Opinions On Treaty

Nicaragua Canal Is Attracting More Attention in Great Britain.

Signs That Cabinet Has Come to a Definite Conclusion.

Comments on the Retirement of General Colville-Army Reform.

New York, Jan. 20.-Mr. Isaac Ford, London correspondent of the New York Tribune in his cablegram this afternoon

The Hay-Pauncefote treaty is attracting more attention in the London papers. There are signs that Lord Lansdowne has been advised by his cabinet associates either to accept or to reject the senate amendments to the canal treaty. The English press is waiting for cues from a responsible source, the Times being the only journal which has com-mitted itself in favor of the rejection of the amendments to the treaty. The Quarterly Review, in a long, carefully written article on the Nicaraguan canal, lays stress upon the discourtesy of the Senate's ex parte attempt to supercede this treaty without ample consultation and contends that the Davis amendment cannot be accepted, and that the foreign office must wash its hands of the whole affair and allow the United States to take the entire responsibility of the canal in defiance of the rights and interests of maratime powers. The Quarterly Review argues the case closely, and holds that Britain cannot sanction in advance treaty provisions under which an American coup de main might be possible in war time. It carefully refrains from drawing a parallel between the Suez and Nicaraguan canals in this respect. An English coup de main has taken place in Egypt since the Suez goal weee-constructed and de main has taken place in Egypt since the Suez canal was constructed, and Lord Cromer is in a position to close that waterway against warships during a European campaign. The Davis amendment simply arms the United States with a de jure right to close the canal for purposes of national defence, and England by her possession of a stronghold of power at Cairo, has the same de facto privilege in an emergency although her pre-eminence in sea power will deter her from taking advantage of it. The sincere friends of Anglo-American good feeling are hoping either that the foreign office will minimize the importance of the amendments and accept treaty another year.

Mr. Ford refers to Sir Henry Colville's retirement and other military affairs as follows:

"The retirement of Sir Henry Colville" "The retirement of Sir Henry Colville from the army in the curt manner in which the War Office has set aside his appeal from an official inquiry into the Lindley affair, as the only effect of his attempt to have the case tried by the newspapers, has created a general opinion in military circles that the staff work in South Africa has been defective and been responsible for many mishaps. Lord Colville, Gatacre and Warren are the chief losers in a war which has been a lottery of reputations with twenty blanks for every prize. General Hunter, who has been one of the win-twenty blanks for every prize. General Hunter, who has been one of the winners, has been invalided home, and General Tucker, of whom little has been heard during the campaign, has taken his place at Bloemfontein. General Clements who was recently concerned in the serious mishap in the Western Transvaal, has been advanced in military command.

The indication is that Colonei Broadwood has been held responsible by Lord Kitchener for that reverse, and has been ordered home on that account, after having been vindicated by Lord Roberts for the more serious mishap at Sanna's post last spring. The War Office has been playing havoc with military reputations, and is now complaining that the General French, whose ability in the field, Lord Lansdowne seems to think,

has been heavily overrated.

There is no doubt that the Queen's wishes have prevailed, and that Lord
Roberts has consented to the appointment of the Duke of Connaught as Adjutant-General on the expiration of Sir jutant-General on the expiration of Sir Evelyn Wood's term. This appointment will have an important bearing upon the army reforms since it will render it a delicate matter for the members parliament to speak critically of military men while the Queen's son is the chief men while the Queen's son is the chief spirit at headquarters.

The resignation of the Duke of Cam-bridge was desired by the men in parlia-ment of this account and there has been greater freedom of discussion while Lord Wolseley has been in command of
