EDWARD S. WILLARD. The following EDITORIAL appeared on y, March 11, 1892, in the Philadelphia

Friday, March 11, 1892, in the Philadeiphia Lettgeri:

"Mr. Edward S. Willard will appear at the Chestnut Street Opera House on Monday evening next in the admirable play of 'The Middleman.' This should be regarded as a theatrical event of extraordinary importance, as Mr. Willard is the most original of English actors. He is a dramatic artist of talents so great, acquirements so rare and thought so strong, delicate and refined as to place him in the forefront among the nest eminent menor his profession. Playeder and the parts and nobly loved the trincipal one, should esteem it an unwonted privilege to see 'The Middleman' and Mr. Willard as Cyrus Blenkarn. The vigor, beauty and tenderness of this impersonation; the 'fine thought and feeling of the actor's conception and execution of it are beyond all ordinary expression of admiration and praise. Mr. Willard's superior talent is unquestionable and we think he is one who may justly be credited with the possession of the highest form and quality of dramitic genius."

The Gurtain will rise at 8:15 sharp, by which time it is earnestly hoped the audience will find it convenient
