Few Art Treasures in Duke's Collection

[Canadian Press.]

New York, July 12.—A London cable says: Great surprise and disappointment were manifested at the sale at Christie's yesterday of the Duke of Sutherland's pictures from Stafford House. It has been long supposed that the collection contained numerous fine examples of old masters, and the public fostered the belief that Stafford House held one of the finest private galleries in England, but when the pictures came to be put up for auction it was found that the supposed old masters were in reality most obvious copies, and many not even good copies. Four supposed Murillos went for $125 each, three Correggios for $125 for the group and Carracci's "Holy Family" for $75. The discovery threw such a damper over the sale that even the genuine pictures brought exceedingly low prices. The best price, $6,750, was for Paul Veronese's "Christ and His Disciples at Emmaus," while another Veronese, a "Venetian Noble," brought $5,000. A pair of Reynolds portraits, "George III." and "Queen Charlotte in Coronation Robes" fetched only $1,400.

FAILURE TO SUPPORT LABOR SCORED BY LEADER ROWELL

At Rousing Meeting in Owen Sound Premier's Policy Regarding Workmen's Legislation Was Scored—John McQuaker Replies to Roorback.

Owen Sound, July 11.—Evidence of the warm relations that exist between the Liberal party in the riding of North Grey and their former representative in the Legislature, who is now conducting a by-election in Alberta, was displayed tonight, when enthusiastic applause greeted the suggestion of Mr. N. W. Rowell that a telegram be sent to Hon. A. G. MacKay wishing him every encouragement and success in his campaign at Athabasca Landing.

This was only one of many striking features at the second meeting to be addressed by the Liberal leader during the present campaign. A crowd numbering about two thousand people, representing as fine an audience as ever came together in Owen Sound, gathered in the Riverside Rink and listened with rapt interest to the speeches of the Liberal leader and Mr. John McQuaker, the Liberal candidate.

Utter Failure. With clearness and conviction, Mr. Rowell pointed out to the large number of workmen present the utter failure and disaster which the Government had shown for the needs of the industrial classes by its tinkering with the important matter of workmen's compensation. He set forth the policy of the Government in the temperance issue, and in matters of tax reform and factory legislation showed that the Government was entirely out of touch with the requirements of the province. Since the case was being going to help the cause of progressive government to send a man to Toronto who would only add to the numbers that have lured the Government into a state of inertia.

Important Issues. Mr. W. H. Wright, Owen Sound, who was chairman, declared that the issues in the election commanded the respect of every elector, be he Liberal, Conservative, or Independent. He vigorously refuted the charges of the Conservative candidate that the Conservative candidate should be elected out of sympathy to Mr. MacKay.

When Mr. MacKay was running in the last election these same Conservatives were the very men who had circulated a foul slander about him, and now, when it suited their purpose, were capitalizing sympathy on the same grounds. Mr. Rowell, who was greeted with a most cordial reception, at once drew applause when he remarked that Mr. McQuaker would make a good representative for the riding. Yet in the world over, "Should it not be possible," he went on, "with our abundant prosperity in this province, for every honest and industrial worker to earn sufficient to provide for a rainy day?" (Applause.) Yet in today of industrial haste there was a human wear and tear that should not be allowed to exist. "Ontario is the only province in the Dominion," he declared, speaking of workmen's compensation, "which is years behind the times in this important legislation for the benefit of workmen, simply because we have a Government in power which has dallied with the matter for seven years."

Workmen Will Judge. When the Opposition had protested Conservative Apostates. "I do not need to be prepared," declared Mr. Rowell, "that Conservative temperance men who have been advocating this measure for years, who have been urging both political parties to support it, and who find that their proposals are accepted by one political party which stakes its political existence upon it, will turn their backs upon the policy which they have been advocating, and which they have urged them to accept, and I will believe it until Conservative temperance men go to the polls and vote against their past professions and convictions. I believe better of them." (Loud applause.)

He had respect for those whose judgment was different from his own, but asked each man to vote according to the dictates of his own conscience. Hanna Knew Charges. An organized attempt to minimize the importance of the Proudfitt charges against Hon. W. J. Hanna, Mr. Rowell penetrated by reading, extracting from the letter showing that Mr. Hanna himself regarded the threats of Geo. C. Taylor as so serious that if they were made public he would have to resign. "Mr. Hanna knew those charges," he appreciated the responsibility of his position," asserted the Liberal leader. "I pass no higher judgment upon Mr. Hanna than he has passed upon himself. It is simply the political exigencies of the Government that keep him from carrying out what he himself believes to be his duty as a minister of the crown and retire under the conditions mentioned."

Facts Stand Out. The bald facts of Mr. Hanna's admission stood out, and could not be denied. He demanded radical action on the part of the Government if it would free itself from the responsibility which rested upon it. Continuing, Mr. Rowell referred to the award of $2,000 by Thorn, Thorn was a man receiving a salary of about $2,500 a year, and yet he was allowed $1,000 for four days' work on the award in the Taylor, Scott & Co. claim. The whole claim had been rejected by Government officials. "Does anyone believe that they would have allowed the claim to be settled by Thorn except to silence the man who had dared to speak?" he asked. "If his charges were upheld, would demand the resignation of the most influential member of the Government?"

Answers Roorback. Mr. McQuaker, who was the only other speaker, drew applause when he spoke in the House against the recurring delay which had been going on year after year since 1907 Sir James Whitney had facetiously remarked that Jacob served these years for "Roorback." "It is quite proper that after ransacking human history Sir James Whitney had to go back to patriarchal days to find anything so slow-moving as this Government," said Mr. Rowell, amid roars of laughter. "It was not his issue, but that of the workmen, and he wanted to know what the workmen of Owen Sound would say on Monday to the indifference of the Government."

Dealing with the abolition of the bar, Mr. Rowell pointed out that the policy of the Liberal party was precisely that which the temperance organizations denied as being the most workable. Those who said it did not go far enough should bear in mind that it was all the temperance people had to offer. "It would be practicable at the present time. Neither did it go any farther than the promises given by Sir Oliver Mowat many years ago, that if it were not for Mr. MacKay's election, and his own to look after in Alberta he would have been fighting with him in North Grey. He was grateful for the support that had been assured him by prominent Conservatives. Mr. Rowell was due to the universal dissatisfaction with the "improved" public school system which the department of education was trying to foist on the people, which had been dangled in the interests of good government in the hands of the Opposition in the Legislature should be strengthened. The Government of Sir James Whitney would not be prepared to make a public affair if it did not have a majority of 66 in the House. The remainder of his time Mr. McQuaker devoted to answering election roorbacks that had been flying about since the riding to discredit his standing among workmen. He scorned an attempt to bribe, he constituency with the promise of a Normal school.

Big Profits Being Made FROM INTENSIVE FARMING Tomatoes Grown in Peach Orchard Pay Well and Shipping Has Already Started—Favored District Escaped the Early Frosts.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Forest, July 12.—The fruit growing industry which has been developing in this section during the past few years is just beginning to show the great opportunities there are here for this important branch of farming.

A visit to what is known as the Miles fruit farms, now owned by several different growers, is a revelation in itself. About forty acres are in peach trees just beginning to bear a full crop, and the yield this year will be large. On twenty acres, owned by E. A. Rawlings and Dr. H. N. McCordie, splendid crops of tomatoes are being grown among the young peach trees.

and the shipping of ripe tomatoes to the city market was commenced this week.

All escaped injury by the early June frosts, which did much damage in other parts. The crop will be a big one, and shipments will continue daily for some weeks.

It is being more clearly demonstrated every year that intensive farming on small holdings is most profitable in this locality.

This means greater wealth and more population to both town and country, and also increased prosperity to Forest and the whole surrounding country. Forest is now coming to its own.
