BETTY COMPSON TO STAR IN NEW PRODUCTIONS.

Announcement is made simultaneously by the Goldwyn Distributing Corporation and Betty Compson Productions that Goldwyn is to distribute Miss Compson's starring pictures.

Ever since Miss Compson first made known the fact that she had formed her own producing company there has been much speculation as to just which of the big distributing organizations would market her pictures. Practically all of the releasing units sought to handle Miss Compson's productions, but after giving considerable thought to the vari-ous proposals she decided that Goldwyn offered the fairest system of distribu-

Miss Compson's meteoric rise to starflom was the result of her remarkable been known principally through her appearance in comedies, but following the appearance of "The Miracle Man" demands were made by exhibitors and the public alike that she appear as a star play by Israel Zangwill, author of "The Melting Pot."

"Nurse Marjorle" is an unusual photodrama from the angles of story, plot, action, direction and continuity. The story is that of a young lady of title who insists on outraging her family traditions by actually going to work as a nurse in a sanatorium. In the sanatorium Nurse Marjorie (Mary Miles Minter) meets John Danbury, a commoner, who falls in love with her. She does not reveal her identity, but makes him believe that she is a child of lowly station.

The story moves from sanatorium to her supposed-to-be-home, a fish market, where Danbury meets her fictitious mother.

Many humorous situations abound in the play. The supporting cast is given a real chance to prove their worth, and the direction of William Desmond Taylor keeps the action and story moving very smoothly.
