The absence of their endowment was one of the reasons which compelled them to decline entering university federation, and another was the fact that to have removed the college to Toronto would have been to risk the chance of losing the assistance of many friends who would not like to see the institution to which they had subscribed so liberally removed from Kingston. He hoped that the Toronto branch would succeed in raising sufficient to endow s chair; failing that, a tutorship.

DECENTLY AND IN ORDER.-In the church of the strangers at New York every hymn-book has pasted on the inside of its cover a slip bearing the words: "When another enters the pew do not rise but move further along." This little device has accomplished its work; the church is filled at every service to the full extent of its capacity without ostling or disturbance.

GENERAL GRANT AND SMOKING.—At the beginning of his illness in October last General Grant's physicians requested him to confine his smoking to three cigars a day, smoking only the first half of each, which would be comparatively harmless, as the bulk of the nicotine in a cigar is concentrated in the last half smoked. After complying with this advice for a few days, the General voluntarily abandoned smoking altogether, and his abstinence, contrary to expectation, had no bad effect upon his nerves. The irritation of his throat had been greatly increased, if not originally caused, by Nooks, &c.
