

A FATHER'S STORY.

He Tells How His Son Regained Health and Strength.

Had His Spine Injured and for Two Years Was Unable to do Any Work and for Most of the Time Was Condemned to the Bed.

Mr. W. J. Whittemore, a well known farmer living at West Point, N.B., writes: "I believe it is only right that I should let you know the benefit of your medicine—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—has been to my son Constant, sixteen years of age. For several years he was almost a constant invalid, the result of an injury to his spine while working with his brothers on the farm. He grew weak and listless, had no appetite, and for two years was unable to work and was for the most of the time confined to the house, and for a part of the time he was bedridden. He suffered considerably from pain in the back; his legs were weak; and he had frequent headaches. At different times he was attended by two doctors, but got no benefit from the treatment. He procured an electric belt for him, but it was simply money wasted as it did not do him a particle of good. One day while my son was reading a newspaper he came across an article telling of a cure in a somewhat similar case through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and he then decided to give them a trial. After the first box was taken there was a marked improvement in his condition. He continued the use of this pill until he had taken eight boxes, and they had restored him to health. His appetite has returned; the pain has left his back; he has gained flesh; is able to ride a bicycle, enjoys life and is able to do a day's work as well as any one of his age. This letter is given gladly as that others may learn the merits of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and find a cure if ailing."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure such cases as the one noted above because they create new, rich, red blood, thus strengthening weak and shattered nerves. They do not purge and weaken, as other medicines, but strengthen from the first dose to the last. Sold by all dealers in medicine or sent post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BRITISH TELEGRAPHERS PRAISED.

Especially Good Work Done by Them in the West in South Africa.

British telegraphers have recently received a good many compliments. The King has thanked them for the services they rendered at the late of Windsor during the last illness of Queen Victoria, and the German Emperor has decorated Charles Mullens, the operator who was sent from London to work the cable laid temporarily from the imperial yacht Hohenzollern to the shore.

The cross bestowed on Mullens is a handsome piece of work. On the front is the imperial monogram W.R., surmounted by a crown, and on the back is an inscription setting forth that the recipient had rendered service to the State. If Mr. Mullens should ever care to settle down in Germany the cross will entitle him to draw a modest pension.

Equally gratifying to the telegraphers is the emphatic testimony to the excellence of their work during the war in South Africa. Field Marshal Lord Roberts, in the few despatches just published in the official London Gazette, says that, despite the enormous difficulties of the campaign, his telegraphers almost always managed to keep him in communication with all his scattered forces in the enemy's country.

Gen. Buller writes of their technical knowledge, their unwavering perseverance and their high state of efficiency, adding "all officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the Telegraph Department have done exceptionally well. The only fault I have to find with them has been that they have been sometimes too anxious to keep their lines up and have incurred undue risk."

Gen. Sir George White declares that the service of the telegraphers during the historic siege of Ladysmith. The use which Gen. Baden Powell made of his small band of telegraphers by this time pretty well known. All his outlying forts and lookout posts, and the lines connected with headquarters, were thus able to receive reports and issue orders in a most efficient manner.

Gen. Baden Powell thus sums up his appreciation of the services of the gallant telegraphers: "Their duties were unending by night as well as by day, and were often of the most gallant telegraphers." Their duties were unending by night as well as by day, and were often of the most gallant telegraphers. SILK MADE OF WOOL PULP.

Remarkable to relate, wool can be utilized for soft, flowing gowns. Wool pulp silk has been long a staple industry in the St. Etienne district of France. By a secret chemical process, the pulp is reduced to a stringy condition. It is then forced into tubes of fine holes, through which it emerges in the form of fine-silk threads. These are speedily dried by being passed through a hot atmosphere and are forthwith wound onto bobbins, ready to be woven into silk.

JAPANESE WOMEN'S COLLEGE.

The rich Japanese family Mitsui has presented an extensive piece of ground near Tokio for the purpose of founding a women's university, writes a Tokio correspondent. Three other Japanese gentlemen have subscribed the sum necessary for erecting university buildings. The work has been started, and it is hoped that the university will be opened in the spring of this year. Many lady students are expected to join, many young Japanese ladies of good family having assisted at the medical and polytechnic studies at the existing Japanese university.

LITTLE GRAIN GROWN IN NORWAY.

Less than one per cent. of the land in Norway is in use for grain fields.

Heiress and Wife.

CHAPTER XXVII.—Continued.

The remark was so unexpected that seemed for a few moments to be unable to reply to it. Looking at the eager, expectant face turned toward him, it appeared ungovernable that he should not give her one affectionate word. Yet he did not know how to say it; he had never spoken a loving word to any one except Daisy, his fair little child-wife.

He tried hard to put the memory of Daisy away from him as he answered: "The question is so important that most probably I thought much about it."

"Oh, that is it," returned Pluma, with a wistful little laugh. "Most men, when they ask women to marry, say something of the sort, don't they?"

"Yes," he replied, absently.

"You have had no experience," laughed Pluma, and she took in our over-sex was sorely disappointed. She had gone over in her own imagination this scene a thousand times, of the supreme moment he would clasp his arms around her, telling her in glowing, passionate words how dearly he loved her and how wretched his life would be without her. He did nothing of the kind.

"Rex was thinking he would have given anything to have been able to make love to her—anything for the power of saying tender words—she looked so lovely."

Her dark, beautiful face was so near him, and her graceful figure so close, that he could have wound his arm around her, but he did not. In spite of every resolve, he thought of Daisy the whole time. How different that other love-making had been! How his heart throbbed, and every-where he could think of trembling on his lips, and he strained Daisy to his heart when she had bashfully consented to be his wife!

That love-making was real substance; this was only the shadow of love just existing in the air.

"You have not answered my question, Pluma. Will you be my wife?" Pluma raised her dark, beautiful face, radiant with the light of love.

"If I consent will you promise to love me better than anything else or any one in the world?"

"I will devote my whole life to you, study your every wish," he answered, eagerly.

How was she to know he had given all his heart to Daisy?

She held out her hands to him with a charming gesture of affection. He took them and kissed them, but he could do neither more or less.

"I will be your wife, Rex," she said with a tremulous, wistful sigh.

"Thank you, Pluma," he returned, gently, bending down and kissing the beautiful crimson lips; "you shall never regret it. You are so kind, I am sorry I impose on your good nature. You have promised me you will be my wife—when may I claim you, Pluma?"

"Do you wish it to be soon?" she asked, hesitatingly, wondering how he would answer.

"Yes," he said, absently, "the sooner the better I shall be pleased."

She looked up into his face, at a glance, and saw that he was serious.

"You shall set the day, Rex," she replied.

He said to her father's consent that it may take place just as soon as possible, in case you promised to marry me, I have no objection to it.

She gave a little scream of surprise. "As soon as that?" she murmured, ended by readily consenting.

He thanked her and kissed her once more, and then he turned to his father, who was seated by the fire, and he said to him: "Dad, I have just said to you that I will marry Pluma."

"How does it feel, son?" he asked, looking at him with a keen eye.

"It feels like a great weight off my heart," he answered, and he said to his father: "Dad, I have just said to you that I will marry Pluma."

"How does it feel, son?" he asked, looking at him with a keen eye.

FIVE DOCTORS FAILED.

IN A SEVERE CASE OF KIDNEY DISEASE AND LAME BACK.

Dodd's Kidney Pills Cure Mr. Anderson, of Waterville, N.B. After Five Medical Men Have Pronounced His Case Absolutely Incurable.

Waterville, N.B., March 18.—Special.—"I have been so often induced to try patent medicines by the reading of the wonderful cures said to have been effected in similar cases, that now when I feel it my duty to write the story of my own cure by the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills, it is a relief to me to do so."

"I have been treated by five different doctors, and have taken a large amount of patent medicines during the last four years, but have not been cured.
