This is an elaborate work. The author has grappled fearlessly with every difficult question which belongs to that department of theological inquiry: He prefers the chronology of the Septuagint to that of our Hebrew Bibles, and in this he is sustained by the judgment of many eminent scholars. There has no work been issued in a long time from our Book Room of so much real worth.—Northern Christian Advocate.

A book suitable both for the learned and the unlearned; indeed, it is unique with regard to the importance and compass of the subjects which it embraces, as well as with regard to the spirit in which they are treated.—Wesleyan Methodist Magazine.

This is unquestionably the most valuable work that has been for a long time issued from the Methodist press. The copy before us—paper, printing, binding—is a credit to the publishers.—Southern Christian Advocate.

The information which the author has condensed from various sources is presented in a truly religious, but not sectarian, style and manner; and we have been much gratified by the union of piety and sober judgment which he has evinced in the application of history and science to the confirmation of the Mosaic narrative.—Church-of-England Quarterly Review.

The work is a monument of patience, industry, and research.—Biblical Rev.
The announcement that such subjects have been ably and thoroughly discussed by a man of Mr. Smith's erudition, candour, critical skill, Scriptural knowledge, and integrity, will induce many of our readers to purchase the volume, and peruse it attentively. We can assure them that they will be amply repaid.—West Briton.

The work supplies a desideratum in sacred literature. We can strongly recommend it to all who are desirous of thoroughly understanding the history of the Bible.—Irish Ecclesiastical Journal.

The present work is one of great merit, not only in a literary point of view, but also as an exposition of many passages of human history which are exceedingly obscure, and upon which much learned speculation has been expended.—Christian Advocate and Journal.

Mr. Smith has succeeded in presenting to the Bible student a volume which it would be difficult to surpass in interest and value.—Evangelical Christendom.
