THE DEATH OF PRESIDENT LINCOLN

Gently! gently! for the life blood From its source is flowing fast : And the Martyr's turning homeward To his everlasting rest.

Not a word, a sign or token. Ev'n to her he loved so well: Ah! destroyer thou hast broken Every chance to say Farewell.

Stricken while the gems of glory Glittesed proudly on his brow-Vi hile yet nations rend the story Of the rebels overthrow Stricken while glad shouts of triumph Filled the air and rent the sky-While he sipped sweet drops of pleasure From the cup of Victory.

Bear him gently for his great heart Throbbed with pity for the slaves, Ard he pledged his word to free them Tho' the land was strewn with graves.

Farewell, brave and kindly spirit-Thou hast wen a world's renown; May thy soul with joy inherit Leaven and a glorious crown.
