Schooner Was Battered by Storm

REGINALD R. MOULTON, WITH CARGO OF ALCOHOL, PUT IN HERE FOR REPAIRS.

Badly battered by storms, and minus her anchors and chains, the schooner Reginald R. Moulton, Capt. Snellgrove, arrived in port yesterday afternoon, and because of the repairs necessary, the Customs Department permitted the schooner to dock at the Shipyards wharf in Mill Cove, Dartmouth. The schooner has on board about 500 cases of alcohol, each case containing two cans. The schooner is also in need of repairs to her deck and superstructure, part of the hullwork being badly chafed.

The schooner is from Burgeo via Havana, which latter port she left on July 12, and since then has presumably been off the American coast. The schooner evidently suffered the damage in the storm of three weeks ago. The schooner will be here for a week or two for repairs. A. Moulton is the local agent.—Morning Chronicle, Sept. 18th.

Our Dumb Animals

Report Of The Chief Agent For Work
Ending Sept. 26, 1924.

Asked by a resident of the East End to humanely put to death a horse with an injured leg. Also another horse for Mr. Arthur Lowe, of the East End Taxi Company. The horse was very valuable, but in some way the foreleg had been put out of joint. After having the Veterinary's opinion, he thought it best to have it put to death. The loss to Mr. Lowe is a very severe one. Also put to death a dog for Mrs. Sellars, Blatch Ave. The dog was badly injured by having its eye knocked out. Mrs. Sellars contributed 1.00 towards the funds of the Society. Also put to death a dog and cat for Mr. Kelly, Bell Street. Sent in three lame horses to have their shoes fixed. Received a report of a dog on Gear St. without a home, and I cannot find the owner and will have to shoot the dog. Also received a report of a man ill-using a horse on the Furness Withy premises. I investigated the case. This horse is in very good condition but it is stubborn and won't haul. I warned the owner he was to be careful in his treatment of the horse. Another case on Springdale St. of a cabman unable to get his horse home. This horse was also sulky for a time. A resident complained that the man was too severe with his horse. I found the owner who states that he didn't ill-use the horse, but he doesn't intend to use it again as the horse is stubborn. In reference to the horse complained of some time ago on Topsail Road, being in a poor condition, the owner has since had it sent to the Fox Farm. Attended to the landing of three carloads of cattle and sheep at the Railway Station. They were all in good condition. Also two sales of cattle at the Abbot's Company. Everything very satisfactory. I would also like to state that people wishing to purchase the picture "The Horse's Prayer," can get them from Mr. Wiley Auctioneer, corner of Barter's Hill and New Gower St. Price 50c. I have endeavored to attend all calls and complaints to the best of my ability. I ask that all friends of animals to see that no glass is left on the city streets and also that nails are thrown out of harness way. Fires opening up cases on the streets are asked to pick up all nails and pieces of tin. All friends of the animals also having any complaints to make will kindly phone 653.

JONAS BARTER,
Chief Agent.

Strange Kind of Worm

CAN LIVE ONLY IN ICE.
TACOMA, Wash., Sept. 27.—(A.P.)—A species of worm that lives only in ice and cannot withstand even the heat of a human hand, has been found and photographed by a scientific expedition that recently went into the Olympic mountains.

The ice on Dodwell-Rixon Pass in the Olympics was found literally alive with these worms. They are black, thin and about half an inch long. When the sun is out they crawl into the interior of the ice where the temperature is lower. Scientists with the party said that so far as they knew these worms never had been found before in the United States.

While the worms were photographed, it was impossible to get any of them out of the mountains alive. When the ice surrounding them begins to melt, they die immediately. What they live on is still a mystery.

Hunt for the "Jammer"

Capture of Man Who Sent Out Messages—Smart Fine on Wireless Evader.

Interference with the wireless entertainments provided by the British Broadcasting Company was exposed at Hemel Hempstead in the prosecution by the G.P.O. of Arthur Charles Hart, of King's Hill Cottage, Berkhamstead. There were two summonses—one for unlawfully possessing transmission apparatus, and the other for using it. Mr. Gallaher, representing the G.P.O., explained that as the result of complaints of "jamming," a search was made. The offending station was located at King's Hill Cottage, where Hart lived with his father. Hart was the holder of what was known as an interim license, which entitled him to receive, but not to send, wireless messages. On July 8th, Mr. Davey and Mr. Firth, two officials, visited the premises, but the installation was at that time dismantled. Hart showed the Post Office representatives some apparatus, and this included certain parts which could only be used for sending messages. Defendant admitted to Mr. Firth that he had sent wireless messages on four nights before the end of May, when the apparatus was dismantled. He also agreed that he had made no application for a transmitting license, and that he knew the interim license he held only entitled him to receive. He further stated that he and two other persons were working together in the matter. Although the case was regarded as a serious one by the prosecution, Mr. Gallaher was not asking that Hart should be committed for trial. He asked, however, that such a penalty should be imposed as would be a deterrent to other offenders. There was reason to believe that there was a considerable amount of evasion. The unlicensed operator not only infringed the law, but caused great annoyance to the public by interfering with the programmes provided by the B.B.C. The offence, therefore, was not only a technical infringement of the law, but involved substantial interference with the rights of the public. Hart was fined £2 on each of the two summonses.

A Fine Testimonial

The learned magistrate on the Bench had his attention occupied with the case of a man who was charged with exceeding the speed limit in the main street of the town: "The officer says you were going at forty miles an hour," he began, in a pompous manner.

"Very well," replied the delinquent equably.

The magistrate looked surprised, and then said:

"You are the first motorist I ever saw who didn't seem angry with the officer."

"Well," was the answer: "It's the first compliment I've ever had paid to my old bus."
