

CONSTIPATION BAD HEADACHES, FAINT, DIZZY SPELLS

Constipation is one of the commonest ailments of mankind, and one too often allowed to go unlooked after, until some serious complication sets in.

A free motion of the bowels daily would be the rule of everyone, then there will be no constipation, sick or nervous spells, dizziness, heartburn, indigestion, tongue, foul breath, sour stomach, floating specks before the eyes, jaundice, water brash, etc.

Keep the bowels properly regulated by the use of

MILBURN'S
and you will enjoy the best of health.

Mrs. Frank Wilsey, R. R. 3, Belmont, N. Y., writes: "I have been troubled with constipation for nearly two years. I had bad headaches, faint and dizzy spells, and would blot terribly. I was nearly discouraged, for I had tried so many things that gave me no relief. My sister got me a box of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and told me to give them a trial. After I had taken one I felt much better and continued them. Now I have no faint and dizzy spells and am gaining nicely. I would like to see without Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills for the world."—Adv.

KIDNEYS ACT BAD, TAKE SALTS

Backache Is Sign You
Have Been Eating Too Much Meat.

When you wake up with backache and all misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority.

Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become paralyzed and loggy.

When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you feel relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's noxious waste, else you have backache, headache, dizzy spells; your stomach, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of filament, channels often get sore, water and you are obliged to seek relief or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; use a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine.

Meat forms uric acid from the acid of apes and lemon juice, combined with this, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish bowels, also to neutralize acids in the blood so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot be abused and makes a delightful, effervescent, lithia-water drink.—Adv.

GOUIN SCORES OPPOSITION AS 'POOR LOSERS'

Declares Meighen Is "Blinded
by His Bitterness at Quebec."

LAUDS FIELDING TARIFF

Asserts Liberal Party Has Now But One Chief—
Premier King.

OTTAWA, March 15.—(By Canadian Press).—It was an eagerly expected and again a crowded house which heard Sir Lomer Gouin, minister of justice, today. No member of the Liberal administration has aroused more interest than the former premier of Quebec. He has already been attacked by the leaders of the official opposition and of the Progressives.

"Mr. Meighen," Sir Lomer himself observed in the house, "has taken pleasure, particular pleasure, in designating me the 'master of the administration.'"

"The Liberal party," Sir Lomer said, "has one chief and one chief only. That chief is the prime minister of Canada."

Debate on the address had been following a torpid course. But immediately Sir Lomer arose galleries and house filled rapidly. On the Speaker's left interest in the speech was especially keen. Progressive members, in particular, closely followed every word.

There were Liberal cheers again and again during the speech, and as Sir Lomer stressed the intention of the government to give public ownership of railways a fair trial a number of Progressives joined in the Liberal applause. There were those on the government side, Sir Lomer frankly admitted, who did not believe state ownership to be either practical or profitable. But he could not understand why Mr. Meighen should be suspicious of the good faith of the government or any of its members.

Meighen Will Learn.

Mr. Meighen, Sir Lomer observed, "has allowed himself to be blinded by his bitterness against the city of Montreal and against the province of Quebec—he is a good fighter, but a poor loser. But,"—and Sir Lomer's voice took an ironical tone—"he will have an opportunity to learn."

Mr. Meighen says he was defeated by the big interests of Montreal. The power that defeated Mr. Meighen was the will of the people."

On the tariff Sir Lomer declared that now, for the last 15 years, he favored the Laurier-Fielding policy. In the general election he told his electors that if returned to power Liberals would remain true to that policy.

Ex-Mayor Church of Toronto, in continuing the debate on the address at the opening, could not see what necessity there was for a Canadian high commissioner in London. He urged the St. Lawrence deep waterway, radical reform in Senate appointments, reorganization of the railway commission, and believed that better results in making appointments would be secured under patronage than under the civil service commission.

Progressive members who followed in the evening again pressed the viewpoint of the West. On natural resources D. M. Kennedy of West Edmonton thought the Prairie Provinces should not be asked to play the part of colonies to the older provinces.

When the House opened this afternoon T. L. Church of Toronto North, continuing his speech on the address from the throne, said Canada was very much behind the times in the matter of good roads. He advocated co-operation between the federal government, the provincial governments and the municipalities to improve roads.

On the railway situation, Mr. Church remarked that when we were told how much private ownership of railways had done for the country it was well to remember what the country had done for private ownership.

Mr. Church referred the minister of railways to the Drayton-Acworth report for advice on railway consolidation. He referred to the railways being in politics and said the greatest politicians in the country were the presidents and general managers of the railroads. The C. P. R. always supported the government of the day.

Church Attacks U. F. O.

Mr. Church said the U. F. O. had become unpopular in Ontario because it had not carried out its promises. Otherwise Mr. Crerar would have been called upon to form a government, and then he would have found the C. P. R. wishing itself upon him whether he wanted it or not.

Lord Shaughnessy was for co-ordination of the government roads with the C. P. R., and if Lord Shaughnessy had his way the C. P. R. would own the whole country, the heavens above and the waters under the earth.

He hoped that before long Hon. W. C. Kennedy, minister of railways, would indicate what he was going to do about it. Co-ordination indicated in the speech from the throne should not take long. When the United States entered the war the director-general of railways coordinated the three hundred American roads in 24 hours.

The management of the National Railways must be given a free hand. It would be a good thing for the government to bring down a bill providing for the reorganization of the railway commission. Mr. Church opposed a commission with the power of the present one.

He criticized the last freight increase granted by the commission on the ground that it was based on figures furnished by the Canadian Pacific Railway, and not investigated. He also voiced his disapproval of the last two telephone rate increases.

Blames Bad Roads.

Rural depopulation was not explained by either free trade or protection, for it was world-wide. The real explanation was lack of transportation and of good roads. This could not be supplied, in Mr. Church's opinion by the motor truck. Radial railways had done much to meet it in the United States, and the farmers of Ontario wanted them because it was believed that they would also solve the problem in Ontario.

Mr. Church declared himself in favor of protection and of Senate reform. He would like to see radical changes in the method of appointing the Senate.

There was an agitation in this country, to loosen the ties between Canada and the Motherland. It was impossible to agree with those who would abolish appeal to the imperial privy council. Canada did not need an ambassador at Washington, or even a high commissioner.

Hon. P. C. Larkin, Canadian high commissioner at London, now that he had received his appointment, should, like the speaker, forget his party politics.

Gouin Takes Floor.

Sir Lomer Gouin, minister of justice, said he would not have spoken in this debate if the leader of the opposition had not referred to his attitude in the last election campaign. Sir Lomer could count himself as a veteran in public life, but as a newcomer to the House of Commons. He confessed with candor and sincerity that he felt like a new draftee rising to address his fellow-members for the first time.

While listening to Mr. Meighen he could not help but think that the opposition leader should be grateful to him for being elected to the house. "If I had not been elected," said Sir Lomer, "the best effect of Mr. Meighen's speech would have been lost."

Sir Lomer did not propose to detain the house in answering all the criticisms levelled against him. He had sat for many years in another parliament, and had never attempted to impose his personal views on any subject. "I never made a long speech in defending myself from personal attack, and I do not intend to depart from that practice now," he said.

Mr. Meighen had referred to the paragraph in the speech from the throne which said: "Our Dominion has not escaped the world-wide economic disturbance and industrial depression, but has suffered less from it than other countries."

Wants More Credit.

During the election the country was at a serious crisis, and the picture I drew of economic conditions was no darker than the picture drawn by Mr. Meighen, Sir Lomer said. Mr. Meighen should have given Sir Lomer more credit than to attribute to him the statement that Canada's population was decreasing. "I never made such a declaration," Sir Lomer asserted. I did say, however, that the customs revenue was decreasing, and this was borne out by treasury returns.

No one could say that he was misleading the public when he had stated that the national debt had increased to an alarming extent. His election material had not exaggerated, but was an accurate description of the economic conditions and state of mind of the people at that time.

Circumstances had changed since the dissolution of the last parliament, and the feeling of security which was already noticeable and the general revival of business were due to the confidence the people of Canada placed in the new government.

Mr. Meighen had referred to Sir Lomer's statement on the tariff question, and had insinuated that this stand was inspired by certain interests, to which Mr. Meighen attributed the defeat of his party and the triumph of the Liberals.

Views Are Unchanged.

"My views on the tariff have never changed for the past twenty-five years," said Sir Lomer. "For fifteen years I have followed, approved, endorsed the Laurier-Fielding policy. During the last election I advocated the same policy. I told the electors of Laurier-O'Leary and the Province of Quebec that if the Liberal party secured their confidence the Liberal party would remain true to the Laurier-Fielding policy, and would carry it into effect."

"That policy I would carry into effect in revising the tariff to meet the necessities which have arisen since the last revision, taking into account the necessities of the consumer, of the farmer—for agriculture is a basic industry in this country—and the necessities of manufacturers in general. That policy I advocated before the general election. That policy I advocated in the city of Quebec some years before the general election at a dinner at which Mr. Meighen then applauded my declaration and made no insinuations such as those he made the other day."

Sir Lomer said that Mr. Crerar had quoted from one of his speeches before the Shoe Manufacturers' Association, and seemed to have found therein a declaration indicating an intention to raise the tariff on shoes. It was surprising that Mr. Crerar had made such a discovery. Sir Lomer added that he had only reminded the shoe manufacturers that their era of prosperity had followed the tariff revision in 1907.

Lauds Tariff Policy.

He had reminded them and their 70,000 employees, that all their prosperity they owed to the Laurier-Fielding tariff policy.

Mr. Meighen, in speaking on the railways, had endeavored to make it appear that some mysterious power inspired those people to express the opinion that they did not believe in state ownership and operation of railways. Mr. Meighen had come out categorically in favor of nationalization.

"He is sincere, I know," said Sir Lomer, "but why should he cast suspicion on those who do not share his views?"

"It is not a question which concerns Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Vancouver, or any other city in particular. It is a question which concerns Canada as a whole; and the solution we seek is the solution which should be satisfactory to the interests of our country generally."

Mr. Meighen has stated that every one of the orders-in-council passed by his government was necessary for the good administration of the country, and he has stated that this government passed an order-in-council which deprived Canada of many of its rights. "I can tell him that in every case where an order-in-council passed by his government was submitted to the courts, it was declared illegal and ultra vires. It is not orders-in-council that hinder that this government has passed in regard to the fisheries in the province of Quebec. We have passed an order-in-council only to conform to a judgment of the privy council, and I wish to state that in passing such an order-in-council the federal government abandoned not an inch of territory nor renounced a shadow of right in favor of the province of Quebec.

Blinded by Bitterness.

"Mr. Meighen allows himself to be blinded by his bitterness against Montreal and against the province of Quebec, and he is leading other provinces to believe that by order-in-council the government has favored the province of Quebec, which never asked for a favor and never received any."

"I admire Mr. Meighen's high attainments and a good fighter, but I regret to say that he is not a good loser. He will have an opportunity to learn and I hope that some day I will be able to say that he is as good a loser as he is a fighter."

"Mr. Meighen has taken pleasure, particular pleasure, in designating me as the master of the administration." This is an old game which has been played before in this house by some of Mr. Meighen's predecessors and there is one thing I regret; it is that it is resorted to today not so much to annoy me as to accentuate the unfortunate differences which have existed for too long between certain provinces of the Confederation and the province of Quebec.

Have But One Chief.

"The Liberal party has one chief, and one chief only. That chief is the prime minister of Canada, the present leader of this house. He has and he can depend upon the loyal support of all his colleagues, of every one of the Liberal members of this house and of every Liberal in Canada. As for myself, I am nothing but a man of good will. I hope I will be long enough in this house to convince all my fellow-members, Conservatives and Progressives as well as Liberals, that I have only one ambition in coming here—it is simply to be permitted to serve my country in my own modest way, and in the West. He felt that the gov-

ment should make a strong stand in regard to reducing freight rates. In regard to the return of natural resources, Mr. Kennedy held that the Prairie provinces should not be asked to play the "part of colonies" to the older provinces. The resources should simply be handed back to them.

There were prolonged Liberal cheers as Sir Lomer resumed his seat. D. M. Kennedy, Progressive, of Edmonton West, observed that Sir Lomer Gouin had told the house that the government was going to give the country the Laurier tariff. Mr. Kennedy would be quite satisfied if that tariff were framed in the temper shown in Sir Wilfrid Laurier's utterances when he described protection as "robbery and bondage."

There has been substantial reduction in the tariff since 1896, and after 40 years of tariff policy there was now more unemployment and hardship in Canada than at any time. He deplored "lack of definiteness" in the Government's references to tariff reduction and immigration.

Freight rates was a vital problem country in my own modest way, and in the West. He felt that the gov-

ment should make a strong stand in regard to reducing freight rates. In regard to the return of natural resources, Mr. Kennedy held that the Prairie provinces should not be asked to play the "part of colonies" to the older provinces. The resources should simply be handed back to them.
