The Giants Must Stop Speaker, to Win; and Unless History Repeats, That Won't Be an Easy Time

The Giants must stop Tris Speaker to win the world's baseball championship.

This is conceded by friends of the National League, and it is supported by facts and figures. Stopping Speaker may give the Giants an experience similar to that of the tenderfoot who tried to hopple a cyclone, if American League rooters are to be taken seriously.

Still there is one big precedent in favor of the Giants. The series of history shows that the stars have always failed to deliver.

Hugh Jennings calls it the "psychology of the world's series" that the great should aviate and the unsung ones shine.

Cobb was the boy who intended to hit about .800 against the Cub pitchers. What he really did was to fail a victim to the pitching of Chance's men, finally being outguessed by Mordecai Brown.

Eddie Collins was expected to star last fall. He did not. His work was mediocre. The star was Frank Baker, of Trappe.

So Tris Speaker, valued by Hugh Jennings at $25,000, and cheap at that, who this year has shared batting and fielding honors with Ty Cobb, that other speed marvel from Dixie, is banked upon to lead the assault upon the National League champions, stand as a solid wall on the defence and rampage around the bases like a bull moose in the spring time.

Speaker will be running to form if the accomplishments of all of these things but he will land a knockout punch on old Doc Pre Cent.

One thing in favor of Speaker is experience. He is no longer a youngster. He has been through the fire of one important series—the inter-city games between New York and Boston in 1909.

And in that series—pause and ponder—Speaker got to the then peerless Mathewson for SIX HITS IN EIGHT TIMES AT BAT AND IN THE TWENTY TIMES HE WAS AT BAT IN THE SERIES HE MADE TWELVE HITS, AN AVERAGE FOR THE SERIES OF .600.

Stopping Speaker is apt to pile up the Giants on the field until the remains resemble that misguided hero who in yester years tried to stop a flying wedge, when flying wedges were the popular means of assassination of football heroes.

Unless Speaker falls a victim of that uncanny influence that has downed so many stars in the all-important series, he will lead the Red Hosed crew on a regular Boston tea party, just as he has led them in the league race.

Speaker has hit consistently all season. His average has hovered around .400 since early spring. Upon one occasion he went hitless for three games.

Again he missed connecting for two days. These are his only lapses. He gets his hits as regularly as a hospital

MUCH DEPENDS ON ANALYST'S REPORT

Board of Health May Order a Change in the Waterworks Plant Location.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Sarnia, Oct. 5.—A good deal depends on the result of the analysis of Lake Huron water to be made by the expert, Mr. A. Dallyn, sent here by the provincial board of health. About a week ago reports issued by the state board of health of Michigan were made public, which declared the lake water in this vicinity to be unsafe and containing colon bacilli.

The authorities in Toronto learned of what the experts on the other side had said, and the visit of Mr. Dallyn is the result. The tests will the results uphold the analysis made by the Americans it will probably mean that material changes must be made in the plans for the new waterworks at the lake shore.

Samples of water will be taken on both the American and the Canadian shores as far north as the Petrolia intake. If the water should be found contaminated it is a question whether it would be practical to take the town's water supply from the lake, for it would have to be chlorinated, and in that respect would not differ from the river water. It is quite likely that no definite action will be taken by the council to remove the pumping station until after analyses are completed.

Held for Theft.
Robert Turner, the young lad who was arrested by Detective Acton on a charge of theft, appeared before Magistrate Fleck yesterday. The boy is one of the orphans sent out by the Barnard Home in Toronto, and was residing with Mr. Strangway, some seven or eight miles out in the country.

It appears that the lad was induced to steal a sum of money amounting to $5, from the family who befriended him, by another lad older than himself. The magistrate decided that the case did not come within his jurisdiction, as the theft took place in Plympton Township, and Turner will consequently be brought up before Judge Taylor.

May Land at Slip.
It is said that the ferry boats running between Sarnia and Port Huron can, if they desire to do so, land at the slip at which they disembarked their passengers previous to the trouble between the company and the town. A survey was made recently which some declare shows the slip to be not, as was formerly supposed, on the town property, but on that owned by the ferry company. Although the story has not been confirmed it is believed to be well grounded.

A baby, eight months old, and nearly dead from neglect, has been placed in the General Hospital here by Mr. Wilkinson, of the Children's Aid Society. A telephone call was received yesterday from Sarnia, stating that an infant in that vicinity was starving through parental neglect.

Mr. Wilkinson, accompanied by Dr. Patterson and the chief of police, drove out to the town immediately, and returned with the child.

The funeral of Peter Watson, held here yesterday, was largely attended. He was 74 years of age, and had only been ill three weeks from a stroke of paralysis. He was born in Wentworth County, but spent most of his life in Bruce and Huron. Mr. Watson was married twice, and a grown-up family survives. His mother, who was an elder in the Presbyterian Church.

The anniversary of the Methodist Sabbath School was a great success. An old pastor, Rev. S. J. Allen, of Clinton, preached fine sermons, and the musical program by "Old Boys and Girls" who attended was very choice.

About 100 letters were received from former pupils who had been twinned, and formed a very pleasant tie between the past and present. The school is 54 years old, and has had as superintendents, E. J. CONVICTED HORSE THIEF

Friendly in the Cells.
Robert Griffiths-Clarke, an Englishman, who has now served eight of twelve months to which he was sentenced by Police Magistrate Judd for bigamy, had become quite friendly with Hammer in the cells, but as did the information to where the alleged horse thief came from.

When first taken into custody he gave the name of Arthur Johnston, later it developed that he was known as Arthur Henry, and at the time of the trial High Constable Hughes, who had the prosecution in hand, produced witnesses who swore that they knew Griffiths-Clarke, and that he was Alexander Hammer. Last night in passing away the dreary hours of confinement the men huddled in the little room before locking up time—7 o'clock—exchanged stories and worked a trick with a coin, by means of which each made his initials.

His Real Initials.
Hammer, explained to Griffiths that his real initials were "S. A. S." but did not say what names these letters represented. He paid only passing attention to the game, explaining that generally I'd like to know those things, but I guess I won't need to now.

This was the only hint given as to his intention, but at the time it was taken that he meant that he would spend the next five years of his life in confinement.

Albert Haggin, who is doing fifteen days for stealing a mirror from a boardinghouse, stated that he was a German, and as Hammer was apparently of the same nationality, they became quite friendly. However, Haggin was almost equally unsuccessful in gaining information as to the identity of the man, although he is confident that Hammer is the correct name. Hammer had stated that his parents are living, and that he had two brothers and two sisters at home.

Formerly in Business.
To Griffiths-Clarke, Hammer had stated during the past few days that he was formerly a grocery and butcher business with brother-in-law, Hamilton, and that he left there when they had some petty trouble over the employment of a man in the shop. He had also said that he was a rather smooth by trade, and that he had worked in shops in Hamilton, and for a blacksmith in a village near that place.

He was a well-built man of thirty years, and spoke with a slight German accent. The memorandum book in which the note was written, also contained a number of entries concerning a trip eastward from Toronto in the first week of August. Other pages had, however, been torn out and destroyed.

Entries in Notebook.
"Simcoe, at sales stable," "Friday night, Aug. 2, Whitby House, paid $2.25." Sunday night, Aug. 4, Scarborough Hotel, "Aug. 5 and 6 and 7, for keep of one horse $2.25, first half paid passing Woodbine on Kingston road."

This was the only other matter contained in the book. All memos were written heavily, and in a rather scrawly hand. The man's composition was fair, but that he was not educated above the ordinary was evident from the note, in which words were misspelled and capitalizations neglected.

The suicide must have been planned with the greatest deliberation. As usual the prisoners were locked up twenty minutes before that time he scribbled his last message. He was located in the second cell from the east end of the tier in the southeast Lamentation corridor.

Cell of the Deceased.
His cell was of the ordinary size, and about three feet six inches wide, and about seven feet six inches in length. The front end is a barred door about seven feet high, while in the back there is a heavily-barred window,
