Allies Will Stand No More Fooling From the Huns

Germany is Given to Understand That the Allies Intend to Stand No Further Putting Off Or Fooling

The Huns Are Ordered to Proceed at Once With the Carrying Out of the Terms of the Treaty of Versailles.

SAN REMO, April 27—The agreement of the allied powers finds its first expression in a note to the German Government. The allies say they are determined the treaty shall be executed and they indicate that Germany has not so far kept certain important engagements. They recognize that there have been difficulties, both of the military and economic order. They propose a meeting to be held May 25, not at Brussels, but at Spa, when the German Government can make any representations it wishes. At the same time, Germany is assured that France has no desire to annex any territory.

Jack Loney Got a Knockout In Tenth Round Last Night In His Go With Brennan

Buffalo, N. Y., April 26—Jack Loney, a promising boxer, but who was badly hurt, saved him further when he was knocked out in the tenth round, after doing out severe punishment to the Canadian, who took it gamely. For three rounds Loney puzzled and nettled Brennan by his awkward shiftness leaping in and reaching Kayo with long, falling lefts and beating him to the job. Brennan shifted his attack to the body after the fourth and his pleading punches wore Loney down. Several times it appeared the

Will Preserve Picture of Man Who Asked $5 a Bush. for Spuds

WELLAND, April 27—A unique snapshot ere long will find an honored place in the family album of a certain resident in these parts. The subject was not a willing siter—or stander. He was snapped only after being driven to bay at the end of an exciting chase in and about and over and under a mass of farm waggons parked about the market here today. The camera-shy one was "The man who had the nerve to ask five dollars per bushel for potatoes," and the hunter who got him was an irate townsman, who if he could not have his life was at least determined to have his picture. The townsman on his first attempt to buy potatoes was shocked to hear them quoted at $4.50 and went farther, hoping to fare better. Thus it was that he came on the "Five-dollar Man," and his indignation knew no bounds. "Robber" (this was one of his mildest terms) I am going to get a camera and take your picture," he cried. "Men like you deserve to have their features preserved to posterity." He made good his threat, but the picture was filmed only after the farmer had been pursued and cornered.

Mass Meeting of the Women of This City Declares For the Boycott of Potato Buying

Those Who Have Potatoes Stored in Their Cellars Are Asked to Give Them Out at Reasonable Prices to Those Who Are Not So Fortunate.

Over two hundred women of the city representing all classes, society leaders, women who work mechanics wives, wives of merchants, at a mass meeting yesterday afternoon in the Standard Hall pledged themselves to buy no potatoes for a month except for seeding purposes. There was much enthusiasm at the meeting and a determination shown by every woman present to carry this boycott through successfully.

"Some years ago," said Mrs. A. H. Malcolmson who occupied the chair, "We used to look upon a boycott as being associated with rather violent people, but things have so changed today that we find we must associate ourselves in some degree with these violent methods." It was decided to get in touch with the heads of all women's organizations, in churches and outside and request that they call on their members to participate in the boycott. The women at the meeting likewise agreed to write chain letters so as to get the boycott advertised. The newspapers were also asked to assist. It was decided to ask the hotelkeepers and restaurant keepers to serve potatoes only once a day. It was felt that to ask that no potatoes be put on the bill of fare at all would be asking a favor that would not be granted. Those lucky persons who have potatoes in their cellars will be asked to sell them at a fair price to others who are not so fortunate.

A Man Found Who Has Been Sleeping in Hollow Log; Probably Escaped Lunatic

High Constable Boyle yesterday afternoon went out to Belmont's Bush to look into the case of a strange man who it was reported had been acting queerly. The officer found the man who appears to be about 45 seated on a log talking to some Merriton boys. He had a long black beard. They said the man had been there for the past ten days, sleeping inside a hollow log, without other covering than an overcoat. The section of log was so short that his feet stuck out the end. The man said he was Michael Delaney, and he didn't know where he came from though he suspected it was Brantford. His memory appeared to be faint. He was apparently half starved and devoured half a loaf of bread that was handed to him. The magistrate remanded the man to jail for a week until enquiries can be made about him. It is believed he escaped from an asylum.

Modern Bluebeard Faces Possible White Slavery Charge; U. S. Intervenes

LOS ANGELES, April 27—Federal authorities are to take a hand in the investigation of James R. Huirt, alleged multi-bigamist, this time with a view to establishing his possible violation of the Mann white slave act. The newest charges are added to those of bigamy, murder, swindle and robberies of various degrees. That the government must become interested was revealed by Deputy Sheriff Al Manning, who declared that following a thorough summing up of the circumstances which surrounded the alleged matrimonial career of the prisoner, he was convinced that Huirt was also guilty of one and probably more infractions of the white slave act. Local agents of the department of Justice immediately was appealed to. Officers who are working on the case to day were considerably puzzled over the attitude taken by Huirt in the face of the many charges he is facing. Two days ago the prisoner, manacled to an iron cot in the county hospital, expressed a desire to die and thereby substantiated the officers' theory that he recognized his guilt. To-day however, Huirt told attaches at the hospital he wanted to live and disprove all accusation. He has repeatedly claimed that Nina Lee Deloney, one of the nine of his alleged wives, who are believed to have met with foul play, is in Kansas city, and he intimates that he knows the whereabouts of other women about whom the police have been questioning him.
