GERMANY AND THE U. S. TARIFF

Count Von Kautz Wants to Know About Some Things—Says Trade Mission

Berlin, May 3.—The Reichstag today Count Von Kautz, the Austrian ambassador, interpellated the Government on the subject of the new United States tariff. He asked if the Government would continue the agreement of 1891, and said the Dingley bill implied less the increase of the American customs revenue than the successive ex-

Baron Marchall Von Bieberstein in reply said that as the new United States tariff was a free trade agreement, it would confine his remarks to the measure of the Imperial Chancellor. Prince von Bismarck, to the German sugar trade. After an historical review of the development of Germany's political and commercial relations with the United States, he continued: "It is very true that no treaty exists between the United States and the German Empire. There are, however, treaties of former times with individually named States, especially that of 1825 with Prussia. The latter has repeatedly applied to both sides on the question of the validity and scope, but the matter has never been thoroughly discussed between the two countries. The Federal Government has always adhered to the legal principle of the rights and duties of such treaties, passed by the German Empire. After the foundation of the empire the validity of the treaty of 1825 was expressly recognized by both parties, inasmuch as thereafter rights had been claimed and obligations assumed."

Baron Von Bieberstein further said that when, in 1886, the Imperial Chancellor passed a resolution concerning the Spanish commercial treaty with the United States, Sweden and Denmark were included. When doubts were expressed as to whether the United States was one of those nations, Baron Bismarck declared that question must be answered in the affirmative, because of the existence of the commercial treaty between the individual States, which could not be separated from the empire. Germany, he continued, had not asked for the recognition of her rights from the United States by virtue of the Prussian treaty.

The Minister for Foreign Affairs then explained that there were precedents on the side of the United States. The latter, at the time of the negotiations of the Dingley tariff, had raised objections to the Prussian treaty being still in force. In 1884 the United States treaty of 1825 was recognized by the United States, which was particularly applicable against any kind of differential treatment of the way in which the United States Government to the detriment of the other.

MORLEY MEETS HIS FRIENDS

Being perfectly satisfied that the early-morning sun was a true harbinger of spring, I at once arrayed myself in the best of all spring suits in my possession. I was about to start for my office when I was stopped by a young man who said he was a friend of my father's. He was a young man of about 25, with a self-satisfied chuckle. I remembered down to the kitchen to ask Sophia, who is known hereabouts as my better half, what she had to say about the matter. "Where are you going this morning?" she said. "To the Home Show."

"Well, not exactly, my dear," she said. "Don't stand there darning me," she said. "That's all right, I'll do it myself in your best clothes, hobnobbing with those who can afford it, while I, the slave of the kitchen and your children, sit out on my own. Why did I ever marry such a wretch?"

"To show your good sense, my dear, as well as to let the neighbors see that you had married a man of note—one who in my opinion will shine in—er—er—er."

"I'll tell you what, my dear," she said. "I'll tell you what I'll do. If you will consent to drive around our way each Sunday and take myself and family in your carriage to church, I will vote with you."

Montreal and New York Lines R. M. MELVILLE

When they are free to get a glimpse of the country with its beauty and pure air. Those fortunate enough to have bicycles are able to laugh at the spirit which counts it sin to ride out of town and away along the banks of the river, and off to distant fields and green shady nooks where are resting places in which to sit and drink in the sights and sounds of lovely things in nature to remember during the long hours of the day. In a case of this kind the poor in their untidy homes ought to be a chief consideration for those better situated, especially during the summer, when combined heat and poverty make life so unattractive during the week they must work, and surely if a five-cent fare on Sunday will take even a few of them away for an hour or two from ugly surroundings and unwearying monotony into the fresh air and sunshine of the country, it is a good thing to do. But no; our well-meaning puritans, to whom these things are available every day, and who are a rule get their holidays and poverty make life so unattractive during the week they must work, and surely if a five-cent fare on Sunday will take even a few of them away for an hour or two from ugly surroundings and unwearying monotony into the fresh air and sunshine of the country, it is a good thing to do.

A WOMAN'S PLEA FOR SUNDAY CARS

In the matter of Sunday cars Toronto is incomprehensible; that in a city of such distances there should be no mode of travel except by foot, or by the expensive cab, is in the highest degree absurd. Residence in the extreme north-west and Parkdale in the west are too extensive and well-peopled suburbs; and the city proper is so spread out that it covers many miles. Now, it is not strange that in each of these districts there should be people who wish to see each other on the seventh day and who are prevented from so doing by the great distance and the narrow spirit which prevents all parts of the city from being connected by a line of cars. Just how such a "Sabbath day's journey" on the street cars can be reckoned Sabbath desecration is a mystery for which there seems to be no reasonable explanation. And now that the summer with its heat is drawing near, and those who can afford it are making preparations to get away into the country or to the seaside, if only for a fortnight, there seems to be no hope of change for the thousands who cannot afford to leave even for a day, except on the universal Sabbath.

The Citizens' Sunday Car Association. W. E. BROOK, Chairman. GEO. H. BERTRAM, Vice-President. H. F. WYATT, Secretary.

MANIFESTO. Toronto, April 28th, 1917.

As the voters of Toronto will be called upon shortly to decide whether a Sunday car service shall be permitted or not, the undersigned desire, with all respect for the opinions of others who regard the question differently, to bring to the notice of their fellow-citizens some of the reasons which induce them to favor the proposed Sunday service. They believe: 1. That the changed conditions of modern life, which have increased the population of cities and spread them over large areas, make easy and cheap transportation for the people of large towns on Sundays, as well as week days, an important social and moral consideration. 2. That it will tend to place the poor in the crowded parts of the city on something like an equality with those who can afford carriages or bicycles in maintaining intercourse with their friends, or in getting access with their children to open air and public spaces on the only day on which many families, and especially those of workmen, can enjoy them together. 3. That while the convenience to the public, and particularly to the poor, will be infinitely improved, less labor will be required proportionately for communication throughout the city by a Sunday car service than is at present entailed on coachmen, cabmen and others. 4. That as the employees of the Street Railway Company are prevented by special bylaw from working more than six days in the week, and as the enforcement of this bylaw is under heavy penalties in the hands of the city authorities, it is evident that in this respect, workmen are thoroughly protected. 5. That a Sunday car service will add to the influence and usefulness of churches and Sunday schools by enabling people to attend places of worship for which they have a personal preference, or with which circumstances have given them a strong personal association. 6. That in the opportunities which it gives for church attendance, for social and family intercourse, and for healthy and natural recreation, a Sunday car service will tend to strengthen rather than weaken the moral tone of the community. 7. That, as, in a total vote of 27,311 polled in 1913, over 13,000 residents of Toronto voted for a Sunday car service and 11,000 have again lately petitioned for it, it seems arbitrary on the part of those opposed to such a service to impose, by so small a majority, a restriction on the freedom of citizens as to how they shall spend their leisure time, and to deprive them of their only opponents of Sunday cars are left free to use them or not as they think fit.
