between industrialized and developing countries. During that period he also held a number of special appointments. In 1985 and 1986 he was the Personal Representative of the Prime Minister to leaders of Commonwealth states and in 1980 to 1982 he was a member of the UN Secretary-General's expert group on the relationship between disarmament and development. William Barton, Chairman of the Board of Directors, hosted a reception for Mr. Wood at the Institute in January.

■ Johanne Di Donato, joined the staff of the Institute in December as a research assistant, following studies at Concordia University, Leningrad State University and the Paterson School at Carleton University. Gabrielle Mathieu, is the new media relations officer. She studied at Laval University, the University of Ottawa, the University of Paris, and worked for several years as a journalist with Radio-Canada.

■ John Toogood spoke on superpower intervention to a conference of high school students organized by the international relations club at Martingrove High School in Toronto.

■ Nancy Gordon and Brad Feasey gave workshops at a conference in Brandon organized by the Marquis Project. The meetings brought together teachers, parents and school administrators from security. The main conferences were held in Victoria, Vancouver and Whitehorse.

■ Roger Hill was a discussant for two papers on Verification and aging Regional Conflict. Regimes and Third-Party Mediators" was held in February in Ottawa. Organized by Fen Hampson of the Institute and Brian Mandell of Carleton University, the workshop brought together specialists in area studies and in conflict resolution. Papers were given by Liisa North, on Central America; Ashok Kapur on Indo-Pakistan conflicts; Robert Matthews on Zimbabwe; Christopher Brown on Southern Africa; Douglas Anglin on sanctions; Gérard Hervouet on Indochina; and Keith Krause on arms transfers. Ron Fisher and Loraleigh Keashly along with the two organizers gave papers on theories of regimes and the social psychology of third-party mediation. With the resolution of some of the more intractable regional conflicts, the establishment and maintenance of new regimes are of prime importance: the necessity for institutionalization of such arrangements makes the results of the workshops relevant to the ongoing policy debate.

■ In mid-December the Institute sponsored and hosted another seminar in its regional conflict series, this time on the Middle East. Participants included academics and others with experience in the region. The workshop focussed on: the current situation in the area; policies of the US and USSR; the role of the United Nations; and Canadian policies in the area.

■ Cyprus is the site of another regional conflict the Institute is studying. Two workshops have taken place, and another is planned for the spring. A larger seminar will conclude the study which is being organized by CIIPS Research Associate Norma Salem.

■ Malcolm Dando, a professor at Bradford University in the United Kingdom gave a lecture at the Institute in February on the latest developments in alternative defence strategies in Europe. Russell Trood of the Asian and International Studies Division of Griffith University in Queensland, Australia led a discussion on recent trends in Australian defence policy. □
