South End League.

The All Stars and the Pirates played a mappy game which resulted in a tie in he South End League last evening, the core standing 7 to 7. During the fifth inning, Fieldings, one of the Pirates' players, was struck in the forehead by the ball and was removed to his home in a motor car. It was found there that a plood vessel had burst and medical attention was secured. Doyle pitched a good game for the All Stars and Creaghan did fine work as back-stop, while Kerr Kerr and Cox formed the battery for the Pirates. The boys are putting up a good brand of ball on the South End diamond and large crowds of fans turn out for the game.

VIRTUOUS WIVES

CONVERSATION FROM ACT 3.

Time: Several days after Andrew Forresters return from an absence of six months. Location: Andrew Forrester's New York apartment. Occasion: An "afternoon at home" with his wife, Amy, as hostess.

ANDREW FORRESTER, HARD-WORKING YOUNG HUSBAND (Conway Tearle) SAYS:

SAYS:

"I married Amy because I loved her and believed implicitly in her. And she said she loved me. I return home from Colorado, where I tried to make the fortune that would let us continue to live in our accustomed social luxury only to find bills, bills, men by the score running after her, dances, theatres, costumers' accounts, and Amy the opposite of what I left her—a virtuous wife."

AMY, HIS WIFE (Anita Stewart), REPLIED:
"You told me to play for both of us. You said you were too busy for amusement. Now you return and criticize me."

MRS. DELABARRE-SOCIETY BUTTERFLY-(Mrs. De Wolfe Hopper) JOINS IN: "Amy is perfectly right. Andrew is unjust. She is a virtuous wife, although Maurice says I am not. That we are in society does not mean that we cannot be virtuous."

THEN HER HUSBAND, MAURICE DELEBARRE—(Edwin Arden) EXPRESSES HIS VIEWS: "True virtue, Andrew, is hardly possible for any woman under present-day conditions, particularly in New York. The privacy of their boudoirs is invaded at all moments of the day and night by swarms of acquaintances. Sleep, meals, conversation are being constantly interrupt-

MONTE BRACKEN (William Boyd), A SOCIAL CROCODILE, BUTTS IN:

"What does Forrester expect? Amy has wealth, beauty, brains, and, at first, ideals. Are these feminine assets to fade and disappear, unappreciated by any one, because a husband permits business to crowd out his affection? Her success among us has been easy. She has been the only one to whom pleasure was young. To her it was a natural impulse, not the mental intoxicant that prompted us." THE YOUNG HUSBAND COMES BACK WITH THIS DENUNCIATION:

"Has modern woman degenerated to a degree that makes constant watching by her husband necessary to safeguard her virtue? And I mean virtue in thought more than in action. Is she losing all pride and self-respect in the glare of a society infested with leeches, idlers, thrill-seeking wasters, to whom clean thinking and wholesome amusement are unendurable? I come upon you at a passion feast—you called it a social function. It was not. It was society's way of raising the destruction of virtue to an art. You have made Amy an example of cultured indecencies that would not be tolerated in a small community. And now I am going to tear the masks off all of you, strip you of your fine clothes and high silk hats, and show you up for what you are."
