RED COATS ENGAGE IN MIMIC WARFARE

Colonel Edwards, With Six Companies of the 101st Regiment, Captured Old Fort on Saskatchewan Bank From Valiant Force of Defenders Under Captain MacLeod.

In all its lifetime, the Old Fort on the bank of the Saskatchewan was never besieged as it was last night between nine and ten o'clock. Six companies of the 101st Regiment advanced upon it in lines of skirmishers, in successive rushes, pouring in so strong a fire that the defenders, under Captain MacLeod, were compelled to relinquish their stronghold.

Few citizens were aware of the battle which was being waged below the city. The sound of firing was heard by many, who put it down for an exceptionally well extended shoot of the Edmonton Gun Club. But not so, it was a most realistic representation of attack and defence by seven companies of red coats of the 101st Regiment, which took the form of a sham battle. The movements of the forces were executed as they would be on the field of battle and many were the daring deeds of the Edmonton volunteers when under fire. We will give the story of the battle in detail.

Story of the Battle. Shortly after eight o'clock the regiment, headed by the newly formed bugle band, and each man well supplied with ammunition, left the Second street armory and marched in column of sections down Second street to the field by the Exhibition Grounds. The seventh company left the main body at Jasper avenue, marching westward under command of Captain MacLeod. This company was to form the defence and took up a position to the west of the Pacific Hotel Buildings. The company was divided into several sections, representing supposed larger bodies of men, and took up defensive positions so as to surprise the attacking force.

Meanwhile the attacking force, under command of Colonel Edwards, was drawn up in the space by the fair grounds. The officers were called out and received commands from their chief, while the men were resting in preparation for the fray. On the order being given to advance upon the enemy, the captains moved their companies in lines of companies and intervals. Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4 companies were in the first line and the reserve companies 5 and 6 formed the reserve.

Scouts Sent Out. Scouts were sent in advance to protect the flanks and the lines advanced in company with the main body towards the Old Fort, until signals from scouts indicated the proximity of the enemy. Lines of skirmishers were then sent out and advanced in successive rushes, each section pouring strong fire, while the other section advanced. The reserves followed as supporters.

Attack From Ferry. From the direction of the ferry, by means of which a force was supposed to have crossed from Strathcona, the bank at the cutting of the railway approach, the fort was fired by the reserves, who poured in a strong fire and checked the flank attack. They then resumed their advance upon the main body of the enemy.

Enemy Driven From Fort. The skirmishers, after some heavy firing and sharp shooting, drove the enemy out of the fort into a defensive position near it, and, taking advantage of cover, advanced beyond the Old Fort towards the Parliament Buildings. They secured a strong position behind some piles of lumber and reinforced themselves by bringing up a strong fire was maintained. The arrival of the rest of the whole army charged the position of the enemy, forcing surrender.

Captain Osborne Captured. Captain Osborne had been detailed to move to the west of the Parliament Buildings for a flank attack on the enemy. The enemy had posted strong detachments to the west of the hill to the west of the Parliament Buildings. The main body took up a position near the Parliament Buildings.

Several short blasts on the whistle sounded the rally and the companies reformed in quarter columns. The regiment marched back to the armory in company columns and then in lines of company columns and advancing in fours.

At Jasper avenue, the bugle band, which had been practising in the meantime, met the regiment and played it back to the armory. The bugle band, formed only ten days ago, played several pieces very creditably and assisted greatly in the marching.

The sham battle will be repeated next Friday night.

Western Canada is to be visited during the next two or three months by a number of distinguished journalists. Some of the Antipodean delegates to the press conference are returning home by way of Canada. The first to arrive will be F. W. Ward, the veteran editor of the Daily Telegraph, of Sydney. He sailed from Liverpool today and will be in Winnipeg about the end of the month. Mr. Ward had a hand in establishing the Australian Canadian steamship line in 1883, and accompanied the first boat to Vancouver. Upon that occasion he came as far east as Winnipeg. Mrs. Ward accompanies him.

Edwin S. Cunningham, editor of the Argus, of Melbourne, and Mrs. Cunningham; and Mr. Mark Cohen, editor of the Evening Star, of Dunedin, N.Z., with Mrs. Cohen, will also return home by the All-Red route. They travelled to England last May via Canada. Mr. Cunningham will be in Winnipeg about Sept. 1. Hon. Theodore Fink, of Melbourne, a well-known lawyer, public man and journalist, will also go home by way of Canada.

In September, Lord Northcliffe, the head of the great Harmsworth newspaper-owning family, will pay an extensive visit to Canada, going through to Vancouver. He will be accompanied by J. L. Garvin, editor of the London Observer, and the writer of the monthly chronicle in the Fortnightly Review, one of the most brilliant political writers in England. This will be Lord Northcliffe's first visit to Western Canada.

Another distinguished English journalist who will be here in August is L. S. Amery, of the London Times. He will attend the meetings of the British Science Association, and will then tour through the Dominion. Mr. Amery has just completed the sixth and final volume of the Times' "History of the South African War." He has twice stood for parliament, and the Unionist interest, missing election in the recent Wolverhampton bye-election by only eight votes.

F. A. Mackenzie, special correspondent of the Daily Mail, is now on route to Canada, in furtherance of the Daily Mail's agitation looking to the awakening of interest in the trade of the Dominion, and will visit the Dominion and will write a series of letters upon Canadian trade for the British goods. Mr. Mackenzie was the Mail's war correspondent in the Russo-Japanese war.
