

"I Was Terribly Weak After Baby Was Born"

Mrs. H. McClure, Norwood, Ont., writes: "After my baby was born, I was terribly weak and run down, with pains across my back. I had heard so much of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food that I decided to try it. Three boxes proved enough to make me quite strong and well again. I also used Dr. Chase's Ointment for a rash which broke out on the baby, and the rash disappeared completely in a short time."

Maddolena's Story AND The Cameo Bracelet.

CHAPTER XVII. Bessie Mordant could scarcely keep pace with her impetuous friend, as, favored by the night, they glided along, instinctively avoiding every passer-by who might be disposed to molest them. Yet when they neared the magnificent ruin, where so many strange and sometimes heroic deeds were performed in the ages which this heroic relic of antiquity still survives, it was Trixie who hung back. Her heart had suddenly grown cold with the fear that already the assassin might be stealing on his victim, and that she should only arrive to behold the expiring agonies of the murdered baronet.

"Every way, if you linger here. Pray quit this place without delay." She spoke with so much earnestness that he could not regard the warning as merely a jest; but still he looked more annoyed at the interruption than impressed by a sense of personal peril. "I am not in the habit of running away from my friends, just because rumor says that these ruins are sometimes the resort of a few pitiful knaves, who live by plunder." "Those of whom we speak aim at life itself," Bessie assured him. "Indeed!" he answered, rather incredulously. "And yet I have not knowingly made any man my enemy; or, if I had, I should prefer accounting for my conduct to the injured person to hiding from him."

and it was when the colonel, who was still passionately attached to his young wife, had found her a seat, and was bending over her affectionately, that the vindictive marchese, believing that he beheld not the husband, but the lover of the faithless lady, gave the signal to the wretch who, less scrupulous than Antonio, had been hired to do his murderous bidding.

The guides and one or two of the gentlemen present hurried off to endeavor to seize the assassin; but they failed to find him, and soon returned to assist those who were arranging a temporary litter, on which to convey Colonel Severo to his hotel. He had fallen at the feet of his wife, whose rich dress was stained with his life's blood; and his first words had been a loving entreaty to her not to be alarmed. But she could not answer him. Heartless though she had so often shown herself, a sense of her guilt was upon her now; and when she recovered speech, it was to fling herself down beside him, passionately entreating his forgiveness.

Sir Charles Ormsby—feeling, perhaps, that at such a moment his own presence would seem like an insult—kept carefully in the background; yet it was owing to his promptitude and good management that none were permitted to approach the sufferer but those who were really able to be of assistance, and also that a couple of doctors were quickly in attendance.

The colonel was so calm, and uttered so few complaints, that, after the first shock of seeing him fall, no one apprehended much danger. The volatile Italians recovered their spirits, and began volubly describing their terrors to one and another, while the ladies of the party endeavored to soothe the hysterical wife into composure.

But Madam de Caspares saw the grave aspect of the faces of the surgeons assumed as they examined the wound; and her whispered inquiry elicited the sad tidings that the colonel had not many hours to live.

"He must be carried home as quickly as possible," was the dictum of the medical men; but they shook their heads when they learned how far it was to Colonel Severo's residence. "Bring him to the palazzo where I am residing," said the baroness. "There is an unoccupied suite of rooms; and Lady Camilla has no relations in Rome—no friends, I fancy, who will be as useful to her just now as I can be."

The Best Cough Syrup is Home-made.

Here's an easy way to cure C. and get the best cough remedy you can get. You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly carry it a permanent peace in your home. Into a 16-oz. bottle, pour 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the bottle. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you 16 ounces of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membrane, gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma. Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments. To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. Just Folks. By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE ROAD TO MEMORY. This is the road to memory. And the road to ripe old age. These are the pictures that we shall see. At last, on a glittering page: These are the joys which will come again. When the fire is burning low, The scenes of laughter, the hours of pain. And the lad which now we know. We shall see him then as we see him now. The boy with his book unread, His pleading face and his furrowed brow. As we order him up to bed; We shall see his cap on the parlor chair. And his thumb prints on the wall. We shall see the day when he pressed and them there. And oh, we shall cherish it all! Mischievous, troublesome, careless lad. Plaguing us till we scold. But oh, we shall never think him bad In the days when we grow old. The years may carry him far away But still we shall see him there, The little boy that he is to-day Curled up in that great arm chair. Not now, not now can we understand The joy of these common days. We see but the print of his smudgy hand! And the care of his heedless ways; But this is the road to memory. And some day we'll recall The glorious, golden past when he Lived here as a youngster small.

CUTICURA HEALS SKIN TROUBLE

Eruption On Face, Itched and Burned, Lost Rest. "A small, sore eruption broke out on the side of my face and kept spreading until it was the size of a quarter. It was rough and sore, and at times I was most crazy with itching and burning. I lost my rest at night, and my face was terrible to see. I tried different remedies without any benefit. A friend recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I purchased some, and after using one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Ointment was healed." (Signed) Miss Eleanor Beakman, Springdale, Mont., Jan. 19, 1922. Rely on Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Tablets to care for your skin.

THE DEADLY DRINK.

They've planted I. Josephus links, we never shall see him more; he bought him self little drinks at Baldwin's Bootleg Store. I often warned him when we met to when the bootlegger road, they're "just" with cheaper grades of tin that liquor might corrode. I do not like to see the young time to booze devote, but I have whippers on my tongue, asbestos in my throat." He made that day his daily trek, and poured some booze inside, then wound his legs around his neck and yelled three times and died. And other wights may wot and wist that they have copper fuses, but human works can't long resist the poisoned bootleg booze.

HELP FOR YOUNG WOMEN

Mrs. Holmberg Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her

Viking, Alta.—"From the time I was 15 years old I would get such sick feelings in the lower part of my abdomen, followed by cramps and vomiting. This kept me from my work (I help my parents on the farm) as I usually had to go to bed for the rest of the day. Or at times I would have to walk the floor. I suffered in this way until a friend induced me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have had very satisfactory results so far and am recommending the Vegetable Compound to my friends. I surely am glad I tried it for I feel like a different person now that I don't have these troubles."—ONELLA HOLMBERG, Box 38, Viking, Alta. Letters like this establish the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. They tell of the relief from such pains and ailments after taking it. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and today holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills in this country, and thousands of voluntary testimonials prove this fact. If you doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Cobourg, Ontario, for Mrs. Pinkham's private text-book and learn more about it.

Wedding Bells

POMEROY-SMITH. Brigus was en fete on Thursday, January 24th. From the early morning a volley of guns was heard and hunting was seen flying everywhere. The gaiety was to celebrate the marriage of two very popular Brigus-ontarians. The happy event took place at 3 o'clock in the Methodist Church, the participants being Capt. William Pomeroy, popularly known as Billy, son of the late Capt. George and Mrs. Pomeroy, and Miss May Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Smith. The bride entered the church leaning on the arm of her father, while Loehengrin's Wedding March was being played by the organist Miss Emma Bartlett. The bride-maid was Miss Evelyn Rabbitts, cousin of the bride. The groom was ably supported by Capt. Wm. Bartlett, Jr. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Charles Lonch, Pastor of the church. The bride looked charming in a navy blue tailored suit and fox fur with sage blue hat. The bridesmaid wore a dress of navy blue silk and black hat and looked very pretty. After the register had been signed the happy couple, accompanied by several guests, drove to the home of the bride's parents where tea was served and the young folks given a hearty and delightful send-off. The happy pair joined the evening train en route to Holyrood where the honeymoon will be spent. The bride was the recipient of many presents including a silver tray from the members of the church choir, the Sunday school of which she was secretary and the Girls' Guild of which she was a member. Capt. and Mrs. Pomeroy's many friends wish them bon voyage over the matrimonial sea.
