JOE WOOD MAY PLAY

424 466 437 1336

Boston, Feb. 12—One of the first things that Secretary Lane ran across at Red Sox headquarters yesterday after-noon was the signed contract of Pitcher J. Weldon Wyckoff. He said that the terms and all that sort of thing were perfectly O. K., but that he wanted a chance to show the fans of this city that he was "there." Last June Wyckoff came to the Red Sox from the Mackmen. While he has never started a game for the Boston team, he was projected into several and showed no little stuff.

Secretary Lane also announced that the Red Sox may get Joe Wood in line for this year. He said that bristling Harry and "Smokey" Poe had talked things over yesterday and that the "smoke ball" artist had declared that his arm was just as good as even and his arm was just as good as ever and that Frazee declared that Joe externally looked like "almost a million dollars."

This spring he may have a real chance. There is some uncertainty regarding the ability of members of the Red Sox hurling corps to come through and if "Ykes" has the same ambition and stuff that he had last summer he should help Jack Barry considerably this year. Barry thinks pretty well of J. Weldon and will play him as an ace.
