CENTRAL SUFFRAGE BODY NECESSARY

Confusion Results From Many Independent Societies, Says Mrs. McClung.

PLAN TO HELP SERBIA

Women's War Auxiliary Formed To Be Nucleus of Dominion Body.

Representatives of the various suffrage societies of the city met at Ormscliff, the home of Mrs. A. E. Ormsby, on Saturday afternoon, when Mrs. Nellie McClung gave a heart to heart address on suffrage, in the course of which she gave some suggestions which were later accepted by the meeting.

Speaking as an outsider, Mrs. McClung said that in her opinion the number of suffrage organizations in Toronto was confusing. People from the west, for instance, in communicating with the east never knew whom they were linked up with owing to the many names representing different organizations.

Blot Out the Old. She suggested a blotting out of all old affiliations and a new start with a central national body with provincial and local offshoots on something the same lines as those followed by the W.C.T.U. The present she considered the psychological moment for an impetus in the suffrage cause. While the hands are working in patriotic service, she advised, "to obtain this union Mrs. McClung suggested a series of franchise teas, at which the women would work for the Red Cross or other patriotic causes while an article on suffrage along educational lines was being read.

All Are Wanted. "Get the best women," she advised, "from every class of society, because all are wanted. The vote is the tool by which women may level the path to make it easy for the little feet," was her definition of the thing for which suffrage strives.

A Dominion Organization. If a central suffrage body were organized Mrs. McClung felt personally, she could not speak officially, that Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, which already had the vote, would link up with the main organization.

Women's War Auxiliary. Much discussion followed Mrs. McClung's address, all favorable to her suggestion. It was finally decided to evolve the meeting into a committee to be known as the women's war auxiliary, which would work for patriotic purposes. Serbia being mentioned as an immediate object for service. A collection was taken up which will form a nucleus to supply material upon which to begin work. It was agreed to hold preliminary meetings shortly, time and place to be announced thru the press. Tea was afterwards served and the conservatory thrown open to the guests.

Among the seventy or so present were: Mrs. L. A. Hamilton, Mrs. Hector Fremont, Dr. Margaret Gordon, Dr. Stowe-Gullen, Mrs. Lang, Miss Constance Boulton, Mrs. Curtis, Mrs. McIvor, Miss Jessie Melville, Mrs. Ellis and Dr. Davis.

Window Erected in Old Garrison Church, Portland St., by Maj.-Gen. Sir Wm. Otter.

A window erected by Major-Gen. Sir William Otter in memory of his wife, the late Lady Otter, was unveiled by Col. Sweny at St. John's Church, Portland street, the old garrison church, yesterday morning. Rev. J. Russell Maclean preached, taking his text from James II, 22, "thy work faith was made perfect." The trend of the sermon was that the greatest achievement in life was that of a noble character. The mightiest was the quiet life lived humbly before God.

Col. Peuchen and many more of Sir William's friends attended the service, and in addition a detachment of the Royal Canadian Dragoons as well as members of the guard at Stanley Barracks took advantage of the opportunity to show their respect to Major-Gen. Otter, who was at one time commander. Lieut. Wardrop was in command of the R.C.D. and Lieut. Grubb of the guards.

THIS WEEK AT THE THEATRES

"Dancing Around" at Alexandra. "Dancing Around," the practically all-English musical production from the Winter Garden, New York, with the formidable Al Jolson as its shining star, with its drove of "dainty, dimpled, diaphanous divinites," and four carloads of scenery, arrived in Toronto this morning to fill its local engagement at the Alexandra, commencing tonight. In "Dancing Around," there is said to be every form of dance, fox trot, aerobic dancing, ballroom games, comic sketches and farces, a plot; also Jolson does his best to spoil it on all occasions. There are 25 big song hits.

Waldron's Bostonian Burlesquers. Song and jest, hilarity and frivolity, dancing and prancing, but above all the exploitation of the eccentricities of the two leading comedians make the coming of Charles Waldron's "Bostonian Burlesquers" to the Gayety Theatre this week, one of the real events of the season at that house. Frank Finney, author-star of "The Isle of Nowhere," the two-act musical farce offering, and J. P. Griffith are the names of the fun-makers whose antics are expected to break the laughing records of the house.

Manuel Quiroga at Shea's. Three features stand out prominently in the bright bill provided by the Shea management this week. The headline attraction is Manuel Quiroga, the young Spanish violinist, who was the stellar attraction of the New York Hippodrome. "Cranberries" is a delightful little musical melange. The act makes its initial appearance here. Will Oakland, the clever singing comedian, and a sextet of pleasing singers will present "At the Club." The Four Original Lancers will present a decided novelty, while Dorothy La Shelie, who will present "Crook," Howard, Kline, and the Moore Sisters; Moore, O'Brien and Gorman and the kinetograph, with new features, complete the bill.

"Hello Paris" at Star. The "Hello Paris" burlesquers at one of the best shows played at the Star this season. Mr. Kneems has been fortunate in selecting an all-star cast including Geo. A. Clarke, Ed Crawford, Florence Turner, Helen Stewart, Irene Meara, and Earl Siblean.

There are illuminated effects, moonlight and other wonderful specimens giving opportunity for the introduction of optically chosen colors. The entire picture is tinted and toned thruout not a foot of plain film being included in the two hour exhibition. "Cabrila" in fact may be regarded as a natural color stereoscopic work of art, which all students of motion pictures should make a point of seeing.
