The schooner went to sea yesterday. Grappiers were put to work, and the body was found this morning about eleven o'clock.

St. John May Have Big Steamers of The C.P.R. If Facilities Provided

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy intimates Company Does Not Desire Renewal of Gutelius Agreement—Delegates Interviewed on Return—Urgent Necessity For Providing More Wharves

Interviews with members of the St. John delegation who returned this morning from Ottawa and Montreal revealed that the conference with Sir Thomas Shaughnessy at Montreal yesterday was much more satisfactory and complete than indicated in the statement given the Telegraph correspondent in Montreal by Mr. Robinson after the conference.

He also made the important statement that the C. P. R. would not divide their mail service, that where the Calgarian and Alsatian go there would also go the Empresses. This would mean that to secure the C. P. R. service next winter facilities for all four steamers must be available, and Mayor Frink in this connection made the suggestion in his interview with the Times on arrival that the city should in future undertake contracts for harbor improvements, so that there should be no delay in financing or in progress of the work.

J. M. Robinson, president of the board of trade, when asked as to the success of the delegation, said: "I am well satisfied with the result of the delegation, and by the experience of the government and by the experience of the C. P. R. I would not divide its service, that the Empresses would go where the Calgarian and Alsatian could also be accommodated, but the only question as to making St. John the Atlantic terminus of the C. P. R. was as to whether we could provide facilities for the steamers. It seems now to be up to us to get the new wharves finished and I have been personally assured by Mr. Clark that his work will be completed in plenty of time to allow of the concrete being laid and the wharves made ready for use this winter."

Board of Trade Secretary. R. E. Armstrong, secretary of the board of trade, said in an interview with you can say that I believe the sending of the delegation to Ottawa and Montreal had been abundantly justified by the results. With the assurances from the government are not as definite as they might be they indicate that the matter is receiving their very serious consideration and the interview with Sir Thomas Shaughnessy was eminently satisfactory. He courteously received the delegation although he had written to St. John that he did not meet them before Thursday and throughout was very frank in his statements to the delegation that he regarded St. John as the winter port of the C. P. R. and the only one in touch with their own line. He said he had found it unsatisfactory in doing business with other railways and that it was up to St. John to hasten forward the work of harbor development on the west side with the utmost rapidity possible.

"The company stood ready to utilize these facilities whenever they were completed. The absence of sufficient facilities for their newer and larger vessels might compel them to go to other ports and unless St. John provided facilities for them it might lead to the company securing the development of other ports. The working conditions of handling the winter business during the last season had not been at all satisfactory, he said. It appeared that neither St. John nor Halifax had adequate facilities at the present time and with a mind to future business it was absolutely essential to hasten forward the development of the harbor work on the west side.

"The C. P. R. had no quarrel with St. John, he said, and he was glad to know that the purpose of having the delegation meet him was to arrive at a better understanding. He made a very candid statement concerning railway and steamship matters in the last winter and left the impression upon the minds of the delegates that the Gutelius agreement, so called, had not worked out satisfactorily for the railway and for this reason would not be renewed.

"Alluding to labor matters Sir Thomas said that he had no particular complaints to make of this element in St. John. The laboring men did a very important part of the company's work and he always found them reasonable when treated reasonably."

D. F. Pidgeon D. F. Pidgeon said: "Personally, I think that the members of the delegation can look upon the results secured as most gratifying. We have the firm assurance of Mr. Foster, chairman of that section of the cabinet at the conference that the Gutelius agreement or any agreement between the C. P. R. and the I. C. R. for hauling freight and passengers between Halifax and St. John will be considered by the cabinet council with our minister present and both the city council and board of trade will have an opportunity of getting a full knowledge of the matter as it is being considered."

"I think the delegation was satisfied with the interview with Sir Thomas, particularly his statement that the winter port was a business proposition and would be handled in a business way without regard to politics."

FELL DOWN STAIRS Friends of Mrs. Percy Moore of North End, will regret to learn that she is confined at the home of her sister, Mrs. A. G. Pearson, 8 St. Andrews street, after a painful accident in which she sustained severe injuries. Mrs. Moore was visiting her sister and in leaving the house fell down stairs and fractured her spine. Dr. W. F. Roberts attended her. It will be several days before she is able to be about again.

EXTENDING LINE TO EAST ST. JOHN

Street Railway Crew Promptly at Work This Morning

The St. John Railway Company have lost no time in starting their extension to East St. John, and this morning, within thirty-six hours of the time that the route surveyed by the railway company was approved by the municipal council, a crew of about twenty-five men were started on the excavation for the sleepers and rails.

The work was started at the Kane's corner end of the line, and on account of the great amount of rock that will have to be taken out there in order to make a level road for the tracks, it is expected that the excavation will take a little longer than on the Kane's corner extension. The rock at this point is from six to eight feet higher than the road level, and will require considerable blasting.

START WORK FOR THE PLAYGROUNDS

Fairville School Field Probable Location—Ladies to Be Asked to Assist

The first meeting of the Fairville Community Council was held last evening. In the absence of Dr. J. V. Anglin, the president, Councilor James E. Egan occupied the chair. Later the first vice-president, W. E. Gunter, arrived and contributed to the discussions.

It was generally agreed that a public playground should be planned as speedily as possible. The school field was represented as the best available location and finances were taken over. Public subscriptions will be called for and also a tag day might be conducted with profit. The unanimous feeling seemed to be that the community should be covered in one day. Saturday, May 30, was chosen as "collecting day." As to the collecting the meeting felt that since the "Community Council" was elected at a public meeting of representative citizens their wives must also be representative of the families of the community, so a meeting of the latter representatives is called to organize and a committee composed of the local clergymen with J. J. Hennessey and the secretary will wait on them and explain what has been done. It is hoped they will help along the good work.

W. E. Gunter then moved, seconded by Rev. W. P. Dunham, that Eldon Schofield, John Galey and W. J. Linton be a committee to proceed at once with procuring the necessary equipment and having it installed. This was carried.

As to suggestions the following committee was named by the chair to interview persons who might serve, as to terms, etc., giving preference to those residing in Lancaster—W. E. Gunter, Walter Ross, J. J. Hennessey and H. M. Stout. They will report to the next meeting. Adjournment was then made for a week. The gathering last evening was composed of a dozen earnest men anxious to see the playground idea taken up by the public as a starter toward better welfare, but it was made very clear that the matter is essentially community wide and the people in general must give liberal financial assistance and sympathetic support.

Lancaster in its entirety, including Milford and Randolph will be expected to send children to the playground and be assured of a welcome, so it is hoped the adults in these sections as well as immediate vicinity will bestir themselves in the campaign.

MORMON CHURCH HAS ESTABLISHED A ST. JOHN CONFERENCE

Missionaries Here Carrying on a General Propaganda

The Mormon Church has established a conference in St. John and has missionaries engaged in distributing literature and carrying on a general propaganda in its interest. Its advocates say that it is in hearty accord with any real reform movement, favors the regulation of marriage and divorce and the prohibition of the social evil and the liquor traffic.

They assert that their children are taught patriotism and in religious matters they are willing to let the law of the survival of the fittest apply and believe in the absolute separation of church and state. They say that they stand for peace, arbitration and every reform, and have neither the time nor disposition to ridicule or tear down the belief of others. They say that their church as such takes no part in politics. The St. John conference is under the auspices of the Eastern States Mission.
