

P A R T A

CANADA AND INTERNATIONAL ORDER

Canada belongs to a great many international organizations in which discussions proceed on all matters of importance to the world community. Collective security, trade relations, disarmament, development assistance, economic affairs or human rights are only a few of the areas concerned. Canadian representatives at these meetings not only present Canadian points of view and defend Canada's national interests but also make their contribution to the development of a more orderly and just world society.