cartoon in which two rowdy-looking individuals, armed with huge revolvexamining a placard hung on a tree, bearing this inscription: "Yukon mining regulations: The governcollect a royalty of 20 per cent on the gold mined. C. Sifton." Both men are represented as exclaiming together, "Oh! If we knew where we might find him." The intention of this cartoon, beyond doubt, is to bring the Dominion Government regulations into disrepute and to fan the flame of opposition to them which has been developed in the United States. The "him" which these armed men are represented as anxious to find is the would dare make them pay royalty on gold mined in Canada.

Surely no Canadian journal should be engaged in the work of making it difficult for the Canadian authorities to carry out the law of the land. The indeed, is that the miners to bloodshed, to murder, rather than pay the royalty. AFFECTION OF SCHOOL GIRLS. Helen Watterson Moody makes in cribner's Magazine some extremely sensible suggestions on the necessity of teaching school girls to control eir emotions and act sanely and asonably. She mentions incidentally the foolish and morbid attachments girls form for one another or perhaps for a favorite teacher. They're the cheapest Dress Goods we've sold for many a day, and that's saying a good deal. But there's only a few yards of each lot, that's why we're giving them away. They're in our west center window.

Those of the last lot, the twenty-five centers. are fancy tweeds. All season they sold for 50c. There are fancy and broken checks, and a very few shepherd's checks.

The other twenty-five cent lot consists of name is "Mohair Yak," a light, open, dustshedding material. There's only about 100 yards in all. Were 50c, now 25c.

The first lot is the biggest bargain of all. It consists of those all-wool crepons in tinted effects. They're full 42 inches wide, and remember, absolutely all wool. Their regular price was 50c. but on a couple of Fridays we put them on the bargain tables at 25c. Now they're yours for 15c a yard. Less than 65 yards of them left,
