The backelors' and benedicts' dinner to be given on Thursday evening next—Thanksgiving Day—at the Metropolitan Methodist church will not be as much a backelors' and benedicts' dinner as was incaded. The Eveless Eden they had dreamt of has been invaded, and all because the men could not boast of competent chefs. The Eves have had to be allowed into the Eden to cook, for when the men met a few nights since, to plan a bill of fare, it was found that all they could cook was pork and beans a la days of '49, bacon and beans a la Cape Nome, and flap-jacks a la Yukon. When the acquirements of each in the cooking line were reheared, volunteers were called for who would promise to eat the dinner. None could be found, and the ladies had to be called in. The bill of fare has been placed in their hands, but the title of the entertainment remains. A concert will an and the control of the called in their hands, but the title of the entertainment remains.
