COLONIAL RELATIONS

Ar. Chamberlain Discusses the Imperial Question.

Characterizes Denial of Colonial Offer of Preference As Contemptible Quibbling and States Sir Wilfrid's Offer in His Own Words-Declares That Question of Tariff Reform, Once Raised, Will

London, Dec. 16.—(C. A. P.)—Jo-meph Chamberlain addressed a meet-ing of London east enders last night. C. A. Pearson, the well known night. C. A. Pearson, the well known newspaper proprietor, presided. The hall was filled to overflowing and an immense gathering outside showed a disposition to create a hostile demonstration of the unemployed, who paraded in front of the huilding and greeted Mr. Chamberlain on his arrival with groans. This was offset by the recention of the audience in the the reception of the audience in the interior of the building. Mr. Chamberlain, who was greeted with cheering, which lasted several minutes, when he rose, devoted his speech largely to a discussion of the fiscal cuestion. question. Mr. Chamberlain spoke two hours.

Dealing with the Imperial question, Mr. Chamberlain asked "what were our future relations with the colonies to be?" He felt most deeply because he believed it was most urg-ent. If we did not grasp the oppor-tunity then the sceptre of our dominions passed from our hand, and we should be held responsible by our descendants. Sixty years 'ago the colonies were in their infancy; they were so far distant that they were were so far distant that they were almost out of the minds of the statesmen of the day. The idea that they should ever combine into one great Empire would have been laugh-ed at as distinctly impracticable; now the great majority of the people of the land have no dearer wish than to bring all the men of British race into one great organized union. He went on to say that Great Britain, great as she is, is not great or rich enough to bear alone the whole burden of the vast fabric of the Empire built up by our ancestors. The Empire was now supported by the ties of sentiment alone. It was the ties of sentiment alone. It was inconcervable that the ties of sentiment would be enough in the time of crisis which was contingent with new Empires springing up. His opponents seemed absolutely incapable of understanding the colonial question. It was not a question of the loyalty of the colonies which he sometimes thought war more loval to us than thought "were more loyal to us than we were to them." It was a question of organization.

Should Be Bound Together. The colonial Governments consider-ed this to be the great problem, and had come to the conclusion that while the union which has existed while the union which has existed for the last 50 years was sufficient in the infancy of the colonies, es-pecially if the whole question of union was to prepare the way for a separation it was altogether insuf-ficient if Britons throughout the world are to rise to the splendid conception of a united family of kinconception of a united family of kin dred states. It was necessary for the existence of the Empire that every part could count on the support of the others when mutual interests were threatened. He was disappointed in Lord Rosebery, who did not act up to his speeches, but retired to his tent in the time of crisis and scoffed at those doing the work. If Lord Rosebery had been willing to lead us effectively he would have found no more loyal follower than himself.

During his long stay at the colon ful office he had more opportunities than most men of meeting distin-guished colonial statesmen. The question of closer union was one which interested them, and most of them showed their sincerity by offering a preference on most articles we desired to send them voluntarily and without asking any return. It was mean, contemptible and unworthy for some members of the oppositi to say now they are seeking gain at the expense of Great Britain, some personal advantage for themselves. Instead of that they gave us all that they thought was fair to their own ecple without seeking anything in Laurier's Offer.

More than that, they had made us another offer, "I use the word advisedly," proceeded Mr. Chamber-lain, "because there had been some contemptible quibbling on the part contemptible quibbling on the part of some Opposition speeches as to whether there was an offer or not—quibbling which, though childish, is insulting to the colonies, and may promote mischief. I will give the of fer in the words of Sir Wilfrid Laurier himself, whom now forsooth, the free importers are claiming as a supporter of their own selfish policy. Just before the recent elections he said, 'My vindication of our preference policy was given not at Ottawa, but in the heart of the cupire, when I declared that I and my Governmental colleagues were ready to make a trade treaty.' What Sir Willrid Laurier said was, 'we are Wilfrid Laurier said was, 'we are willing to discuss with you the ar-ticles on which we can give you a preference, and the articles on which you can give us a preference.' That was Sir Wilfrid's offer and it has been confirmed by other Premiers. Will Never Die.

Mr. Chamberlain went on to say that Great Britain should not have lost a moment in accepting this of-fer, at the same time warning his audience that there were other naaudience that there were other nations not so pedantic, wanting to step into our place. He said the Prime Minister was as anxious as himself to secure the objects for which he was working. He welcomed a free and unrestricted conference to discuss the question of preference or any other subject the people of the colomes may desire to bring up. In conclusion, Mr. Chamberlain said he was told his policy was discredited and defeated and he himself demolished, pulverized and smashed. He efrained from prophecying, but whether the Liberal party was vic-orious or not at the next election, the question of tariff reform, once

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

If absorbs the injurious gases which

A Buffalo physician in speakin against the Detroit team, the leading ly Darrell's, for Peck scored a third goal which was not considered by the referce, atthough Mr. Beeman referred very efficiently and acted "on the square" as far as was possible. During the last half Clarke in goal was forced by one of the Darrell rushers to retire from the field and Jackman substituted very satisfactorily, too. Darrell are still legally the champions of the Peninsular League for the fall of 1904, and legally remain as champions until they are defeated. Detroit have been challenged to play and there is only one reason why they don't accept such. At any rate the stars of the Yankee team are Canadians so their might of glory remains with Canada.

VARICOCELE & STRICTURE

No other disease is so prevalent among men as Varicocele. As it interferes with the nutrition of the sexual organs it produces weakness, loss of semen through the urine, decay of the organs, pains in the loins, aching in the back, nervousness, despondency, bashtuiness, palpitation of the reconstitution, and a combination of these results in complete LOSS OF MANHOOD. Thousands of young and middle-aged men are troubled with STRICTURE. If you have reason to believe you are affilieted with it, don't neglect it. It will ruin you. Don't let doctors experiment on you by cutting, stretching or tearing it. Our MEW METHOD TREATMENT dissolves the stricture tissue, hence it disappears and can never return. We cure Varicocele and Stricture without operation or loss of time. The treatment may be taken at home privately. Send for our Free Illustrated Book on VARICOCELE and STRICTURE. WE GUARANTEE TO CURE OR NO PAY.
