COMMENT FROM MONTH TO MONTH.

The Ontario Medical Council has met for 1911. It was the first meeting of the new Council, and, apparently, better than its predecessors gripped the situation.

The medical press and the profession at large have long and patiently called for reforms.

We may now look forward to the abolition of "defunct institution" representation, and quite likely a reduction of homeopathic and territorial representation.

Students will hail the day when the primary and intermediate examinations have been abolished.

Although two teachers on the staff of the University of Toronto Medical Department were denied admission and participation in the deliberations of the Council, on account of their dual capacity—one representing Trinity and the other Victoria—why make fish of one and fowl of another? Surely the representatives of other non-medical-teaching institutions should have had similar treatment meted out to them.
