PRACTICAL SURVEY. Topic. The gift of a goodly child.

II. The season of a spirtual revelation II. The season of a spiritual revelation.

I. The occasion of a spiritual awakening. A! the birth of John there was a grateful acknowledgment of God's goodness in giving Elizabeth a son, Neighbors and relatives rejoiced with her. No doubtful thought seems to have crossed the mind of Elizabeth; no inergedulous expression fell from her lips. Her joy was complete when her reproach was removed. The vision of Zacharias and his subsequent dumbness had likely excited. subsequent dumbness had likely excited much inquiry. The birth of John set a seal upon the reality of his vision, but none know so well as Zacharias the real meaning of his dambness. He had been surprised at the answer to his own prayers. God's faithfuness brought his in consistency to light. For the troubled thoughts that perplexed him, and the fear that fell upon him, when the angel apepared, standing at the right hand of the altar, there was no rebuke, but to crave a sign that a promise should be fulfilled evidenced a distrust of him who promised. Doubt required a strong corrective. Zacharias is a striking example of the ille a good man may have corrective. Zacharias is a striking example of the ills a good man may have to suffer as the result of unbelief. For want of faith he lost his speech, yet judgment was tempered with mercy. Though he was chastened he was given the blessing It was a wonderful message that he was to be the fatler of a child great in the sight of the Lord, one who would in the sight of the Lord, one who would minister in the spirit and power of Ed-jah, and become the forerunner of the Messiah. As Zacharias stood upon the threshold of the gospel dispensation and was first among those who heard the glad tidings, since he expressed unbelief, it was necessary that he should be re-proved. But we see how much his spiritual life and his insight into the divine plan of salvation had increased during the months of silence wheth followed his reception of the angel's message. His definite answer as to the infant's name proved this, and then the chastisement was lifted, and then came the awakening among the people. The whole event took on a new meaning.

II. The season of a spiritual revelation. It was a remarkability of the season of the season of a spiritual revelation.

tion. It was a remarkable occasion in the home of Zacharias and Elizabeth. Their joy knew no bounds. The glad father praised God for His judgment father praised God for His judgment on him, and for His merey in the gift of a godly child. Deep humility took the place of blind unbelief. The Holy Spirit as a spirit of prophecy filled him. The silence of unbelief was exchanged for the song of praise. The light of the gospel was a gleam of the light of heaven. The new covenant was greeted with joyful praise, a contract to the fear and terror accompanying the introduction of the old. Zacharias grasped the pian of recumption as it unfolded in a spiritual revelation to him. It embraced spiritual emancipation, filial servee, perpiritual emancipation, filial servce, perfeet character and perseverance to the end. He regarded every word of God as sure and certan because it was His as sure and certan because it was His word. He regarded the advent of his son as a part in the great plan of introducing the gospel dispensation to a needy world. It was meet that the Sun of Righteousness should have His morning star, John, as herald of the dawn, and Jesus, the Messish, the Sure dawn, and Jesus, the Messiah, the Sun of Righteousness, whose presence constitutes the day, should himself become the dayspring of light to the darkened soul. His coming should be for the banishment of sin and the introduction of all righteousness the binding of the property Such an unfolding to the soul of the hitherto silent Zacharias could not be restrained. DRESSING MARKET FOWLS. The ordinary market chicken has, of of course, been properly killed, bled and picked. But there is a fancy trade that demands further work upon the carcass, and this work is described in a bulletin of the Iowa experimental staoulletin of the Iowa experimental station. The resulting product often retails for 50 cents a pound. After a thorough singeing of the small hairlike feathers, remove the tendons from the drumsticks and cut off the shanks at the hocks, leaving half an inch of the shank skin. Next cut off the neck, leaving skin and head still attached. Then loosen the crop and gullet from the gizzard, pull out the windpipe, cut the skin and remove the head. Placing the bisso on its rump, fold back the neck skin, scrape tion. The resulting product often retails, (By "Farm Poultryman.")
