THE BEET SUGAR INDUSTRY IN CANADA

The production of sugar beets grown for beet sugar in Canada in 1924 according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics was 297,177 tons from 31,111 acres, an average yield per acre of 9.50 tons, as compared with 159,200 tons from 17,941 acres, or an average per acre of 8.87 tons in 1923. The total value of the roots grown in 1924 was $1,704,791, as compared with $1,922,668 in 1923. The total production of refined beetroot sugar in 1924 was 85,770,709 pounds of the value of $6,192,645. In 1923 the corresponding figures were 39,423,160 pounds, of the value of $3,745,200. During 1924 two Canadian sugar beetroot factories were in operation. A third factory has been established at Raymond, Alberta, and will operate for the season 1925-26. The company reports that the acreage planted to sugar beets for this season was well over 6,000 acres and the total production is estimated at 58,000 tons, an average yield per harvested acre of 9.76 tons.

Unto the End

"By the way," said the lawyer who was drawing up the will, "I noticed that you've named six garagemen to be your pallbearers. Would you rather choose some friends with whom you are on better terms?" "No, that is alright," was the quick reply. "Those fellows have carried me so long they might as well finish the job."
