

Will Change be Necessary?

ALTERATIONS IN ARMS VERY EXPENSIVE.

LONDON. (Associated Press).—The question has been raised, whether the designs of the Union Jack and Royal Coat of Arms of Great Britain will have to be altered if Ireland becomes a free state within the empire. The Union Jack has the cross of St. Patrick superimposed upon the cross of St. George and St. Andrew. The Royal Coat of Arms has the Irish harp in one of its corners. At the college of Arms in London, it was stated that certain modifications were under consideration, and that if any action were taken, it would be done by the King in Council. No parliamentary action will be necessary. Heraldry experts say that alterations in arms are very expensive, and that there was a demand for the golden harp on the royal standard should be changed to green. It was then estimated that the alteration would cost at least £200,000. To remove all references to Ireland from the present Union Jack and Royal arms, would be a very expensive. One authority said that it would not be correct for England, the predominant partner, to leave Ireland out of account in the national flag and the royal arms, unless and until Ireland herself demanded it.

Refused Reduction of Wages.

SWEDISH EMPLOYMENT WILL NOT AGREE.

STOCKHOLM. (Associated Press).—Employers in various industries in Sweden have refused to agree with their employees on a reduction of wages have failed. The employers notified trade unions comprising about 350,000 men, that the collective agreement, now in force, would be abrogated in the building, engineering, wood, iron and textile trades. New collective agreements on the basis of reduced wages were offered, but the unions declined a collective agreement. Manufacturers contend that present wages in Sweden make it impossible for them to sell Swedish products abroad.

THREE ONLY ALLOWED EACH PERSON.

RIGA, Latvia. (Associated Press).—Three divorces to any one person is considered the limit. In Soviet Russia, according to Parley Christensen of Chicago, candidate for president of the United States on the Farmer-Labor party ticket in 1920, who recently spent a month in Moscow, Mr. Christensen visited several Bolshevik courts. "It is fairly easy to get a divorce in Soviet Russia," said Mr. Christensen when in Riga, "but I understand the limit is three for each person. If a man or woman has appeared in the divorce courts more than three times, he or she has a very difficult time. I visited one divorce hearing. It was extremely simple. The pair was separated in half an hour. On arrival in the court room, the man and woman were separately questioned by the judge. He then got them together and tried to persuade them that their marital life together. They couldn't see that way, so the judge took them to another room to sign papers dissolving their marriage. Mr. Christensen also visited a number of 'People's Courts' corresponding to police courts in America, where persons are tried for minor offenses. Most of the judges, he said, were dressed in rough coats, including brown flannel coats. "In general," said Mr. Christensen, "I was amazed at the fairness of the courts."
