QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. Miscellaneous.

BLACK JOANETTE OATS.

Would you mention in your paper that if anyone had the Black Joannette oats for sale, to please advertise them in "The Farmer's Advocate"? Do you think they are a good kind? J. C. W.

Ans.—The Black Joannette oat is supposed to be a pretty heavy-yielding variety on rich land, and the grain has a small percentage of hull, but the variety is not recommended for poor land. It has been tried on some of the good loam farms in East Middlesex without proving so satisfactory as certain other varieties. The straw is very fine and rather weak, while the grain is inclined to shell readily in harvesting, and to hull in threshing.

FILLY HAS WORMS—SWOLLEN FETLOCK.

1. Have year-old filly which stocks in left hind leg at fetlock joint; a half-hour's exercise takes swelling down.

2. She also has large worms. Colt is fed half-gallon oats twice per day, and handful linseed meal, and timothy hay. Kindly advise on these points. K. B.

Ans.—1. It is difficult to say if anything is the matter with the filly other than a lack of exercise. Plenty of exercise regularly should remedy this trouble; if not, bathe with hot, then cold, water, and apply a good liniment.

2. Take three-tenths dram each sulphate of iron and sulphate of copper, tartar emetic and calomel. Mix and make into 12 powders. Give a powder every night and morning. After the last one has been taken, feed nothing but bran for 12 hours, then give a purgative of about 8 ounces of raw linseed oil.

PARALYSIS—WORMS—SPLINTS.

1. Have a young brood sow that seems to have something wrong in her hind quarters. She will stand around and squeal, then gradually her hind quarters go over sideways, then she throws herself often. Her appetite is all right.

2. A mare in foal has worms.

3. A colt coming two years has two lumps on legs, one on front between knee and fetlock, and one on hind leg.

FARMER.
Ans.—1. This is probably partial paralysis, which may have been caused by a chill. Keep in dry, warm quarters. Purge her with six ounces of raw linseed oil, and follow up with 20 grains nux vomica, three times daily, in warm milk or other feed. It may be muscular rheumatism, and it would be well, in addition, to apply freely to the loin and hips spirits of turpentine or mustard.

2. Take six ounces each of sulphate of iron, sulphate of copper, and calomel. Mix and make into 48 powders. Give a powder every night and morning in damp food.

3. These are probably splints, which, in many cases, disappear by absorption, and this can be hastened by repeated mild blisterings.

ASPARAGUS-GROWING.

Will you, or some of your readers who have had experience, kindly give cultural directions for asparagus for the home garden? D. W. H.

Ans.—The method now recommended by many successful growers, is to plow or dig a trench 14 to 16 inches deep, putting 3 or 4 inches well-rotted manure in the bottom, well tramped down, and covered with 3 or 4 inches good garden soil. Spread out the roots of the plants well, and set, covering with soil firmly to level of garden, leaving the crown of plants about 4 or 5 inches below surface. If the soil is stiff and heavy, put plenty of mellow, fibrous loam in the trench. Procure one-year-old plants for setting, if possible. The crop may be cut a little the second year, but should cease about June or July. Insert the knife vertically, so as not to injure the crowns. Keep clean and clear off tops and weeds in fall, and apply 3 or 4 inches well-rotted manure as a top dressing or mulch to be forked in in the spring. Many leave the tops for protection. Nitrate of soda at the rate of 200 lbs. per acre, is advised by expert gardeners, and liberal applications of salt are all but universal. Two rows twenty feet long and three feet apart, well cared for, will give a good-sized family all they want of this delicious and wholesome vegetable. Conover Colossal is a good variety.
