Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help.

KIT CARSON. Feet of Which the Hardy Frontiersmen Had No Recollection. One of the most noted of the hardy western frontiersmen was Kit Carson, to whom, with Daniel Boone, belongs the credit of having always dealt fairly with the various Indian tribes, as they themselves acknowledged. The withdrawal of Carson by the government was the cause of a great war. Captain Henry Inman in his book, 'The Old Santa Fe Trail,' relates an amusing incident of the gallant pioneer. My own conception of Kit Carson as a child was that he was ten feet high, that it would have required the strength of two men to lift his rifle, that he usually drank a river dry and sicked the carcass of a whole buffalo clean as easily as a lady does the wing of a quail. Years after, when I made the acquaintance of the foremost frontiersman, I found him a delicate, thin, under-sized, wiry man, the very opposite type of what my childish brain had created. One day while Kit was at the fort I came across a periodical that had a full page illustration of a scene in a forest. In the foreground stood a gigantic figure dressed in the traditional buckskin. On one arm rested an immense rifle. His other arm was around the waist of the conventional female of such sensational journals, while in front half a dozen Indians lay prone, evidently slain by the hero in the impossible attire in defense of the preposterous female. The legend stated how all this had been effected by Kit Carson. I handed it to Kit. He wiped his spectacles, studied the picture intently for a few seconds and then said: 'Gentlemen, that that may be true, but I hain't got no recollection of it.'

A JOURNALISTIC HOAX. Trick the Harvard Lampoon Played on the Crimson. Speaking of the Crimson, Harvard's daily newspaper, reminds every Harvard man of the Lampoon's master stroke-or joke-played on that dignified and unsuspecting sheet on Memorial day, 1901. The Crimson had announced that it would not appear on that holiday, but, inconspicuously, a few were surprised to find their Crimson at their door that morning as usual. Their surprise began, however, when they scanned its contents. This always serious sheet seemed to have become most frivolous and irresponsible during the night, for in its columns all sorts of wild and fantastic statements appeared. The news, though clothed in the usual heavy, dignified Crimson style, was wildly revolutionary in character. Among the items that appeared were: 'Plot to Blow Up Memorial Hall,' 'Strong Men to Get the Varsity H,' 'Wellesley Crew to Be Guests of the University' and most important of all a notice, 'Lampoon Celebration at 7 Tonight.' Then the joke came out. The Lampoon had published the famous 'The Crimson' joke, the joke was known throughout the country, and that night Lampy's sanctum was the scene of bacchanalian revelry. When the following year the Crimson editors sat up all night with injunctions against a repetition of the fake the joke was again on them, for Lampy differs from history in that he never repeats himself.-K. B. Townsend in Bohemian.

Mississippi Oratory. Jasper county has been noted for the high grade of eloquence produced by the public men of that part of Mississippi. An appeal to the 'mighty men of Jasper' made by one of that county's great men when a candidate to the voters who elected him is as follows: 'Mighty men of Jasper, if I can be instrumental in the hands of my people in adding a few jewels to those that now shine in imperishable luster on the queenly brow of our proud commonwealth, whose associated radiance, like the lambent beauty of the star, is to guide the footsteps of her children along the paths of peace and prosperity, security and happiness, I shall then have accomplished the ambition of my life.'

Superlative Beauty. A Swedish newspaper recently invited its readers to state in a few words what they considered the most beautiful thing in the world. The first prize was carried off by an anonymous answer, 'The eyes of my mother.' More imaginative was the reader who won the next prize by suggesting, 'The dream of that which we know to be impossible.' The most amusing answer was that which read, 'The most beautiful thing in the world is to see a man carrying his mother-in-law across a dangerous river without making any attempt to drop her in.'

Proved Useful. 'The you was HERE, was you speaking like I am to make you good, papa?' 'I was, my son, and speaked hard too.' 'You you can't fool me no more, because if it didn't make you good it won't make me good.'
