

XXIX.

And he who makes an image of the Lord
Of all creation, is but in accord With those who worship with a finite mind
That God whose higher essence they ignored.

XXX.

The thought of God was there, that God
of mine,
And though I worship at a different shrine,
The only God of Gods must reign supreme;
Almighty God, that God is mine and thine.

XXXI.

The Perception of Good and Evil

Evil and good are forms which we have made,
The darkness is a light of lower grade,
The cold and heat but vary in degree,
The truth appears as it may be portrayed.

XXXII.

The right or wrong of any act I do
Is not the right or wrong which governs you ;
For what I know is false, is false for me
Although the judging years may deem it true.
