GIFTS THIS YEAR FOR THE STEWARDESSES

The men of the steamers Manchester Hero, Empress of France and Sicilian each received yesterday the ditty bags which are distributed every Christmas to the men of the ships in port. The stewaresses also received a half-pound box of chocolates. This is the first time that they have shared in the gifts from the people of the city. Twelve hundred bags will be distributed. Five hundred were presented yesterday and the remainder will be given at the sailors' Christmas treat at the Seamen's Institute. The bags, which each contain a pair of socks, an apple, an orange, a packet of cigarettes, matches, chocolate, handkerchiefs, vaseline, court plaster and a testimonial, have been made by the ladies of the Institute, the W. C. T. U., the Navy League, and the King's Daughters. That they are appreciated is quite evident by the way some of the men were enquiring last night as to whether they would get theirs before their ship sailed.

SCHOOLS BAR "SHYLOCK"

Youngstown, Ohio, Dec. 24.—Asserting that the characterization of Shylock in Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice" tends to incite race prejudice, the board of education of this city has barred the study of the famous drama from the schools. The action of the board was taken at the request of the Anti-Defamation Society, a Jewish organization. Jewry in general has for a long time been waging a campaign here against plays and writings which tend toward bias and bigotry in the characterization of racial problems.

Bank Notes Act

London, Dec. 23.—A royal proclamation made public tonight revokes as from January 1, the provisions of the bank notes act of 1914, which made bank notes issued by issuing banks of Scotland and Ireland, legal tender to any amount. The proclamation restores to the bank notes their former status.

FINE NEW BILL AT OPERA HOUSE

Attractive Acts and the Thrilling Close of "Thunder Mountain" Serial.

Despite the usual Christmas activities the Opera House was crowded last night by patrons, who were all eager to see the new bill, especially selected for this festive season. That they thoroughly appreciated the various acts was evident from their hearty and prolonged applause and the highly complimentary remarks.

The programme was a varied one with new and additional features to the usual run. There were a balancing act of real merit which was brim full of thrills, a musical act that would be hard to equal, a playlet superbly acted with a good plot, a trio and a highly entertaining English vaudeville artist. The closing episode of the popular serial "Perils of Thunder Mountain," was a drawing card, for hundreds of people have followed this picture and were anxiously awaiting the climax. This chapter is teeming with exciting incidents, which are well worth seeing, and explains the interest of the "mystery" of the first act.

The first on the new bill was Frank Cutler, who has a balancing act full of thrills. His performance on chairs piled on top of tables is good and he "puts his act over" with some amusing chatter. His closing feat is both exciting and interesting.

The Barker Trio follow with songs, which were well received. They are good singers and proved to be equally good entertainers. Their operatic renditions made quite a hit.

The third number was a playlet entitled "A Woman's Will," which was ably presented by Helen Pingree and Company. Miss Pingree is known on the vaudeville stage as "The Personality Girl" and she is well deserving of the name, for she is a clever actress. She is ably supported by two other members, Jack Joyce, England's famous monomelic dancer, followed with an act of monomelic interest. He is a returned hero from the battlefields of France, and despite the fact that the Hun seriously injured him, he failed to rob him of his wonderful ability as a vaudeville performer. His act is one which must be seen to be appreciated. His routine

AN INDUSTRIAL COURT PLANNED

Kansas Measure Would Provide Means of Insuring Essential Production.

(Christian Science Monitor.)

Topeka, Kansas—Governor Henry Allen of Kansas has called the legislature to meet in special session on Jan. 6, and will present to it a bill to establish a court of industrial relations which will take charge of any disputes in essential industries.

There are several fundamental industries involved in the new legislation which is a wide departure from any previous legislation in this country. The only counterpart to the proposed Kansas plan is found in the industrial courts of New Zealand and Australia, and the latest created industrial court in England. The first fundamental is that the public has a greater interest in an industrial dispute involving an essential industry than either of the contending parties. The bill is founded upon this idea, and proposes to take away from the employer the right to lock out the employees, and from labor the right to strike, offering in the place of these remedies, a court composed of public men, to act when mediation has failed. This court cannot be directly or indirectly connected with either labor or capital. It is the direct representative of the public, and acts purely from the public interest, without regard to any selfish interests of either the employer or employee.

Essentials Only Included.

The bill is limited in its scope to include only the most essential industries. It provides for the court to operate in industrial disputes involving fuel, food, clothing, and transportation. Of course, it may be possible to add other industries at a later date, but these four are regarded as absolutely necessary in the present system of civilization, and are the only ones to be touched by the proposed new court at the present time.

The bill declares these industries so affected by the public interest that the state proposes to take complete control of the public welfare is endangered because of the employees and employers not being able to reach an agreement as to wages, hours or conditions of labor in the shops. The state may take the property of the employer and upon us how closely common language and blood have brought together the British and ourselves.

The co-operation of our soldiers with the French, British, Belgians, and Italians was decisive in bringing the war to a successful conclusion, and will have an equally decisive effect in welding together the bonds of sympathy and good will among the peoples of these nations and ourselves.

Full Account of Activities.

The general gives a full account of the activities of the United States army and its allied and auxiliary organizations from the time, soon after the declaration of war, when he assumed command, to the period of demobilization. In conclusion, he pays a striking tribute to the organizations and persons associated with the prosecution of the war, saying in part:

"In this brief summary of the achievements of the American expeditionary forces it would be impossible to detail the splendid ability, loyalty, and efficiency that characterized the service of the combatant and non-combatant individuals and organizations. The most striking quality of both officers and men was the resourcefulness and common sense employed, under all circumstances, in handling their problems."

"The highest praise is due the commanders of armies, corps, and divisions, and their subordinate leaders, who laboriously and ably toward the accomplishment of our task, suppressing personal opinions and ambitions in the pursuit of the common aim; and to their staffs, who, developed, with battle experience, into splendid teams without superiors in any army."

"The navy in European waters, under command of Admiral Sims, at all times cordially aided the army. To our sister service we owe the safe arrival of our armies and their supplies. It is most gratifying to record that there has never been such perfect understanding between these two branches of the service."

"Our armies were conscious of the support and co-operation of all branches of the government. Behind them stood the entire American people, whose ardent patriotism and sympathy inspired our troops with a deep sense of obligation of loyalty, and of devotion to the country's cause never equalled in our history."

"Finally, the memory of the untold ingenuity and heroism of the soldiers of the line fills me with greatest admiration. To them I again pay the supreme tribute. Their devotion, their valor, and their sacrifices will live forever in the hearts of their grateful countrymen."

REBELLION POSSIBLE.

Toronto, Dec. 23.—A small rebellion is possible if the Ontario government makes it illegal for people to have liquor in their houses, according to Lieut. Col. A. C. Pratt, former member of the provincial parliament for South Norfolk.

In an interview here today, Colonel Pratt said that any attempt to search a man's cellar would be keenly resented by liberty-loving citizens. He said he was not worrying about the matter personally, because he did not care for the stuff.

"I hold rather strong opinions on the idea that we have had too much interference with the personal liberty of the subject."

Dangerous Antiseptics And Germicides Are Unnecessary

A dependable antiseptic has come to be considered a necessity in most homes. Especially is this true since Absorbine, Jr., has had such a wide introduction, because this liniment is not only a powerful antiseptic and germicide but it is absolutely safe to use and to have around the house. It is not poisonous and it cannot do harm even if the children do get hold of it. That is a big point to consider.

Absorbine, Jr., is concentrated and is therefore economical. It relates its germicidal properties even diluted one part Absorbine, Jr., to 100 parts water—and its antiseptic properties, one part Absorbine, Jr., to 200 parts water.

The antiseptic and germicidal properties have been repeatedly tested and proven in many prominent chemical laboratories. Detailed laboratory reports mailed upon request.

Absorbine, Jr., combines safety with efficiency. $1.25 a bottle at most drug stores or postpaid. Send 10c for liberal trial bottle.
