WOMAN and HER WORK.

without counting the cost too much. But for those of more moderate means there is a very wide choice, which will permit them to dress within their means and at the same time be in the height of the fashion. One very radical change, about which there can be no question now, is the return of skirts which are slightly draped. They may not be general, but they will undoubtedly vary the monotony of the pertectly plain skirt. Some of the first Paris dressmakers are showing them. One model recently described consisted of a round skirt of navy blue foulard, apotted with yellow. The foot trimming consisted of two bands of yellow satin ribbon covered with black lace. The skirt was raised a very little on each hip, and showed a petticoat to match which just cleared the ground. A band of the ribbon and lace concealed the belt to which the skirt was sewed, and it was worn over the bodice, while braces to match the belt were attached to it and passed over the shoulders.

Another Paris skirt had two plaits at the centre of the front, forming panier folds at the sides and the back was in two boutfants; an under shirt was slightly shown by the draping. All the leading London and Paris dressmakers have discarded stiftening for skirts, except of course the usual five or six inch facing of canvas and the garment is allowed to hang naturally; when any support is needed, it is supplied by the underskirt.

Skirts of extravagant width, are quite out of style, and those of moderate dimen-garment is allowed to hang naturally; when any support is needed, it is supplied by the underskirt.

Skirts of extravagant width, are quite out of style, and those of moderate dimensions neither too scant, nor too full, are made by the leading modistes. For walking they clear the ground very decidedly, and for indoor wear just touch the floor, all round, for more tormal occasions they are made slightly longer.

If one were asked to designate the fashionable color for the coming autumn and winter, the only answer possible would be black, so popular will that good old standby be; numerous other colors will be worn, it goes without saying but still, for the best dress, the evening dress and the reception gown, it will not be all black but will be relieved with Jacquemenot, with crimson, canary blue and most of all with white for evening wear, and the number of soft billowy flounces which appear in black materials is perfectly bewildering. Black net, black lisse, black crepon and even black velvet is seen made up into flounces and for evening wear many of them are bordered with white lace.

In bodices, the blouse has become so popular, that it is frequently seen in evening dresses, ms le of course over a perfectly fitted lining which is usually of silk or satin, and the over draping of chiffon, silk, gauze or crepon. The sleeves of such bodices are little else than a collection of flunness or pulfs. Many of the newest sleeves show three carefully arranged pulfs—a small one just below the shoulder, then a very large full one reaching to just above the elbow, and another, the same size of the shoulder pulf, directly on the bend of the elbow. A very plain, tight culf from the elbow down, finishes the sleeve. Another new sleeve has no less than five flounces all of the same width between the elbow; each flounce is edged with narrow gimp, and from the elbow to the wrist is a series of graduated pulfs four in number, separated by bands of gimp insertion.

One of the oddest fancies of the season is the full Eliz betthan r bow to the wrist is a series of graduated puffs four in number, separated by bands of gimp insertion.

One of the oddest tancies of the season is the full Eliz bethan ruff of plaited slik muslin edged with white lace, which reaches quite up to the ears of the wearer, entirely conceals her neck, and is just as quaint and charming, as it is uncomfortable.

As for materials it is hardly necessary to say that serge will be very much worn, because it is always very much worn, but this year it will divide the favor with the now so called rough goods, which are really delightfully soft and pliable. These come in in all shades, and all varieties; Scotch heather, mixed cheviots, and the boucle goods which show queer little silky tutts and curls scattered over their surface. Most of these come in odd, bright colors very much mixed, and in the piece they are far from pretty, though when they are tashioned into tailor made suits they are stylish, and very elegant. The shot cheviots are the heaviest, but to me they have a strangely common look, which wears away insensibly the moment you glance at the price card, then you know they are very far from being common.

There are many varieties of basketcloth or hopsacking as it is called, and another popular fabric is whipcord, a sort of diagonal weave which is yet not a serge. In short the choice is almost endless, and the prices vary to suit all purses.

Nesselrode Pudding.

One pint of chestnuts, one pint of sugar, one pint of boiling water, one pound of French candied fruit (mixed), one pint of almonds, one pint of cream, one pineapple or one pint of canned, yolks of six eggs. Shell the chestnuts, take off the brown skin, put them in a saucepan, cover with boiling water and boil twenty minutes, then press them through a colander. Shell blanch and pound the almonds. Cut the fruit into small pieces. Put the water and sugar on to boil let it boil fitteen minutes. Beat the yolks of the eggs until very light; add them to the boiling syrup; stir over the fire until it boils, then take it off and beat with a wire spoon until old. Now add the fruit, cream almonds, chestnuts and a tablespoonful of vanilla, and if you use wine four tablespoonfuls of sherry. Mix

Peach Short Cake.

Use canned peaches and prepared flour for this dish. Chop quarter of a pound of butter into a quart of prepared flour; quickly stir into it enough sweet milk to make a soft dough; put this into two round cakes upon buttered tin pie plates and predicted that Louis XIII styles, which of course are eminently suited to display the beauty of the new brocades, and velvets, will be extensively adopted by those who are able to indulge their fancy without counting the cost too much. But for those of more moderate means there is a very wide choice, which will permit them to dress within their means and at the same time be in the height of the fashion. Eggs In Brown Butter.

Break six eggs, one at a time, into a saucer, and slipp them off into a hot fryingpan containing butter and lard mixed in equal proportions. Cook about three minutes, remove to a hot platter and pour over them the following sauce: Heat together one teaspoonful of tarragon vinegar, one tablespoonful of chili sauce, one teaspoonful of lemon juice and one saltspoonfuls of butter and strain into the hot liquid. If the above seasonings are not at hand, brown the butter, add one tablespoonful of cider vinegar and strain over the eggs.

Apple Jelly.

Apple Jelly. Apple Jelly.

Take juicy apples, remove the stems and tops and wash carefully, cut in quarters and enough cold water on them to just cover; boil soft, and let them drain through a jelly bag. To each pint of juice allow a pound of white sugar, boil twenty minutes, and do not mind if it does not jelly very firmly at first. it will be all right in a short time, and perfectly firm when you want to turn it out.

Fried Towasces with Cream Grant

Fried Tomatoes with Cream Gravy Wash and wipe large ripe tomatoes, and cut them in slices halt an inch in thickness; season with pepper and salt and fry them in sweet dripping, or half butter and half lard. When they are all done, dish them, and dust a little flour in the pan, pour in a teacup of rich cream or tinned milk, give a boil-up, pour over the tomatoes and serve. This is a nice breakfast-dish.

Chili Sauce. Take twenty-lour ripe tomatoes, one large onion, one-half cup of sugar, one quart of vinegar, ten green or ripe peppers, two tablespoonfuls of salt, and one tablespoonlul each of allspice, ginger and cloves. Chop the tomatoes, peppers and onion tine and simmer two hours.

London's Feminine Stock Broker.

Amy F. Bell has been for several years' a stock broker in London, She has an office hard by the Stock Exchange, and does a large business, especially among women clients. Her peculiar aptness for the profession was shown when she was a little child. An old gentleman, a visitor at Miss Bell's home, happened one day to be diligently reading the money article in the Times. He was in no mood to be interrupted, so he said to the child when she hung around him: "Hun away, little girl! I am busy with my lessons, and you must go to yours." "Yes." said little MissAmy, but what's your lessons is my play!" For it is the highest recreation of the infant phenomenon to study the stock quotations.
