GOSSIP.

The famous Shorthorn herd of the late Mr. W. S. Marr, Uppermill, Aberdeen-shire, Scotland, is to be dispersed by auction in October. This will be quite the event of the Shorthorn world in 1904.

THE FAVORITE DAIRY BREED IN ILLINOIS.

In an address before the American Holstein-Friesian Association, at Syracuse, June 1st, 1904, Prof. W. J. Fraser, of the University of Illinois, made the following statement regarding this breed: "The Holstein-Friesian is well adapted to economically converting into milk the large quantities of rough feed which we grow on our farms. As it takes numbers to carry on breeding operations successfully, we were compelled at the University of Illinois to confine our attention in this particular to one kind of dairy cattle, and keep only specimens of the other breeds. We selected Holstein-Friesians for our breeding operations for the same reason that they are selected by so many dairymen in the dairy sections of our State—because they are strong, hardy cattle, not subject to disease or disorder, have strong calves, which are easily raised on skim milk, and are economical milk-producers, since they are capable of consuming large quantities of rough feed, which is the cheap feed of our farms. For these reasons they have been in recent years and are still rapidly gaining in favor in the dairy sections of Illinois." At another point in his address, Prof. Fraser said: "In traveling over Holland, I was much impressed with the general good quality of the cows in the average producing herd. I think any of you who have visited Holland will bear me out in the statement that the average cows in that country are very far ahead of the average cows here."—G. W. Clemons, Secretary.

THAT SILO.

It is not supposed that the world at large knows anything of your New Year's resolutions, for it is likely you make them privately; so the breaking of them will be no public matter. Or you may belong to that other class that makes good resolutions in public and quietly breaks them in private. However it may be with you in either case, if you are a dairyman and have no silo, I suppose when you took an inventory of feed on hand and the hungry mouths to eat it about the time of making resolutions, one of these resolutions as affecting the better methods of farming, was to build a silo "next spring." Did you hold yourself right down to both the spirit and the letter of the promise?

The promise said "next spring." That's the time to build it, if you failed to do so "this spring." Start with the season and don't let the promise be relaxed. Work crowds when the spring-time actually comes. If you make a good start early you will then go ahead just for your pride's sake. Many silos are accidents—had to be built or bought in a hurry to save a damaged or late crop or something of that kind. Let yours be a premeditated, reasoned-out affair. Make up your mind where you want to put it for convenience of filling and convenience of feeding from. Give yourself plenty of driving room at filling time. Don't hamper so there will be any fooling getting in or waste of time and power backing out. Then make it very handy and easy for the feeding.

Reduce labor to the minimum, and you'll do it or get it done better. Men resent unnecessary work. Don't decide on the location in a hurry. Look at all these points and keep in mind that very soon you may want to build another, and make some account of how they will look and work together.

Take your wife and go make a visit to some fellow who has a good silo and is making it pay. Ask him questions to confirm your intention to build a silo, not to discourage yourself and antagonize him. In the early days when men came to see my silos I told them all I could if they were straight. If they were pessimists and were inclined to find fault with the whole system, and count up to me how many silos they knew not in use, I shut up tight as an oyster and let them be a clam.

The silo's all right if you are; if you're not, it's a bad show for the new resolutions.—[Ex.]
