HAPPIEST OF ALL

There is no time in twenty-four hours when one ought to feel so thoroughly satisfied and content as immediately after a good, hearty meal. And all healthy persons do feel so. The body's demands have been met, and we are easy and comfortable, as though we had paid off an old dun and had money left. We are accessible, humane and goodnatured. Then, if ever, we will grant a request without grumbling. "True benevolence," says a crusty old friend of mine, "is locat in a capable stomach recently Yes, but what of the incapable stomachs, of which there are so many-stomachs that disappoint and plague their ichs, of which there are avoid the necessity of which owners, till the act of feeding, so delightful to others, becomes an act to almost willing to die? Ah, that is quite another thing. These poor souls are they who say, as Miss Wallace says in this letter of hers: "I was no longer to be counted among those who have pleasure in eating. Far from it. ne, I was afraid to eat. I felt the need food, of course—the weakness and what was I to do? The moment I my distress and pain commenced. matter how light the repast was, matter how light the repast was, nor how careful I was not to hurry in taking it, the result was the same. The distress and gnawing pain followed, with iscomfort in the chest and a sense odged there and were irritating me.

"So objectionable and repugnant to me was the act of eating that for days together I didn't touch a morsel of solid food, subsisting entirely on milk and soda water, of wing to this enforced likek of nourishment I got extremely weak and about as thin as I could be. I must not forget to say that this happened to me or rather it began to happen, in July 1886, when I was living at Wellington in Shropshire. It came on, as you may say, gradually and not with any sudden or acute symptoms. I found myself low, languid and tired. Then came the failure of my appetite and the other things have named.

"I took the usual medicines for indi-"I took the usual medicines for indigestion, but they had no good effect. After six months' experience of this kind of misery I read a book about Mother Seigel's Syrup as a remedy for this disease and got a bottle from Mr. Bates, the chemist, in Wellington. Having used it a few days I found great relief, and when I had consumed tree bottlest war. when I had consumed two bottles I was entirely well. Since then I have beartily recommended Mother Seigel's pany friends, who have invariably been cured, as I was. You have my permission to publish my letter, if you desire to do so. (Signed) Minnie Wallace, nurse. The Union Workhouse, Oldham, February 22nd, 1895."

In a communication dated January 8th, 1895, Mrs. Henrietta McCallam, of 40 Downsfield road, Walthamstow, near London, states that her daughter Emma fell ill in the spring of 1886 with the same symptoms described by Miss Wal-lace. She craved for food, yet, when it was placed before her, she turned it was placed before her, she turned from it almost with loathing. "As time went on," so runs the mother's letter, "my daughter became so weak that she could hardle walk. Neither home medicines nor those of the doctors did any good. Her sufferings continued for

'In June, 1894, she began taking Mother Seigel's Syrup, of which we had just read a little book that was left at In a week she was better, and in less than two months she was enjoying better health than ever before. She has since ailed nothing and can eat any kind of food, (Signed) Mrs. Henri-etta McCallam."

"Happy," sings Homer, "were those who fell under the high walls of Troy." Happier are they who have never fallen under the crushing weight of indigestion or dyspepsia. Happier, perhaps, of all are they who have been lifted up by Mother Seigel's remedy and placed where once again they can eat, drink and be And if all these could be gather ed together they would make a greater host than the Greek poet ever dreamed

The Geneva, which carries a crew composed of the pick of the hunters belonging to this port, made a total catch of 892 skins. Of these about 502 were taken off the southern coast, and the remainder in the far north, Atlanta, Ga., May 11.-A special from off the Fairweather grounds, on the Alaskan coast. Many seals were seen in the northern waters, but the weather was too bad to allow of many good hunting days; in fact, Captain O'Leary says there were but two which could be classed as good lowering days. The mate Mellas good lowering days. The mate Mel-ville Collinson, was high man, he having captured 146 seals. He also, has the honor of having made the greatest catch for one day, his boat bringing 43 pelts back to the schooner as a result of one day's work. Steve Baker was close be-hind Collinson, with a total of 130 skins. The Geneva brings the sad news, of the loss of a boat belonging to the schooner Umbrina, with the mate of that vessel, Umbring with the mate of that vessel. Chris McLean, and two boat-pullers. The fatality occurred on April 17th last while the Umbrina was hunting off Yakutat Bay. The unfortunate boat's crew left the vessel about 1 o'clock in the afternoon in search of seals. The sea was running very high and the weather squally. They were seen by a hunter in one of the canoes half an hour after leaving the vessel, but after that they were never seen again. A search was made by some of the Umbrina's canoes, but no trace of the trio or their boat was found, and they were given up as lost. The Geneva reports several of the schooners still absent from port. The Dora Sieward was spoken with 640; Otto, 449; Walter L. This calculation has contributed towards the inauguration of a new line of steamers between British Columbia ports, St. Michaeis and Dawson City. The British-American line, of which Mr. E. W. McGlinis, formerly of the C. P. R., is the general freight and passenger agent, with headquarters at Seattle, has purchased the Garonne, an ex-Orient liner which has seen considerable service as a mail boat in the Med'terranean. The Garonne left London on April 4th direct for Victoria, having on board 500 tons of freight for British Columbia, and 72 passengers, with other 500 tons of freight for Dawson City.

LEGAL INTELLIGENCE. The trial of Carson, vs. F. C. Davidge & Co. was commenced before Mr. Justice Walkem and a jury this morning. Messrs. Archer Martin and W. H. Langley appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. L. P. Duff for the defendant. Mr. Martin opened the case to the jury and said the action was the outcome of the ill-fated attempt of the steamer Bristol to take certain miners and supplies north last August, The plaintiff, who lives at Stellacoom, about 10 miles from Ta-coma, decided to go to the Yukon gold fields, and in August last he went to Tacoma making inquiries about passage and made a bargain with the agency there which claimed to be agents for F. C. Davidge & Co., of Victoria. The arangement made was that he nay $300 and they would take him to Dawson city per steamers Bristol and Eugene. The two ships were to proceed together to St. Michaels and then the Eugene was to take them on to Dawson. In Theoma the plaintiff got a ticket good from Victoria to Dawson, and when he came here the defendants gave him in aveluations. come here the defendants gave him in exchange two separate tickets—Victoria to St. Mochaels and St. Michaels to Dawson. On the 31st of August they left here, but when outside the islands the Eugene act into difficulties and they put into Alerf Bay, where it was decided by the captain of the Bristol to go on with his ship, alone to St. Michaels. The passengers objected to this, and as a result an agreement was signed under which the passengers waived any right which the passengers waived any right they might have for damages if only on to St. Michaels without the Eugene. The plaintiff sues for taken back to Victoria instead of going The plaintiff sues for a return of the $300 and for $1,000 damages, claiming that the agreement was signed under du-ress. The defendants dispute all liability and plead the agreement. They say they issued the ticket to St. Michaels as agents for the Portland-Alaska Trading and Transportation Co. The plaintiff had subpoenaed Mr. Christie of the C.P.R. Telegraph Co. to appear and produce documents, and after uncheon he and his counsel, Mr. Gordon Hunter, appeared and took the objection that the original subpoena was shown Mr. Christic at the time of service, and therefore Mr. Christie was not properly before the court. His Lordship adjourned the triel until 10 a.m. tomerrow, that Mr. Christie might be properly served. Mr. Justice Walkem gave judgment to day in Reddy v. McMahon, restraining the defendant from selling certain portions of Moyie townsite on security being given.

-Mr. Justice Walkem made an order vesterday winding up the affairs of the Columbia Townsite Improvement Co., at the request of the shareholders.
