

FABLE XVI.

THE TREE AND THE AXE.

An old Upas Tree, whose Baleful Influence had cursed the country for many years, one morning observed a fine, sharp-looking Axe resting on the ground at its feet. "What are you doing there?" enquired the Tree. "Nothing just at present," replied