

NO ONE SHOULD BE WITHOUT IT!

THE PARLIAMENTARY

Price, $1.50.

What the Press Says :

The Parliamentary Companion is an indispensable vale mecum for every student of Canadian politics.—Toronto Globe.

More useful than ever as a handbook of reference.—London Advertiser.

It is far superior to the old Companion in the extent of its information.—Kingston Whig.

No man who wishes to have a correct knowledge of public men and public proceeding, can do so, thoroughly, without a copy of this invaluable work. It ought to be found everywhere.—Halifax Herald

In its preparation it manifests that the utmost care has been taken, and altogether we recommend it to those who desire to be posted on a variety of matters, upon which otherwise it is difficult to obtain information.—Montreal Herald.

A vast amount of information of a political and general character is given.—Woodstock Sentinel.

No public man can afford to be without this last edition of the Companion.—Montreal Star.

It is a great improvement over any of its predecessors, and contains much more and varied information under the usual heads, than formerly.—Hamilton Times.

What the Press Says :

A standard authority on Canadian affairs.—Quebec Mercury.

It comprises a vast amount of information relating to public matters and public men, not to be found elsewhere, forming a standard authority, without which no library or public office can be said to be complete.—London Free Press.

Mackintosh's Parliamentary Companion for 1878 is a valuable book. The issue is greatly superior to any of its predecessors. Some of the matter in previous editions that was of no particular value has been expunged, and an improved running index, a sketch of the general routine of the Election Courts, rulings on legal points, history of the Halifax Fishery Commission, amended digest of Parliamentary procedure and the decisions of the Speaker during the session of 1877 added.—Hamilton Times.

The Parliamentary Companion for 1878 has been issued, and fully sustains its established character as a sessional handbook. Two useful additions have been made this year, viz: a Summary of the Fishery question and a digest of the award. Also an elaborate digest of Election Trials and practical points connected with Parliamentary practice, all showing care and labor on the part of the editor.—Toronto Globe.
