

rest upon us more and more. But if our prayers are languid, formal, fitful, the work of the Lord will be greatly hindered. Would that I could convince every one of this, and stir up all to be the Lord's remembrancers, to take no rest and to give Him no rest, till He pour upon us Pentecostal blessings. Who will join this company of the prayerful, and always in private, and as frequently as possible in public, but especially at the prayer meeting on Sabbath morning, wait on the Lord for that blessing, without which all our preaching and teaching and giving and working are a beating of the air?

There were registered in the course of the year:—Marriages, 10; baptisms 24; burials 24. The communicants on the roll number 644.

Your loving pastor,

A. B. MACKAY.