How to Make Better Cough Syrup than You Can Buy

A Family Supply, Saving $2 and Fully Guaranteed.

Sixteen ounces of cough syrup—as much as you could buy for $2.00—can easily be made at home. You will find nothing that takes hold of an obstinate cough more quickly, usually ending it inside of 24 hours. Excellent, too, for croup, whooping cough, sore lungs, asthma, hoarseness and other throat troubles.

Mix two cups of granulated sugar with one cup of warm water, and stir for two minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle, then add the Sugar Syrup. It keeps perfectly. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

This is just laxative enough to help cure a cough. Also stimulates the appetite, which is usually upset by a cough. The taste is pleasant.

The effect of pine and sugar syrup on the inflamed membranes is well known. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guaiacol and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

The Pinex and Sugar Syrup recipe is now used by thousands of housewives throughout the United States and Canada. The plan has been imitated, but the old successful formula has never been equaled.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

THE RED BUTTON

A MYSTERY STORY OF NEW YORK

By WILL IRWIN

Copyright, The Bobbs-Merrill Company.

"Geel! Still, I owe you lots of good turns, and the case don't look as mysterious, after all. I guess it's that fellow Wade." "Don't, geel," replied Rosalie. "How does your dog go, anyway? Have you looked up everybody that step on his toes? I'm charishin' a murderer in my midst." "They're being looked up," replied McGee. "I've taken personal charge of this, but the Captain commanding the precinct detectives is helping with the Wade or maybe North, did this—unless it was an inside job. There's the landlady—well, it might have been her, as well as anybody, of course—except she's a kind of an old fool. She just don't look likely."

"You can count her out," Rosalie nodded. "That Professor Noll is a harmless old crank. Still, they're the people that do crank up that point about fences—he was educated in a German university. He'll tell you anything you call it. They practice some kind of Dutch sword game over there, don't they? There wasn't any servant in the house. Mrs. Moore's maids and furnace man were niggers, and niggers sometimes use knives. The furnace man is named Tremont. They're gamblers; and when a con gambles he's likely to do worse. That gets us down to the women. Miss Estrella is up here from Caracas, which is in Venezuela, for her eyes. Her brother's here with her. He's the agent in New York for an independent asphalt company of Caracas. He lives in some apartment-house over on Thirty-seventh Street—I've forgotten the name. He called last night, but he was out. Miss Harding, who's the wife of a doctor, lives in the same building. He's a boy, and he's been coming down from the country three years ago. I've seen him been going some, and the only wonder to me is that Tammany ain't got hold of him long ago. Do you think he had anything to do with it?"

"I ain't committing myself as to who done it—did it—I don't have to think about that any more now I've stopped being a lady," said Rosalie, sweeping into the room. "You never know the fight you had with this gramin' thing after talking for forty years just like I wanted to. Thank the Lord, that's over. Well, any how, I ain't committing myself. Looks like an alibi for Mr. North when the landlady says he came up the stairs only a minute before he hollored, and the doctor says that this Hanky was here two or three hours. Appeared to me like he was just jarred out of a drunk, too. How about this lawless man, or whatever his name was—the man who called with the bag? Got him?"

"He was arrested this morning in Boston." "Skip it," looks bad. Has it occurred to you to investigate that young man's?" Inspector McGee jumped and turned on her. Rosalie was always letting slip some of these extraordinary bits of knowledge.

"How did you know that, you see?" "And in the tabulated records he pointed out one line, 'President Fencing Club, 1898-99.'"

"Looks bad," commented Rosalie. "Why?"

"How would you stab a man if you were stabbing in a laundry room and there were a penholder. The point of the pen is the point of the knife. Now?"

"That's the point," Rosalie grasped the penholder. "He's got a penholder under his little finger. So holding it, he made a sudden sweep through the air."

"Of course, that's the way he did it," said McGee, "but a regular knife man." "Exactly," interrupted Rosalie. "And your knife would go in from above, now wouldn't it? The wound would point down. Now try it this way—" Rosalie held the weapon which is lighter than the sword in such manner that the point extended from under her forefinger.

"Or this—" now she held the fence's grip, the shaft lying obliquely along the palm, controlled and guided by the sensitive three points. "Now, he was stabbed in the heart, but from beneath. The wound pointed upward. With my grip, you couldn't stab a standing man upward, not if he let you. With my grip, I couldn't stab downward to save my life."

Martin McGee went into heavy thought while he struggled for objections. "Suppose he was lying down?" he asked at last.

"In the floor? Beggins' to be stabbed?" jabbed Rosalie. "Maybe he was stabbed in bed and got out and died on the floor."

"And he never stirred, besides, the bed left any blood behind?" Rosalie's head wasn't mussed at all. It was just thrown back as though he'd got up quiet and natural.

"You saw all that—in two minutes?" exclaimed McGee. "I never could understand how you did it."

"If you spent your whole life," replied Rosalie, "sizin' up sitters with past, present and future in the two minutes that you was fakin' trance, you'd see things in a hurry, too."

"Well, how on earth did you know that about fences?"

"Easy as lyin' an' simple as women," replied Rosalie. "I used to room with a little actress that fenced—the one I was with' supper with last night. But now, Inspector, just to close things up, I'm out of this case. I've given you all I know. Your point will be botherin' the reporters. Just trust me to steer that. You keep me out."

Martin McGee sighed. "All right, Rosalie; but I'd like your Granulation of the Eyelids."

BOVRIL TAKEN

In a series of remarkable experiments conducted under the direct control of one of the foremost physiologists of the day, an amount of Bovril proportionate to the small black diamond has been proved to produce an increase in flesh and muscle corresponding to large outline diamond, showing the body-building power of BOVRIL to be from 10 to 20 times the amount taken.

Bovril is the concentrated goodness of the best of beef. It is a wonderfully warming winter beverage; it builds up the weak constitution and strengthens the strong one; it guards against the grip; it checks colds and chills; it is cook's right hand in the kitchen; it is nurse's first aid to the sick-room.

Baby's Own Soap

After the bath with BABY'S OWN SOAP the skin is smooth, comfortable, and exhales the aroma of freshly cut flowers.

Freedom from skin troubles, explains in some measure the refreshing sleep which "Baby's Own Soap" babies enjoy. Especially for nursery use insist on "Baby's Own".
