Expedition Announ made for Vancouver street; then came 41, at the corner of Pandora and Quadra street; and lastly 45, the correct number, from Spring Ridge. All this took time and made a delay of at least twenty minutes. In that period the fire had got such headway that the house was partially destroyed before a stream could be played on it.

The reason for the trouble in getting the right number was that the individual who attempted to give the This game, played at Beacon Hill on Thursday afternoon, was won by the Y.M.C.A., the score being 3 to 2. Not only the desire to be comfortable but the need of being healthy, obliges us to make a constant fight against dirt—dirt in our houses, dirt in our bodies. But people were not always as dead set against dirt as most of us are to-day. "The fourth century," says a recent writer, "was the religious apotheosis of dirt. It was not because the church had any quarrel with clean skins but because bathing and washing were among the luxuries renounced at baptism." The people followed the example of the priests, ignored water, and laid the foundation for the plague and other awful epidemics of the Middle Ages.
