ATTEMPTED MURDER. Shooting Affray on Ship-Board at Goderich.

A man named John Burns, first mate of the school or Midland Rover, arrived at the General Hospital in this city last night from Goderich, with one bullet in his neck and another in his right arm. The and another in his right arm. The wounded man was sent to No. 5 ward, where he lies awaiting the extraction, if possible, of the bullets. He states that about seven o'clock yesterday morning a dispute arose between himaelf and Thomas Sheridan, second mate of the Rover, while she was lying in Goderich harbour, and that the latter getting into a great rate into the

He fired two shots at him in rapid succession, the first ledging in the back of his neek and the other entering the outer side of the right foreaum. It is alleged, on the other hand, that the wounded man was the aggressor, inasmuch as he threatened Sheridan with a handspike before the shets were fired at him. An effort will be made to-day to extract the bullets, which the patient says give him little or no pain; and this is probable, because he was sleeping comfertably between eleven and twelve o'clock last night. Both men are from Chicago, but as the offence was committed in a Chandian port, Sheridan, who was taken into custody upon delivering himself to the police authorities, will have to stand his trial at Goderich, where he is from the Bishop of Ossory (Gillooly) which says:—

Your charity is indeed inexhaustible. You are proving your love for Ireland, and proving it to the end, and what can I say to your lordship-for myself and my clergy and my poor suffering ficet, except to assure you again that your lordship and those whose alms you have ministered to us shall be ever gratefully remembered by us before God. Your present help comes most opportunely when the distriction. We shall have a hard struggle during the next six weeks wish hunger and sickness, but I have great hope that the generous help that is still coming in to us from abroad will carry us through our difficulties. The weather is, thank God, most favourable for the crops, and so far they give promise of an early and abundant harvest. This prospect cheers our poor hopeful people, and keeps up the courage of the relief committee as well.

IRISH COMPENSATION BILL.

Lively Discussion in the House of Commons.

MR. CLADSTONE'S LAST AMENDATENT,

The Measure Passed Through Committee.

Mr. Paruell and his immediate followers came is to collision with the majority of the Irish members, who are supported by the Government and the English members, over the clause of the Irish Distress bill on Monday night. The struggle was protracted until daybreak on Tuesday morning, when the Government surrendered at discretion, in view of the determined hostility of Mr. Parnell and his sixteen supporters. Thirty-one Irish members aupporterst. Thirty-one Irish members voted with the Government. Mr. Parnell's attitude is strongly denounced by Home Rule members of Liberal proclivities. No further opposition was offered to the progress of the bill, which passed through the Committee stage.

Lendon, Judy 13.—The Times understands that Rady Butdett Coutts, who has been negotiating for an estate in Ireland, relinquished her intention in consequence of the unsatisfactory relations between landlord and tenant likely to tween landlord and tenant likely to-arise from Mrt Forster's bill. After Mr. Gladstone's statement in the House last night the Irish members almost unanimously expressed opposition to the amendment to the compensation bill. He then gave notice of an amendment which removes to a great extent the objection to the Attorney General's clause, which will be withdrawn.

ME. GLADSTONE'S AMENDMENT. The Times, commenting on Mr. Glad-stone's amendment to Mr. Forster's Com-pensation for Disturbance bill, says: pensation for Disturbance bill, says:

It is apparent these strange sudden modifications of the bill recommended 20 Parliament on the ground of turgency will not tend to impress either House with the conviction that the measure is one which must be passed instantly, and at any cost and risk. The public and Parliament, and mere especially the House of Lords, will conclude that Ministers cannot be very sure of their footing when they offer three different proposals. The Attorney-Generally proposal has been thrown overloand as unexpectedly as it was produced. Mr. Gladstone's amendment, which will be substituted for it, takes away the means provided for the landlords to protest themselves from penal consequences. The bill leaves everything to be determined by the County Court Judge. The element of uncertainty thus becomes as formidable as it was in the original bill.

LIVELY DEBATE IN THE HOUSE, In the House of Commons this evening there was a very lively discussion in restricting the operation of the bill to-holding of £15 yearly and under. To this Mr. Gladstone demurred, but offered to fix-the maximum at £30. This concession Mr. Parnell and the other Irish members violently opposed until the House ad journed without deciding the question.

ATTITUDE OF THE IRISH PARTY, At a meeting of the Irish party last-night, it was unanimously resolved that Mr. Gladstone's amendment limiting the-Mr. Gladstone's amendment limiting the operations of the Compensation Bill to tenants paying 30 pounds and under destroys nearly all the usefulness of the measure, and renders it dangerous to the existence of small tenants by affording further inducements to landlords to consolidate holdings. The meeting also resolved to move to report progress when the bill is again discussed in order to afford time to the tenant favorers. order to afford time to the tenant farmers to consider whether they will accept the

CAPTAIN BARY'S STATEMENT

PORT HURON, July 12.—The steam barge G. D. Marsh, of Sandusky, and prop City of St. Catherines collided o'? Forestville this moraing at three collided o'? Forestville this moraing at three collided. The latter sunk in three fathoms of water. Captain Hart, of the Marsh, gives the following account of the accident, by saying that he was out sing down the lake with salt from New Riyer to Fre emont, Ohio, about two miles from shore when he saw the prop approach, bound up, showing a gre an light. When very near together, the prop ported his wheel and ran across his bow. The Marsh was checked down, when she struck the O's yo St. Catharines forward of the for ward gangvay on the port side, cutting her to the water's edge. There were thirty passungers and crew on the prop, who were taken on the Marsh and afterwards transferred to the prop D W Rust, who towed the Marsh to this port, arriving here of the upper cabins, and had a general cargo of west-bound freight for Chicago. The damage to the Marsh amounts to the loss of her stem and light work forward. She is leaking. Some of her cargo is being taken off to get the leak a cove water, when repairs will be made without going in the day dock. The passengers and crew of the St. Catharines are now in Sarnia.

Our monthly cattle air was not sol argely attended, owing to the armars being busy outling fall wheat; yet there was a good number of milest, cows, pigs and grass cattle on the grounds, which readily sold at good prices.
