OUR RETAIL ESTABLISHMENTS. THE EXTENSIVE CLOTHING HOUSE OF J. G. KENNEDY & CO.

It has been the aim of the Commercial Review, in the exhibits we have made of the various branches of industry with which our city abounds, to mention only those establishments that can be fairly called representatives of their trade. And while as a general rule we have taken only those which do a wholesale business, we have not overlooked those in the retail trade which, from the magnitude of their operations, deserve especial mention. Within the last few years a great change has taken place in the clothing trade. Ready-made goods are now produced in as fine fabrics and as good styles and make as are the most of custom-made suits. In fact there are many of our best citizens who buy ready-made clothing entirely, and none of their acquaintances are aware that their stylish suit do not come from a fashionable tailor. Especially has this feature of the trade been apparent during the hard times and when economy was a necessity. The most extensive retail clothing house in this city is that of Messrs. J. G. Kennedy & Co., No. 31 St. Lawrence st. We had the pleasure of visiting this establishment a few days since, and we can safely assert that a larger finer or more stylish stock of clothing would be hard to find. The building occupied by them is four stories in height and is filled to repletion with every class of goods in the clothing line, comprising men's boys' and youths' ready-made clothing in every variety, Canadian and Scotch tweeds, cassimeres, doekings, &c. On the first floor is the stock of over coats, suits, &c., in the latest styles and makes, and sold at prices to suit the most exacting. Indeed it would be difficult to find a customer who could not be suited in his department. The measuring and cutting department is also on this floor. Here the finest custom-made clothing can be obtained at minimum prices. The 3rd and 4th floors are devoted to clothing of every description. They carry at all times a fine stock of tweeds, broadcloths, &c., in bales. Their clothing for excellence of quality and first class workmanship and finish cannot be surpassed. We commend any of our readers who really want superior, well fitting, stylish, and durable custom or ready-made garments at bottom prices to pay this house a visit they are sure to be suited by going to this fine establishment.—Advt.

NATURALISTS' PORTFOLIO.

LOSS OF MEMORY.—The celebrated Professor Lourdat of Montpellier, was obliged to recommence his medical studies from the very beginning after terminating them with distinction—a typhoid fever having destroyed the fruits of five or six laborious years' study.

EFFECT OF FAMINE UPON THE HAIR.—One very curious effect of the Indian famine has been related by an eye-witness. It has turned the naturally jet-black hair of the native, red, and the impression which the victims produce is most extraordinary. Still, it is no joking matter under the circumstances, but would be else.

A NEW SPIDER.—A spider capable of making a noise has been discovered in Assam; it is known as Alygale aridulans, is as large as a small mouse, and its bite is very venomous. The noise, a grating or stridulating one, is produced by rubbing together some of the organs attached to the mouth. This spider has been lately described before the Entomological Society.

THE WILD DUCK AND THE OYSTER.—A short time ago a wild duck was floating dead in Chesapeake Bay with a large oyster firmly attached to its bill. It is thought that the bird, on seeking its usual food at the bottom, accidentally put its bill between the gaping shells of the oyster, and so was compelled to bring it to the surface, and not having strength to support it there, or to fly away with it, the head drooped, and the bird was drowned.

A CLOWN AND HIS PATRONS.—The clown Flexmore, Mr. E. L. Blanchard tells us, had an absolute passion for the study of natural history. In the garden at the back of his house in Hercules Buildings, Lambeth, he had at one time a small menagerie, and every animal that it contained had been taught to do something. There was a Dotking fowl that would stand upon its head for a piece of biscuit; a tractable snake that would select the ace of spades from a pack of cards; a large Newfoundland dog that might be trusted to deliver letters at the door and await an answer; and a clever performing goose that would dance the Sailors' Hornpipe when Flexmore played the tune on his fiddle.

BRIDGE-BUILDING AND MASON ELEPHANTS.—In India elephants are extensively used in building public works. Their great strength and intelligence make them valuable assistants to bridge-builders and stonemasons. Some are used for moving large stones and timber into proper position; others are employed as masons—"mason" elephants is their technical name. These place large stones on a wall, and move them with their trunks until they are on a level. Few sights are more interesting to a traveller than to see several elephants at work on a bridge. Some are bringing timber and stones to the workmen, while others are laying them in their places, and all working as they were trained, bridge-builders or stonemasons.

THE COLOUR OF OYSTERS.—France has green oysters, the most esteemed also, which come from Marennes. She has first supplied red oysters from Arcachon; the fish is fat and savoury, but people became squeamish about the colour. It was perhaps "latent Radicalism" at last made manifest; it was resolved to hold an oyster congress, so the wisest chemists in Paris were summoned to Bordeaux. They reported that the result was owing to the enclosed beds having been subject to an evaporation since two months, and no fresh water stream having traversed them during that period, the iodine contained in the sea-water had increased inordinately, thus "dyeing" the bivalve, which is also a voracious feeder. Already "iodine oysters," as white as snow, from Ostend, are advertised.

THE DRUNKARD AND HIS DOG.—One evening a reporter for a Paris Newspaper was going home rather late, in the midst of most horrible weather, when he overtook a drunken man trying to climb the Rue de Rome. He was followed by a mongrel dog, which kept at his heels and seemed to stagger like his master. The drunken man stopped, and the dog began to bite at his legs. "Let me alone, will you?" cried the drunkard. "I'm going on after a rest." But the dog continued to tug at his trousers. The reporter stopped to see the end of this curious scene. "There—there!" cried the man of length. "I'm going on; you'll tear the clothes off me." He started, and the dog trotted at his heels. After a few yards the drunkard again stopped, and the same scene occurred, the dog snapping until his master began to go forward. The reporter went a mile out of his way to see this intelligent dog take his master home, and he saw him wag his tail with evident satisfaction as the drunkard reeled over his threshold.

THE WOOD RAT.—The wood-rat (Neotoma) of the Pacific coast is a most uncomfortable neighbour, being possessed of inveterate thieving propensities. To settlers who live in log cabins it is an especial nuisance, as it domesticates itself under the eed covering the roof, whence it sallies forth on frequent raids, pilfering every article it can run away with. In wild regions the wood-rat builds its domicile on the ground, or on the lower branches of trees, forming a dome-shaped structure, often ten or twelve feet high, and six or eight feet in diameter. Openings in the mass lead to the centre, where is found the nest, consisting of the finely-divided inner bark of trees, dried grass, &c. A gentleman writing from one of the States west of the Rocky Mountains describes a nest of the wood-rat that was found in a deserted dwelling in which had been stowed kegs of spikes, carpenter's tools, engine-packing, a cooking stove, table furniture, &c. The house was uninhabited for two years, save as tramps had occasionally used it for shelter at night. On entering the building at the end of that time, the writer saw a huge rat's nest on the empty stove. "On examining this nest," he says, "which was about five feet in height, and occupied the whole top of the stove (a large range), I found the outside to be composed of finely divided fibres of the hemp packing. Interspersed with the spikes were found the following: About three dozen knives, forks and spoons, all the butcher knives, steel in number, a large carving-knife and fork, three, several large plugs of tobacco; the outer casing of a silver watch was disposed in one part of the pile, the glass of the same what in another, and the works in still another, an old purse, containing some silver, matches and tobacco; nearly all the small tools from the tool-closets, among them several large augurs. Altogether, it was a curious mixture of different articles, all of which must have been transported some distance, as they were originally stored in different parts of the house." The articles of value woven into the structure of this nest were believed to have been stolen from the men who had broken into the house for temporary lodging. Another incident illustrating the thieving habits of the animals is related by the author of the above, as it was told him by a miner. The latter had at the time obtained employment in a mining camp, where the men all slept in the same cabin. "Shortly after his arrival, small articles commenced to disappear; if a whole plug of tobacco were left on the table, it would be gone in the morning. Finally a bag containing $100 or more in gold-dust, was taken from a small table at the head of the bunk, in which one of the proprietors of the claim slept; suspicion fell on the new-comer, and he would, perhaps have fared hardly—for, with these rough men, punishment is short and sharp—but, just in time, a large rat's nest was discovered in the garret of the cabin, and in it was found the missing money, as well as the tobacco and other articles supposed to have been stolen."

THE MIC-MAC REMEDY A SPECIFIC FOR SMALL-POX. ANOTHER VICTORY FOR MAJOR LANE. A HOPELESS CASE OF SMALL-POX CURED BY THE MIC-MAC REMEDY. To MAJOR JNO. LANE, GREENFIELD, MASS.

Dear Sir,—I telegraphed for a package of your Small-Pox Remedy on last Monday, which I received the following day. I would have instantly responded and forwarded the money, but thought I would wait the result of its trial. I prepared the medicine myself so as to render everything secure; and I am proud to be able to state that it produced almost instantaneous relief. It was a malignant case of Small-Pox—in fact, there was no hope of recovery expressed on any side; but by the application of your famous Remedy it easily yielded. Enclosed I send you a five dollar bill. Please acknowledge. Your truly, Rev. W. A. HENNEBERRY.

Price 85 per package. Sent to any part of the Dominion, post paid on receipt of price—a liberal discount to Clergymen, Physicians and Charitable institutions. R. E. McCALE, Dispensing Chemist, 301 St. Joseph Street.
