CAPTAIN LOCKETT OF THE BRIDGETOWN FIRE ENGINE COMPANY

desires us to inform the heroic band comprising this company that they are requested to meet at the engine house this evening for the purpose of putting the apparatus in order for the winter.

CHICKEN.

Dr. DeBello, of this town, had a very fine cock choked to death on Sunday by getting a potato stuck in her throat.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE BRIDGETOWN AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY will take place at Buckler's Hotel on Tuesday, the 4th of December.

MISCELLANEOUS.

There is a highly valued and curious relic in the university of Gottingen, Hanover, being a Bible which is written on sixty-four hundred and seventy-six palm leaves.

A canopy at Ballston Spa, Minn., has been taught to sign "A Life on the Ocean Wave," but a music box playing that tune had to be kept constantly running for four months in order to do it.

The honor of introducing the custom of riding horseback sideways is conceded to Anna of Bohemia until whose time ladies of all ranks rode astride like men, and as the Indian women do to-day, on the plains of the far West.

There is a rich but eccentric merchant in London who rises early every morning and perambulates the business streets just at daylight to pick up the horse shoes which have slipped during the night. He has a collection of those which he has accumulated, for which he would not take any sum of money.

The U. S. Consul at Pernambuco transmits to Washington details respecting the suffering in North Eastern Brazil by prolonged drought. In some districts of Ceara cattle have become extinct. The loss up to October the 1st is estimated at 80,000 head. Over a hundred persons perished in Ceará, and owing to delay in forwarding Government relief thousands must succumb. Over 75,000 people are suffering. Government has disbursed half a million.

ENTREPRENEUR IN KINGS.

A barquentine lately launched at Cornwallis has been chartered by G. W. Stuart, of the Colonial Country Market, in this city, as a party in Kings county, to load potatoes for England.—Chronicle.

AT CREEDMOOR

Mr. Thomas Lamb, jr., one of the reserves of the American rifle team for 1877, made the astounding score of thirty bulls' eyes, at the nine hundred yard range. This makes him the champion marksman of the world, and the score will probably never be equalled; it certainly cannot be excelled.—N. Y. Herald.

IN NEW YORK

a few nights since burglars attempted to break into a store on Broadway. The dog inside heard the noise and began to scratch at the door, which was closed, and the burglars fled.

CAPTAIN BOYTON

has crossed the Straits of Messina (from Italy to Sicily) in a storm which was so severe as to endanger the boats, but did not deter him from his task. On the passage across, the captain had an interview with a shark, which was curious about the Boyton dress, but did not damage further than striking Boyton with its tail.

THE LONGEST RAILROAD BRIDGE

in the world was opened for public travel near Dundee, Scotland, the other day. It spans the Forth at a point where it is three miles in width, and was built by the North British Railway Company.

THE GIANT STEAMER OF THE WORLD is the "Great Eastern," which is to be built by the Great Eastern Dock and Shipbuilding Co., Ltd. It is to be 800 feet long, and its cost will be $5,000,000. It will carry a strain of 21 tons to the square inch, and is a wonderful product of engineering skill.

SOME MEDICAL STUDENTS

in one of the Cincinnati colleges, dissecting a female subject a few days ago, found what is called in doctor's parlance, a "corset liver." When tight lacing has been practiced through several years, a permanent dent or hollow is produced in the liver, which may be seen very plainly after the woman is dead and her liver is taken out.

MOVEMENTS OF THE FISHING FLEET.

The arrivals for the past week have been principally confined to the Banks and Bay Fishes, the vessels detained so long at Canso by unfavorable winds having put in an appearance and landed their fares. The number of arrivals from the Banks since our last issue has been 12, and the receipts 1550 lbs. The stock has nearly all been taken, and the market is firmer. The Shore fleet are nearly all in, and the season about closed. Forty vessels, including a few from Gloucester, were reported off Cape Cod on Wednesday morning, taking mackerel. There have been 28 arrivals this week. The Bank fleet make short trips, and mostly have light stocks, 28 arrivals have been reported the past week, bringing 445,000 lbs. codfish and 375,000 lbs. halibut. The number of arrivals from Georges has been 9, and the receipts 20,000 lbs. codfish. Total number of fishing arrivals for the week, 57.—Cape Ann Advertiser.

THE CAPTURE OF KARS.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—The "Daily News" says: "Kars was captured by about 15,000 Russians who climbed the steep rocks of the ramparts and walls and stormed an equal number of desperately fought Russian troops in headlong flight over their ditches and parapets, compelling them to die or surrender. The escalade had been originally fixed for the 13th, but postponed owing to bad weather. The principal attack was made on the southern front. General Loris Melikoff, who commanded the right wing consisting of the fourth division, assaulted Hafiz Pasha—a fort crowning the steep rocky heights. Gen. Count Grobby with a regiment of Moscow grenadiers and a regiment of the 39th Division, attacked Hafiz Pasha in the centre, Klantli Tobas, Sanvarre and Tobia, 3 towers and citadel; the Arshian brigade and another regiment of Moscow grenadiers, under Gen. Roop and Romdoff forming the left wing, assaulted Fort Engles on the north."

The attack began in the centre at 8.30 o'clock on Saturday evening, when Count Grobby led his brigade against Khanli redoubt, and himself fell dead in the first onslaught, pierced by a bullet. Capt. Kwadnicko of the 30th Regiment, was the first to enter the redoubt at 11 o'clock at night. His sword was cut clean out of his hand, and clothes pierced. The redoubt surrendered early in the morning, and then the three towers almost simultaneously with the capture of Khanli redoubt. The Citadel, Fort Souvre, and Fort Hafiz Pasha, was carried by assault. By daylight on Sunday morning, Gen. Garzeroff's troops had made progress so far as the capture of Fort Karadagh. The other forts, especially Arab Tobia, on the east, and Tokineh and Tobia, on the west, maintained stubborn resistance until 8 o'clock, when all the garrisons which could escape fled towards Erzerum, but these were subsequently overtaken by Dragoons and Cossacks, and brought back prisoners.

Gen. Melikoff, when summoning Mukhtar Pasha to evacuate Erzerum, informed him of the capture of Kars, and that if he resisted he would be attacked by eighty thousand men with overwhelming artillery. Mukhtar replied that he would hold Erzerum to the last.

EUROPE.

ATHENS, Nov. 24. In consequence of the recent speeches in Parliament the Ministry resigned. The King refused to accept their resignations, and the crisis continues. The popular have become warlike since the late Russian victories.

The Russians have ordered supplies of food in expectation of the early capitulation of Plevna.

The Montenegrins are bombarding Lenoria, a fortified island at the northern extremity of Lake Scutari.

It is reported that Osman Pasha has opened negotiations for the surrender of Plevna. This must be accepted with reserve.

An attempt to cap the Pope failed, and has produced a state of uneasiness in the chest. Cardinal Simeoni, in view of the condition of the Pope, asked the cardinals to confer with him on the general interests of the Papacy, and a special species of council of regency will be appointed.

Works for new docks at Liverpool were so damaged by a gale, forty acres of excavation have to be made, that is feared 2,700 men will be thrown out of work for three weeks.

A despatch from Tiflis says a corps will shortly attack Batoum with heavy artillery.

The Caucasian insurrection is increasing. The insurgents stormed the fortified town of Kassar on the 12th inst., and captured the garrison.

PARIS, Nov. 24. The new ministry is gazetted to-day. The morning's Republican journals report that the Republicans cannot accept it. They will reject any compromise as long as satisfaction is not given to universal suffrage.

M. Lepelletier, the new minister of Justice, was a distinguished magistrate of the court of Cassation. Politically he is a Conservative, but without enthusiasm for any monarchial party. M. Graf, Minister of Public Works, was a member of the road and bridges Department in the late ministry of Public Works. Admiral Roussin is a naval officer, and was Under Secretary of the last ministry of Marine.

News from Serbia is very warlike.

Mr. Layard, British Ambassador, has demanded the abolition of exceptional permits to foreign vessels, threatening if not granted that England will refuse to recognize the Black Sea blockade.

PARIS, Nov. 24. There are rumors that England has sent an ultimatum to Russia.

UNITED STATES.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24. A passenger train on the Chesapeake and Potomac, South Carolina, through a trestle bridge at Fishing Creek late yesterday afternoon, all but the locomotive falling through. About twenty passengers were on the train, of whom several were killed, drowned or injured.

Innocent rains the past forty-eight hours in Western Virginia, have raised the rivers to extraordinary heights, causing great damage.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 24. The observance at Kitty Hawk reports the United States steamer "Albatross" 2 miles north of station at 3.30 a. m. The forecast and mainmast are gone. The steamer is a total wreck. Assistance is needed immediately. The vessel is over her head and several bodies have already been washed ashore. The number on board is about 132; no cargo.

INCIDENTS OF THE FEARFUL COLLIERIES EXPLOSION AT BLANTYRE.

The Glasgow Mail, in speaking of the terrible catastrophe, says:—

The meaning of a calamity like the High Blantyre colliery explosion may be understood, to a certain extent, at the scene of its enactment, when the terrified and blinded men, in full view, and the naked truth staring in the light of day. But to realize its deeper import, you must turn aside from the crowded pit mouth, and step into the darkened houses of the bereaved. At some distance from the pits the colliers' neat little cottages, or rather cabins, stretch along a goodly space. A portion is called "Dixon's Row," and here a rule, the homes were neat and clean, and some displayed a great amount of taste in the decorations, notably the homes of the young couples who had recently set up house-keeping on their own account. The substantial handsome chest of brightly polished mahogany drawers; the shining large looking-glass; match, the decorated windows; the pretty ornaments on mantel-piece and elsewhere (marriage gifts) and the cosy, clean fireside, looking so cheery and inviting, just as when a day ago it welcomed the little young husband from his work. "Oh I can't think my mind will never come home to me," cried a young wife, as the tears showered down her fair, glistening cheeks.

A step or two farther on, a young wife, nineteen years of age, sat weeping for her husband. Her fatherless baby lay at her breast, calmly sleeping. Besides her husband had had his brother, her father, her uncle and cousin. "Just two days ago we were a happy family; and now—" breaking down she could say nothing more but sobbed as if her heart was breaking.

Two young wives, sisters, were in the next house. They had lost their husbands both. One, the younger, sat at the fireside in her husband's chair, crying, faintly. She could not speak. "There is a heavy stroke," said a neighbor, looking from the one sister to the other. "They are mourning for four who are killed, husband, father, brother and brother-in-law." It was pitiful to see the different phases of grief in those desolate dwellings, some, like poor Annie B., seemed utterly overpowered with grief; some seemed dazed and terror-stricken; some were frantic in their anguish. One woman, who had been told that her husband would get out alive if he had not tried to save his little son, seemed beside herself with grief. Down at Larkfield there is one house from which the husband, four sons, and a lodger, went out yesterday morning strong and well, never to return. Here is a young man, pitman, two-and-twenty; he has been working with the explorers till he is quite exhausted, and he is pale and ill looking. Listen to what he says:—"I am the only man left out of about a dozen relatives." He has two uncles, two cousins, a brother-in-law, a cousin's husband, and so on by-lying in No. 3. Concern who can of the desolation that has come upon this young man! The ramifications of the visitation are endless; you cannot speak to a miner, scarcely without discovering that he is related either near or distant to some one who has been killed. I attach myself to a group of seven men who are talking about mining affairs in general; one of them goes away, and it is remarked after he has gone that his brother's body has not been recovered yet. By-and-by it comes out that another member of the same group has lost his brother and his nephews by the explosion.

In every house there seemed to be a hungry longing for the dead to be brought home. "Just to ken where they will be laid that we may go to the grave," was the explanation; and the fear that husband, or brother, or father, or son, would not be "gotten frae the pit," intensified the anguish of the bereaved as it came up like a nightmare. In another house two were wailed for, father and son. The boy, a bright little fellow, had gone off with his father in high spirits on that fatal morning, and his mother sat in the image of mute despair brooding over her double loss with that dry-eyed sorrow which is so painful to witness. Her beautiful, expressive face looked like breathing marble, and a glance at it told that her heart was broken.

Passing on, another and picture presented itself. A woman sat weeping for her husband and her three sons, all of whom had left her hearty and well in the early morning, and a touching incident was related. It is like a dream, and it was the sons had "listed," and was home on furlough. "I had been a soldier, he was trying to get money raised by his friends to buy him out, and to help him had gone to work in the pit along with his father and brothers; but he went to meet his death," said his mother with a quivering lip, "and the boys were in the pit, and he had to go to the soldier's coat that was lying as he had hung it off before going to his work. In the next house the family had come from England just a fortnight ago, and the two boys who had been the pride of their English home had perished with their new comrades. "See," cried the distracted mother, taking up a clarinet, and a brass instrument, "that's all that's left us." They were handsome and first rate musicians, it appeared. Such are a few of the histories the explosion has left to tell; but, with one more, shall close the dreary detail. It was the last house visited. They had lost five. The little group of mourners composed mother, daughters, and two younger children, one a bonnie boy of four summers. Bella (their sister) could not control her grief but burst into tears again whenever she recovered from the stupor that long watching had produced. Her mother seemed as if she had so many tears to shed, but her voice shook as she counted over her lost ones. "Five taken away, my husband, my son, my daughter's husband, my brother, and my wife," she said. "It's like a dream," she said. "My dear dear man left me hearty and well in the morning, and I tied his cravat round his neck ere he went away. He had a will in his pocket, and in a pit, he never had a mishap." "But," she added, lifting her sorrowful white face, and looking upwards with calm fortitude, "I know that God does all things well. I will be satisfied, but it canna be for lang and we will meet again in Heaven." All sorts of stories of miraculous escapes are being related, and must be received with reserve. One woman it seems to be well authenticated, was three different times on the road to the pit on Monday morning, and so often had to turn back in quest of her coat, that she forgot his face, his blinding accident, or some such thing, and on the last occasion it had grown so late that he stayed in another, and so saved his life. Another man, in the habit of scolding for being late in the morning. Angry at being spoken to on Monday last, they said they would go out at all that morning, and they lay still in bed and saved their lives.

NO RISK.

Thomson's Electric Oil! Worth Ten Times its Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.

Pain cannot stay where it is used. It is the cheapest medicine ever made. One bottle has cured BRONCHITIS. Fifty cents' worth has cured an Old Standing Cough. One or two bottles cured bad cases of PILES and Hemorrhoids. Six to eight applications cure ANY CASE OF EXCORIATED NIPPLES OR INFLAMED BREAST. One bottle has cured LAME BACK of eight years' standing. Daniel Flank, of Brookfield, Ties County, writes: "I have fifty miles for the bottle of your Oil, which effected a wonderful cure of a CROOKED LIMB, by six applications." Another who has had ASTHMA cured writes: "I have half of a 50 cent bottle left, and $100 would not buy it if I could get no more."

Bonus Robinson, of Nunda, N. Y., writes: "One bottle of your Electric Oil restored the voice where the person had not spoken above a whisper in Five Years." Rev. J. Mallory, of Wyoming, N. Y., writes: "Your Electric Oil cured me of Bronchitis in one week."

It is composed of SIX of the Best Oils THAT ARE KNOWN. Is as good for Internal as for External use, and is believed to be immeasurably superior to anything ever made. Will save you much suffering and many dollars of expense.
