JUDGE LYON ON THE SCAFFOLD

This May Be Jessie Keith's Assassin.

AN ARREST WHICH MAY BE IMPORTANT

A Tramp Who Fully Answers the Description.

Not Yet Fully Identified by the Parties Who Saw the Murderer—A Suspicious Handle Found in His Possession—Unable to Give a Satisfactory Account of His Movements—Says He Has Been Arrested—Governor Has Witnessed Many Executions—Governor's Detective Murray at Work on the Case.

Listowel, Oct. 23.—The excitement caused by the Keith tragedy no sooner became somewhat abated by lapse of time than it is revived again by reports of some new developments in this case.

Understandably, however, the watchfulness of the rural constabulary has not resulted in anything that can be relied upon with certainty, that the monster has been apprehended.

Government Detective J. W. Murray arrived here to-night and will go at once to Stratford, taking with him several witnesses to identify fully the person now in custody.

This may be the murderer. About 1 o'clock to-day the report became current that a man had been captured at Erin who answered the description of the fugitive in every particular and that he was on the way to town for identification.

Business for the day was again abandoned. Constable Travis and Reeve C. H. Walker and arrived on the 2:22 train. Those who had been notified by the commission of the crime were notified by the police before the train arrived.

The man's pedigree. Notwithstanding the fact that those people would not say that he was the man wanted, it is not improbable that he is the very murderer.

His name is Alma. He was born at St. Hyacinthe, Que., and was first seen at Erin about noon Monday, and was then heading towards the country.

He was wearing a dark coat, a pair of trousers, and a hat. He was carrying a bundle on his back, which he had taken from the C.P.R. train going west.

A pack of cards, lady's hairbrush, comb, and a piece of soap, were found on his person. He was carrying a bundle on his back, which he had taken from the C.P.R. train going west.

His opinion of Listowel. He got supper at a farmer's named Cook in Garraffa Township about 5 o'clock, and slept in the swamp that night. When asked why he went so far out of his way, and why he did not pass through Listowel, he replied: "I had to go to the swamp to get my bundle."

Recognized by several people. On the journey from Erin to Listowel the whole country seemed to be roused, and nothing was talked of but the crime. The man was recognized at several points along the route as having passed through which showed that he had been in the direction from which he came.

Many of his statements bore evidence of falsehood, and the fact of his leaving the country seemed to be proved, and nothing was talked of but the crime. The man was recognized at several points along the route as having passed through which showed that he had been in the direction from which he came.

Beaver Plug is the old reliable gentleman's cheer. Try it.

of his belongings. He gave his ring to his brother Bert, his share in their house to Cooper and himself a share in the canoe to witness also, and his tools to his brother Willie.

STILL NO CLUE TO FRANK WESTWOOD'S SLAYER.

MRS. WESTWOOD GIVES HER EVIDENCE

It Substantiates That of Other Members of the Family.

The Theory That the Boy Was Killed Because of an Intercourse with a Young Woman Not Borne Out by the Testimony of His Chums—Not Known to Have Kept Company With Any Female —What He Told Edgar Lennox and How He Knew He Must Die—The Inquest Adjourned.

Absolutely no facts which tend to throw light on the mysterious murder of Frank Westwood at the door of his father's residence, No. 28 Jameson-avenue, were brought out at the adjourned inquest held in the red tower hall, Parkdale, last evening. The members of the family not heretofore examined, Mrs. Westwood, the mother of the dead boy, and his brother Willie, were called, and after their evidence had been heard the police promptly dropped the theory they have hitherto been working upon, and called a score of witnesses with a view of ascertaining if there was anything in the stories so industriously circulated that he had been slain to avenge the honor of some as yet unknown family. But there was nothing in the evidence of the bosom companions of the dead boy to lead to the conclusion that the grim knife of the old hag Clotie, the last of the three Fates, had cut the thread of Frank Westwood's life. With the detectives it is still a case of "as you were."

Mrs. Westwood testified that Frank was home for supper on Saturday, and went out about 7:30. He returned at about 10:30. She testified that she saw him at 10:30. She testified that she saw him at 10:30. She testified that she saw him at 10:30.
