Grain Markets

Canadian Press Despatch.
Winnipeg, Sept. 3.— The wheat market displayed a firmer tone today, and for the first time in many days the market closed higher than the previous day. The main strength came from the American markets, with corn the leader, prices being over 4c higher, which made wheat about 2c higher both at Chicago and Winnipeg. October delivery, after opening fractionally higher at $1.34 to $1.35%, closed at $1.35%, an advance of 21%c. November closed at $1.35 asked. December closed 2c higher at $1.32½, and May 2c at $1.36%.

Export buying was again in evidence today, and, judging from the buying that has been going on for the past two or three days, prices have reached a level at which Europe is willing to purchase some wheat.

The foreign demand, formerly for old wheat crop, was for October shipment for the first time this season.

The volume of trade was quite large today, with a fairly good class of buving in evidence. There was very little investment buying.

In the coarse grains trading was not very heavy, although there was a good inquiry for oats and barley. There was also better buying in the rye market. The flax market continued its upward trend.

Associated Press Despatch.
Chicago, Sept. 4.—Corn jumped over the dollar mark today for ordinary contract deliveries made any time this month. Some of the earliest trades showed September at nearly 2c gain, as compared with yesterday's finish. 99%c. New crop deliveries also scored a material fresh advance. Initial quotations ½c to 1c up, were followed by something of a reaction, then by a rise that lifted September to $1.01½ and December to 88%c.
Wheat was easier, influenced by relative weakness of prices at Liverpool. Opening at ½c off to %c up the market her underwent a moderate general setback and recovered somewhat.
Oats sympathized with corn. Starting unchanged to ½c higher, the oat market held near to quoted figures.
